GEORGE MEREDITH, NOVELIST, DEAD

Past Eighty-one, His Long Career Overlapped That of Thackeray and Dickens.

DEAN OF CRAFT IN ENGLAND

Master of Analysis and No Mean Poet, Death Came to Him After Brief Illness at Boxhill.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, Tuesday, May 18.—George Meredith died at 3:35 this morning. The news of the great novelist's illness had caused deep and widespread regret, and it had been generally feared that at his great age—he was past 81—the chances of recovery were slight.

Sir Thomas Barlow, the King's physician, after a consultation as late as yesterday, had said: "Mr. Meredith's condition is serious; but there is no reason why he should not rally." Meredith's regular physician, however, had later found the patient's condition so precarious that he was passing the night at the writer's cottage at Boxhill.

Mr. Meredith's custom of taking a drive every day in a little donkey chaise was one with which the interviewers at the time of his eightieth birthday made the public generally familiar. Though he had been weaker during the week past with periods of drowsiness, he had continued these drives, and on Saturday he drove as usual in spite of a cold east wind which was blowing. He came in suffering serious pains in the region of the intestines, and was in a very feeble state. The physician who was then called in could not revive him sufficiently to enable him to take food, and Dr. Barlow was summoned later.

The immediate cause of death was heart failure, following grave symptoms that developed early in the evening.

Mr. Meredith's Career.

George Meredith, although his reputation on this side of the Atlantic is of comparatively recent growth, bridged the years between the great group of Victorian novelists and the present day. His great novel, "The Ordeal of Richard Feverel," came out in 1859, the year of George Eliot's "Adam Bede," Thackeray's "Virginians," and Dickens's "Tale of Two Cities." His last book, "A Reading of Life and Other Poems," was published in 1901.

He was born on Feb. 12, 1828, in Hampshire, England, of Welsh and Irish parentage. He was early left an orphan, and was educated till he was 15 in Germany, where he received influences that colored much of his earlier work. His guardian intended him for the law, but as soon as he could control his own fortunes he abandoned the law for journalism and literature.

For a time his life was of the hardest. He lived in London weighed down by debts contracted by others, and it is said that for a whole year he was forced to subsist on hardly anything but oatmeal. He first appeared in print with a poem, "Chillianwallah," published in 1849 in Chambers's Journal. Two years later he published a book of poems, dedicated to Thomas Love Peacock, the father of his first wife.

Then for a time he abandoned poetry, and wrote in 1856 a strange-Oriental extravaganza, "The Shaving of Shaghat." It was an imitation of an Eastern tale, and written with all the wealth of imagery and abundance of metaphor peculiar to Eastern writers. A year later appeared "Farina," a graceful love tale of mediaeval Cologne, but it was not till 1859 that he produced a work, "The Ordeal of Richard Feverel," that showed to those who could appreciate it that a new master of English prose had arisen.

Strangely enough, as it now seems, the book passed at the time almost unnoticed. The London Times reviewed it with high appreciation, but most even of the literary world were not attracted by it. Yet even to-day, half a century after it was given to the world, it retains its freshness and strength. It contained some of the most closely observed characters that its author ever invented, and the acute analysis of its hero, the charm of Lucy, and the narrow pedantry of Sir Austin, showed Meredith's skillful touch and keen insight at its best.

Early Critics Unmerciful.

"Evan Harrington" came next, in 1861, and then, harking back to poetry, the author issued a volume of verse, "Modern Love, and Other Poems." This called forth warm praise from such masters as Swinburne and Browning, but the ordinary critics of the time abused it unmercifully. Perhaps the difficulty of diction which marks all his writings repelled them. They could not appreciate that the author was seeking to express the fullest possible meaning in every word he used, and that he cared little for conventionality if he found the exact shade of sense he was striving to convey.

Two other novels followed, "Sandra Belloni" and "Rhoda Fleming" in 1864 and 1865, and then he went to the Austro-Italian war as correspondent for The London Morning Post. He did not, however, waste his time, and he used the observations of this trip as material for his next novel, "Vittoria." Meanwhile his first wife had died, leaving him one son, and for a time he took up his residence with Swinburne and Rossetti in Cheyne Walk, Chelsea. The story goes that the housekeeping of the latter was too erratic for his tastes, and he soon removed to Boxhill, in Surrey, where he lived out the remainder of his days.

His next works in order of succession were "Adventures of Harry Richmond," 1871; "Beauchamp's Career," 1875; "The Egoist," 1879, and "The Tragic Comedians," 1881. Of these the most famous is "The Egoist." In it Meredith has dissected with merciless pen and marvelous skill the selfishness of man, and the narrow, self-absorption of him who can think that the world has been created entirely for his own enjoyment. As the relations of Sir Willoughby Patterne and Clara Middleton are drawn, the ingrained meanness of the former is pictured with mordant criticism and the most subtle analysis. Moreover, the writer who could paint the fervent loves of Richard Feverel proved that he was equally happy

WAGES OF 35,000 GO UP.

Notice of Increase Posted by Independent Steel Concerns.

Special to The New York Times.

PITTSBURG, Penn., May 17.—The 35,000 employes of independent iron and steel works in the Pittsburg district, whose wages were cut 10 per cent. on April 1, have been notified that on June 1 the old scale of wages will be restored to them, and, further than that, they will be expected to work at least full time for the ensuing six months. An accumulation of orders for iron and steel products is given for the decision to restore the cut in wages, while bad news has not come from Washington in relation to tariff matters.

The Republic Iron and Steel Company, with plants all over the country, was the first to spread the news that the old wage would be restored. The notices, posted some time Saturday night or Sunday, caused great rejoicing when the men went to work this morning.

The Shenango Furnace Company and the W. P. Snyder Company, which control practically the independent pig iron end of the trade, and which were among those to make the 10 per cent. cut some weeks ago, also confirmed the report that wages would be restored to the old-time basis June 1. The Jones & Laughlin interests, with about 10,000 men, will also place wages back on the old basis two weeks from to-night.

A statement of the conditions among the mills of the Pittsburg district was made to-night. It appears that the mills of the Carnegie Steel Company are and have been running about 80 per cent. full, while the Jones & Laughlin interests, the Snyder plants, the National Tube Works, and other large plants of the district have been working from 90 per cent. to their full capacity. In some of the plants many of the men have had to work overtime.

PHILADELPHIA, Penn., May 17.—The Philadelphia Rapid Transit Company, which operates all the street car lines in this city, decided at a meeting of its Board of Directors to-day to increase the wages of motormen and conductors from 21 to 22 cents an hour. The increase is to take effect July 1. About 6,600 men are affected, and the advance in wages involves an additional expenditure of about $300,000 yearly.

The request of the City Club that an expert be engaged to investigate the company's resources and finances was declined, but a committee was appointed to consider the demands for new lines, extensions, &c. Mayor Reyburn is the Chairman of this committee.

SUES FAMILY FOR $500,000.

Mrs. Dietz Says She Was Induced to Sign Away Dividends.

Suit has been brought in the Supreme Court by Mrs. Anna Dietz, 83 years old, widow of Robert E. Dietz, who founded the firm of Robert E. Dietz & Co., lamp manufacturers at 69 Laight Street, against her son, Frederick Dietz, President of the company; another son, John E. Dietz, who is a Director; Anna Louise Clement, a daughter, and Dietz & McMillan, trustees for another son, Howard J. Dietz. She wishes to have declared void her signature to documents by which her share in the earnings of the company, amounting to about $500,000, was turned over to the children and not to herself.

Under the will of her husband, probated in 1897, there was left to Mrs. Dietz $100,000 in trust, $10,000 outright, and a trust was made of 600 shares of the stock of her husband's company valued at $60,000. She was to receive the dividends on the stock annually.

Mrs. Dietz now alleges that in 1904 she was approached by her sons Frederick and John, her daughter Anna, and the trustees for Howard, who told her that there were $500,000 undivided profits in the treasury, and induced her to sign a document conveying to her daughter and three sons the proportion due to her. In December, 1904, she alleges, a dividend of 340 per cent. was declared, which would have entitled her to $204,000 in certificates of indebtedness, the form in which the payments were made. This, with interest, would now amount to $240,000.

The $204,000, she declares, was divided into four certificates, one going to each of the children. In February, 1905, she says, a dividend of 200 per cent. was declared. On this she was entitled to receive $120,000, which, with interest, now makes a sum of $141,000, and this amount, she alleges, was handled in the same manner as the previous one.

A third dividend was declared, she says, in February, 1908, this time of 180 per cent. Her share would have been $108,000, which, with the interest, would now amount to $135,000.

Mrs. Dietz asserts that she was induced to sign the documents in turn before the declaration of the dividend, without knowing their exact import, and that there is really due to her about $510,000, adding the three large dividends declared upon her stock holdings of $60,000, and interest reckoned at 6 per cent.

BIDDLE BOXES CHAMPION.

Society Pugilist in Two Short Rounds with Jack Johnson.

Special to The New York Times.

PHILADELPHIA, May 17.—A. J. Drexel Biddle, society man, author, poet, all-around athlete, and amateur boxer, added another chapter to his experiences with professionals in the ring to-day by boxing Jack Johnson, the heavyweight champion pugilist of the world. Biddle has boxed with every pugilist of note in the ring to-day excepting James J. Jeffries and Stanley Ketchel.

The bout took place at George Cole's gymnasium, at Merchantville, in the presence of a large number of spectators, the majority of whom were negroes. Johnson is training to meet Jack O'Brien in a six-round bout for $5,000, in this city, Wednesday night.

Yesterday Johnson was invited to visit the home of Biddle in West Walnut Street, where he has a private gymnasium. Johnson sent a message that he was training at Merchantville, where he would be glad to meet Biddle. So the bout was held to-day.

It lasted only two rounds. Johnson is accustomed to rounds of three minutes, but Biddle prefers rounds of just about two. As a result the timekeeper called a halt before the bout was fairly begun. Afterward Johnson said: "Biddle is a strong kid and a fine gentleman."

It was Johnson's first real day of training. He was in fine trim.

TRACY & CO., BROKERS FAIL FOR $1,250,000

Receiver Named for Stock Exchange Firm Which Had Branches in Other Cities.

THE ASSETS ARE $350,000

Outside Business, Including Mr. Tracy's Taxicab Venture, Given as One Cause of the Trouble.

An involuntary petition in bankruptcy was filed yesterday after the Stock Exchange closed against the Stock Exchange firm of Tracy & Co. of 40 Wall Street. There had been no suspension announced on the Exchange, and customers who knew of the firm's troubles had hoped that the crisis would be tided over. The proceedings in the Federal court came as a surprise to the group which had remained in the customers' room to discuss the situation after the close of the market.

Immediately after the news came from the Federal Building William W. Tracy, the only partner in town, went to the office of the Secretary of the Stock Exchange, and after a conference behind closed doors slipped out of a side entrance to avoid the reporters. Judge Hough appointed E. G. Benedict of Robinson, Biddle & Benedict receiver. He will qualify to-day, giving a bond of $50,000.

The creditors on whose petition the receiver in bankrutcy was appointed, represented less than $5,000 of indebtedness, all money received from them by the firm, but it was estimated in the petition that the liabilities are $1,000,000, and the assets are $250,000. Last night, Attorney Hershfield, of Hays, Hershfield & Wolf, counsel for the receiver, added something to the figures, placing the liabilities at $1,250,000, and the assets at $350,000. He said that he had come into the case only yesterday afternoon, and could say little about the firm's affairs, except that he understood that the trouble was caused by outside business interests of the partners rather than stock exchange transactions.

It was said on the Stock Exchange yesterday that the firm's commitments had been small in recent weeks, and it was doubted if they had any considerable debts with Stock Exchange members. Attorney Hershfield confirmed this idea last night. He said that the house had no outstanding liabilities on the Exchange. He added that the firm's business had fallen to small proportions recently. In this connection it was learned that there has been what practically amounted to a run on the firm for the last few weeks, and as the uneasiness among the customers grew the house found difficulty in meeting the demands for balances due. A considerable proportion of the firm's clientele were young men with speculative tendencies, and their accounts had been active. Trading in grain was one of the firm's specialties, carried on through its Chicago office, and it is said that many of its customers made profits in the recent bull movement.

The petition in bankruptcy alleges preferential payments of $2,500 on May 14 to H. G. Gest, and the transfer of stocks and bonds valued at $5,000 to various firms and persons, and complains that the firm had failed to make deliveries of stock and pay money due on stock "pursuant to the rules of the Stock Exchange."

The customers who brought the proceedings are Henry F. Woodward of 314 West Ninety-fourth Street, with a claim of $3,500; W. A. Scott of Elmhurst, with a claim of $307, and W. G. Austin of 410 West End Avenue, with a claim of $1,000.

The outside interests referred to by the attorney for the receiver are generally believed to be the taxicab company promotions, in which Mr. Tracy was active. The firm was largely interested in the promotion of the New York Taxicab Company, and had taxicab interests in other cities. Up to a few months ago Mr. Tracy was Treasurer of the New York Taxicab Company, but after the strike of chauffeurs, which proved costly to the concern, he resigned.

Tracy & Co., which was originally a Chicago house, has a large number of branches, and it has always been more or less of a mystery in the Street where its business came from. The partners are William W. Tracy, the senior member; Frederick W. Parker, the Stock Exchange member, who is in Europe, and Robert D. Covington. Mr. Tracy, who had been the Cashier of the First National Bank of Springfield, Ill., started the business in Chicago in 1893. The New York office was opened as a branch in 1900, and became the principal office in 1904. The present firm was organized in November, 1905, when Frederick W. Parker became a partner.

He was admitted to the Stock Exchange in 1906, taking over the seat of the senior partner, who had joined the Exchange in 1898. Mr. Tracy at that time spent most of his time in Chicago, where the firm had three offices. Other branches were in St. Louis, Detroit, New Haven, Milwaukee, and Louisville, Ky.

Dispatches received last night from the cities in which the branch offices were located indicated that the out-of-town managers had had no inkling of the trouble, in each case the newspaper dispatches giving the first information of the receivership.

MRS. JESUP GIVES $100,000.

Yale Corporation Announces This and Other Gifts at Its May Meeting.

NEW HAVEN, Conn., May 17.—The May meeting of the Yale Corporation today was brief, there being but little business to come before it. Announcement was made of the offer of $100,000 from Mrs. Morris K. Jesup of New York to establish the Morris K. Jesup Professorship of Agriculture in the Yale Forestry School. The gift is a memorial to Mrs. Jesup's husband, who was deeply interested in the problems of forestry conservation.

The offer of Mr. and Mrs. J. W. Daniels of Minneapolis of $50,000 for a memorial gateway to their son, Forrest Leonard Daniels, of the class of 1907, was accepted. The gateway will connect the west end of Durfee Hall with the building which will ultimately be placed on the present Alumni Hall site.

The gift of $50,000 to provide an addition to the School of Fine Arts was accepted as a memorial to the late Richard S. Fellows of the class of 1832, as was the gift of $2,000 from J. I. Downes for an endowment of the library of the department of fine arts.

The graduates announced the nomination of Alfred L. Ripley, 1878, President of the State National Bank of Boston, to succeed himself this June as a Fellow of the corporation.

Three instructors of the university were promoted to assistant professorships.

CARNEGIE SEES KING.

Tells Victor Emmanuel He Feels as If He, Too, Were a Roman.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

ROME, May 17.—Andrew Carnegie is enthusiastic about Rome after his fifteen years of absence, and is sorry previous engagements prevent his remaining longer. The courtesy of the King toward him was exceptional. Victor Emmanuel sent a messenger aboard the Finland when she arrived at Naples informing the American visitor how pleased he would be to receive him, and the conversation between the King and Mr. Carnegie was of the most cordial nature.

His Majesty saw his guest in his own private apartment, going to meet him to the door of the room, and asking him to sit next to him. The conversation was carried on in English. Mr. Carnegie said he felt as though he were himself a Roman, as the traditions, history, civilization, and teachings of Rome belong to the whole world.

"Indeed," Mr. Carnegie remarked, "when Italy is threatened, all men—even those who are not Italians, feel as though something of their own were threatened."

Mr. Carnegie also expressed his admiration of the improvement in education and morals heralded by a King who is a model father, citizen, and sovereign. The conversation also dealt with the recent meeting between King Victor and the Kaiser at Brindisi, affording Mr. Carnegie an opportunity to show the intimate knowledge he possesses of the Kaiser.

Although he was in Rome for only a short time, the visitor managed to catch a glimpse of most of the monuments, showing the greatest energy, and ending his rounds by saying "Really, there's no place like Rome."

SEARCHLIGHT SAVES A LIFE.

Thrown on the River, It Shows Would-Be Suicide and He Is Pulled Out.

With the searchlight of a New Haven Railroad tug holding his drifting body steadily in view when it rose to the surface, William H. Jones, a collector, who had jumped into the Harlem River from the middle span of the Willis Avenue Bridge last night, was rescued by the tug Captain.

Persons on the bridge watched the rescue, and when Capt. John J. Ammond finally pulled the collector into the small boat from which he had put off from his tug on the Bronx side, there were cheers from the watchers. Jones was hurried to the Harlem Hospital by Dr. Mosher. He was suffering from submersion, but will recover.

He lives at 419 East Eighty-fifth Street and works for a downtown firm. Late last night while suffering from nervous strain he climbed over the rail on the middle span of the bridge. Bridge Tender Frederick Moran jumped for him and tried to seize him, but was too late. Jones shot downward forty feet into the river.

Cries were raised that a man had jumped off the bridge, and the searchlight on the tug was thrown under the main span by Mate Charles O'Brien, while Capt. Ammond and two of his crew sprang into the small boat. As the men pulled for the bridge the searchlight brought into relief the body of Jones, which rose to the surface and sank twice before the rescuers were near enough to save him. When Capt. Ammond reached out to drag Jones into the boat, the collector began to struggle, and for nearly a minute he fought against rescue. Capt. Ammond eventually pulled him over the side. At the Harlem Hospital it was said he was suffering from alcoholism.

MISS WEBSTER A NEAR-JUROR.

Had to Report in Court, but Justice Dugro Excused Her.

In spite of strong Suffragette influence, which had been brought to bear in the interim, Miss Jean Webster, author of "The Four Pools' Mystery" and other stories, who, as told in THE TIMES, was drawn last week to serve as a Supreme Court juror, reluctantly made an entry into Justice Dugro's courtroom yesterday.

She had done her level best to keep away. Frantic appeals on her behalf had been made at the office of the Commissioner of Jurors. There her lawyers were told to reread the subpoena, which summoned "Jean Webster, author." They already knew, as Miss Webster did, that the subpoena left at her home at West Tenth Street said that it would be useless to appeal to the Commissioner of Jurors.

"But she's a woman, and your office has been misled by her name Jean," suggested the lawyer.

"We have no legal evidence that she is a woman," was the reply. "Men drawn for jurors are slick with excuses. Besides, we have no authority. As the subpoena says, a juror can be excused only in court by the Justice."

Then Justice Dugro's clerk was sought. He said he would lay the matter before the Justice, but that Miss Webster would have to appear in court. When she appeared in Justice Dugro's courtroom on the third floor of the County Court House the clerk showed her to a seat within the rail. When the proper time came the Clerk called the roll. Fifty men and Miss Webster answered "here." Finally the Clerk told all those who had legal excuses to hold up their hands. Miss Webster's hand went up with a majority of the fifty. The gray-haired Clerk went to Miss Webster first.

"The Justice was going to let you serve if he could find a warrant in law," the Clerk told her. "The last time I spoke to him he hadn't found any law on the subject."

So as Miss Webster mounted the few steps before the bench she had a notion that she might serve after all. Justice Dugro took the subpoena and then smiled.

"Are you Jean Webster?" he asked.

"Yes," replied Miss Webster.

"Excused," said the Justice. Whereupon the Clerk and the court attendants offered the freedom of the court to the writer.

"Wouldn't you like to stay and see a trial?" they asked.

For the rest of the morning Miss Webster heard the troubles of a man who was suing his employer because a brick dropped on his toe.

MRS. TAFT STRICKEN BY NERVOUS ATTACK

Taken Ill on Steamer Trip with the President and Carried Back to White House.

HER SON IS OPERATED ON

Charlie's Attack of Tonsilitis Worried Her—President Says There Is No Cause for Alarm.

WASHINGTON, May 17.—Mrs. Taft, suffering from a slight nervous breakdown, was taken ill to-day while on her way from this city to Mount Vernon on the yacht Sylph with a party of friends, and was hurried back to the White House.

It was said at the White House to-night that there is no cause for alarm, and that Mrs. Taft will probably be all right again in a few days. She was unable to be present to-night at an official dinner at the White House.

President Taft to-night himself prepared the following statement in regard to Mrs. Taft's condition:

"Mrs. Taft is suffering from a slight nervous attack. She attended the eye, ear and throat hospital this morning where Charlie Taft underwent a slight operation on his throat. She was with him for several hours. She then started with the President and a small party of friends on the Sylph for Mount Vernon.

"The excitement, heat and exertion were too much for Mrs. Taft's nerves, and the party was obliged to turn back before reaching Alexandria. Mrs. Taft was quickly carried to the White House.

"The doctor says that after a few days of complete rest, Mrs. Taft may be able to resume her social duties. Dr. Delaney is in attendance.

"Mrs. More, Mrs. Taft's sister, acted as hostess at the official dinner at the White House to-night."

Charlie Taft was operated on for tonsilitis. The operation took place at the Episcopal Eye, Ear, and Throat Hospital, and it was said to-night that the patient was doing well. President Taft left the White House early in the afternoon, slipping away so quietly that his absence was not noted for some time. He entered the White House automobile unobserved and was driven to the hospital, where Charlie, Mrs. Taft, and the physicians were awaiting him. He remained with his son during the operation, which was entirely successful.

Mrs. Taft's illness probably will not interfere with the President's trip to Petersburg, Va., and Charlotte, N. C., on Wednesday and Thursday of this week, but Mrs. Taft will not be able to accompany him. She had already decided, after visiting the hospital this morning, to abandon the trip, as she felt she should remain here with her son.

PRESCRIPTION BY WIRELESS.

Doctor on Board the Amerika Answers Call for Help from Philadelphia Patient

Special to The New York Times.

PHILADELPHIA, Penn., May 17.—Although Dr. Otho Marberg of New York has been at sea since last Saturday, he sent cheering advice by wireless to his patient, Mrs. T. P. Felman of Chicago, at the Bellevue-Stratford, this morning.

At 8:50 o'clock Mrs. Felman sent the following message to Dr. Marberg in care of the liner Amerika:

"I am faint. Sinking feeling about the heart. Numbness. What shall I do?

"T. P. FELMAN."

The answer flashed back into the wireless station in the tower of Bellevue-Stratford at 9:05 o'clock. It was:

"Follow diet prescribed before sailing. All will be O. K. O. MARBERG."

Mrs. Felman paid $10.30 to the operator and said she felt much better. A short time later she boarded a train for Chicago.

During the Winter Mrs. Felman lived in New York to be treated by Dr. Marberg for acute indigestion. Saturday Dr. Marberg discharged his patient, gave her a strict diet to follow, and then boarded the Amerika. Mrs. Felman came to Philadelphia Saturday night and registered at the Bellevue-Stratford.

AFTER HITCHCOCK'S LOTS.

Creditors Seek to Get Land Actor Owned Which Was Transferred.

The several transfers of two lots of land in Great Neck made by Actor Raymond Hitchcock is just now receiving the attention of Henry W. Pollock, the trustee in bankruptcy who was appointed to take care of the interests of Mr. Hitchcock's creditors. Mr. Pollock filed notice of an action against Flora Zabelle, wife of Hitchcock, yesterday in the County Clerk's office at Mineola, L. I. The two lots now stand in her name.

The transfer of the lots began in October, 1907, just before Mr. Hitchcock was tried on charges made by several young girls. At that time Mr. Hitchcock transferred the property to Henry W. Savage and Mr. Savage's wife, Alice.

In October, 1908, the property was transferred to Mr. Hitchcock's wife. So Mr. Pollock is now proceeding against Mrs. Hitchcock to get possession of the two lots for Mr. Hitchcock's creditors.

CHANGES IN PLAYERS' BOARD.

Daniel Frohman and William Bispham Not Renominated.

Daniel Frohman and William Bispham are no longer members of the Board of Directors of The Players. Mr. Bispham was a great friend of Edwin Booth, founder of the club.

At an election held yesterday afternoon a new board, consisting of John D. Laidlaw, Dr. John H. Finley, and Edwin Milton Royle were chosen for the coming year. John Drew was re-elected President and H. B. Hodges Secretary.

Mr. Hodges said last night that there had been no friction or unpleasantness over the election.

"Both Mr. Frohman and Mr. Bispham sent letters to the Nominating Committee declining to become Directors again," said Mr. Hodges. "They said they thought they had served long enough in that capacity, and believed that new blood should be infused, so they were not renominated."

Absolute cleanliness and purity are two strong points in favor of "Salada" Tea.—Adv.

SHAW ON H. G. WELLS.

Says He Could Never Survive Meeting Such Another Man.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, May 17.—H. G. Wells, the novelist, who is also a Socialist, has been finding fault with some of his fellow-Socialists. To their rescue now comes Bernard Shaw, with the following characteristic onslaught:

"Take all the sins Wells has ascribed to his colleagues—the touchiness of Hyndman, the dogmatism of Quelch, Blatchford's preoccupation with his own methods, Grayson's irresponsibility—add every other petulance of which a spoiled child or a successful operatic tenor is capable, multiply the total by ten, square the result, cube it, raise it to the millionth power, and square it again, and you will still fall short of the truth about Wells.

"I never met such a chap. I could not survive meeting such another."

Chicago Cabmen Using a New Method in Labor Struggle.

CHICAGO, May 17.—Photographing of non-union carriage drivers was a feature of the cabmen's strike which developed here to-day. Ten photographers were posted at various cemeteries to snapshot men who had taken the places of strikers.

JAPANESE SEALER SEIZED.

Crew in Jail at Juneau for Cruising Within Three-Mile Limit.

JUNEAU, May 17.—The United States revenue cutter Rush arrived to-day from Sitka with the Captain and crew of the Japanese sealing schooner Kaisen, which was seized in Redoubt Bay on May 4 for cruising within the three-mile limit. The alleged poachers were taken to the Federal jail. The skins seized on the schooner will be held pending a jury's verdict.

All the evidence against the Japanese is the testimony of a number of Indians who told the authorities that they discovered the Japanese schooner inside the fishing limits.

LAW AIMED AT BLACK HAND.

Hughes Signs Bill Increasing the Penalty for Extortion.

ALBANY, May 17.—Gov. Hughes to-day signed the bill of Assemblyman Jackson increasing the penalty for extortion or blackmail from five to fifteen years. The measure is aimed at the Black Hand and similar organizations.

The Governor also signed the bill of the Senate Finance Committee abolishing the office of Commissioner of Quarantine of the Port of New York and the Board of Commissioners of Quarantine, and transferring their powers and duties to the Health Officer of the Port of New York after June 1 next. This legislation was recommended by Gov. Hughes.

West Hudson Club Plans an Aeroplane Contest for End of May.

A prize of $1,000 for a mile flight is offered by the West Hudson Aero Club for an aeroplane contest at Arlington, N. J., on May 29 and 31. The conditions require the operator to demonstrate the ability of the machine to rise and descend and circle to the right and left at the will of the operator. The competitor who covers the mile in the shortest time will receive the prize.

The competitors are not yet definitely known. It had been expected that Glenn H. Curtiss would have one of his new machines, being built at Hammondsport, N. Y., ready for the tests, but word was received from him yesterday that they would not be ready until the middle of June.

The Silver Dart will not be brought down from Baddeck, N. S., as its motor has been removed and is being used by J. A. D. McCurdy, the Silver Dart's designer, for other work. Morris Bokor and Frederick Schneider, who have been trying out their aeroplanes at Morris Park, are planning to enter the contest, and two or three Jersey aeroplanists have been at work for some time on original ideas. They intend to get into the air at the West Hudson carnival.

Capt. Thomas S. Baldwin will do some flying in a new dirigible balloon, and half a dozen members of the Junior Aero Club have entered kites for the kite competition.

WELDS COPPER AND STEEL.

Lowe Smith Says He Has Found a Process for Combining Two Metals.

DYSART, Iowa, May 17.—Matthew Wilson says he has invented a process of welding copper and steel. He also says he has welded two pieces of copper as solidly as if they were molded.

He exhibits in his shop here a hammer, the handle of which is of copper and the face of steel. He can be seen pounding an anvil any day with this hammer. He says his process of welding is the first in the history of the world to prove successful.

PLATTS SUED AGAIN TO FORCE BOOKS OPEN

U. S. Express Co. Stockholder Asks a Peremptory Writ to Inspect Company's Accounts.

WOMAN DETECTIVE IN CASE

Served Papers on E. T. Platt When Others Failed — Mismanagement Charged—$80,000 in Salaries to the Platts.

An attempt to compel the Directors of the United States Express Company to call a meeting of shareholders or to throw the company into a receiver's hands is now being made in this city, entirely independent of the suit brought by Benjamin F. Spraker of Canajoharie for the same purpose. This became known yesterday, when an application was made to Supreme Court Justice Guy for an order to compel Edward T. Platt, Treasurer of the express company, and son of former Senator Thomas C. Platt, to allow an examination of the company's books by an expert accountant in the employ of John L. Dudley, a retired merchant and shareholder in the United States Express Company.

The application is an outgrowth of a suit begun here by counsel for Mr. Dudley and other shareholders seeking to either dissolve the express company or compel its managers to call a shareholders' meeting which, it is said, would result without doubt in the ousting of the Platt family from control. The allegations in the suit are that the funds and properties of the express company have been fraudulently used by the Directors who are styled "a self-perpetuating body," that the company's affairs have been mismanaged, and that the company is facing destruction because of the "waste and bad management" of the Platts and those allied with them. It is alleged that while the Directors own less than one-half of 1 per cent. of the company's shares, they have possession of $10,000,000 worth of the company's property and have paid no attention to the demands for a meeting of the shareholders by which the majority shareholders could have a voice in the management.

Gross Mismanagement Charged.

It is charged in the papers that the Directors have failed to discharge the duties of their office in an "honest manner and have allowed the money, property, and effects of the company to be stolen, wasted, squandered, and dissipated." It is charged that the Platts and their immediate family have been drawing in salaries and in other ways about $80,000 a year from the company, while their shareholdings, prior to a few months ago, when the American and Adams Express Companies claimed to have turned over their holdings of United States Express Company stock to Frank H. Platt, was only 1,770 shares, out of a total of 100,000 shares.

The present share holding by members of the Platt family, according to the company's books, is 21,340 shares. Of this 19,000 shares were acquired a little while ago by Frank H. Platt from the two rival express companies. Prior to that acquisition the income to the Platts from their shares of express company stock, based on the dividend rate of 4 per cent., would have been only $7,080 a year, while it is asserted that their revenue and the revenue of their associates from the company in salaries and other means was more than ten times that amount.

When the papers in the suit brought by Mr. Dudley were made public yesterday the list of shareholders in the United States Express Company was made known for the first time. This list had been obtained by Louis H. Newkirk of 18 Wall Street and Frederick R. Sanborn of 49 Wall Street, counsel for Mr. Dudley, after several demands for such a list had been made upon the company. It showed that ex-Senator Platt, President of the company, has only 100 shares of express company stock in his own name, and that his son, Frank H. Platt, who is counsel for the company, is the largest shareholder of record, with 20,830 shares to his credit.

Woman Detective Serves Papers.

It also came out yesterday that papers in the suit brought by Mr. Dudley were served on Edward T. Platt by a female detective on Friday last after an ineffectual effort had been made to serve Mr. Platt at his office downtown. A representative of Mr. Sanborn's office went to 2 Rector Street, the United States Express Company Building, to find Mr. Platt and was told that he was in but would not see the man. Three detectives, two men and one woman—Miss Faith R. Saunders—were then delegated to serve the papers on Mr. Platt. They waited until late in the afternoon, when Mr. Platt went to his apartment in the Osborne, at 205 West Fifty-seventh Street. Miss Saunders sent word to Mr. Platt that a lady would like to see him. When he went to see who it was the papers in the suit were served on him. This is asserted in an affidavit by Miss Saunders, which appears as a record in the suit.

The list of shareholders made public yesterday contains about 1,600 names. It shows that out of that number of shareholders only 233 own 100 shares or more. Many of the shareholders live abroad. Members of the Platt family and Directors of the company appear in the stock list as follows:

Frank H. Platt, 20,830 shares; Thomas C. Platt, 100; Edward T. Platt, 100; Hannah A. Platt, care of Second National Bank, 10; Angenlina Schuyler Platt, 150 First Street, Troy, N. Y., 92; Chauncey H. Crosby, 100; Francis Lynde Stetson, 100, and Levi C. Weir, 100.

Other of the larger shareholders are:

C. J. Spencer, 2,800 shares; Melville Titus, 2,000; Metropolitan Life Insurance Company, 1,000; Ida C. Potts, Livingston, N. Y., 1,000; Eva S. Cochran, Yonkers, 1,000; Robert Gibson, 1,600; trustees for the estate of George C. Lake, 1,150; Delbert Dine Hart, Hudson, N. Y., 525; Sebastian D. Lawrence, New London, Conn., 500; Mackey & Co., 700; J. G. Rowe, Philadelphia, 430; Henry Steers, 17 Battery Place, 500; James R. Steers, 700; Nina H. Whitehouse, 43 East Seventy-second Street, 766; estate of Catherine McKie Thayer, 500; Roy L. Zabriski, 500, and Edward Tompkins, Oakland, Cal., 500.

The complaint in the action states that Mr. Dudley is acting in his own behalf "and in behalf of all other stockholders similarly situated of the United States Express Company." The suit is directed against Thomas C. Platt, individually and as President of the United States Express Company; Edward T. Platt, Francis Lynde Stetson, Frank H. Platt, Levi C. Weir, James C. Fargo, Chauncey H. Crosby, a son-in-law of ex-Senator Platt, and Vice President and General Manager of the express company.

It is set forth in the complaint that the majority of stockholders desire a meeting and election of Directors, but that they can not obtain the signatures of two-thirds of the shareholders to a demand for such a meeting. This is the same allegation which was made in the Spraker suit brought in Montgomery County. Many phases of the suit brought here, however, differ in the main from the Montgomery County action, and it was stated yesterday that Mr. Dudley has no connection with the Hait and Bannister Committee, which for the last two years has been seeking to compel a meeting of shareholders.

One of the assertions made in the complaint here is that the officials of the express company have been paying themselves exorbitant salaries as well as salaries for their services for Directors, and that the Directors received $3,600 a year. The company's Directors have replied to the complaint through their counsel—O'Brien, Boardman, Platt & Littleton—and, with the exception of Mr. Stetson, all deny the allegations and say they did not receive salaries as Directors. Mr. Stetson, however, admits in his reply that he received a salary as Director. He also explains how he came to go to the Directorate of the United States Express Company. He says that he became a Director of the United States Express Company on April 18, 1901, the same day that Mr. Weir and Mr. Fargo entered the board of the company. He says in his reply that he was invited to become a Director at a salary of $3,600 a year, and that on the same day he went into the open market and bought 100 shares of United States Express Company stock to enable him to qualify.

Mr. Stetson says that he believes he was asked to become a Director so that the company might have the benefit of his knowledge of railroad and transportation officials, which knowledge he believes was regarded by the express company as considerable. This knowledge and intimacy with railroad and transportation officials, his reply goes on to say, was desired by the express company to "offset any influence of the other two gentlemen on the board." The "other two gentlemen" are supposed to have been Mr. Weir and Mr. Fargo, Presidents of the United States Express Company's rival concerns. Mr. Stetson goes on to state that he "executed his duties faithfully, and received the special thanks of the company." From his experience and judgment, he says he believes that it was to the positive advantage of the company to have Messrs. Weir and Fargo on the Board of Directors. He says, too, that from his observation the results were to the "utmost benefit to the company," and that he does not believe Mr. Fargo and Mr. Weir used their connection with the other companies for anything but the best interests of the United States Express Company.

The original answers of the express company's officers to the papers in the Dudley suit had been made when a request was made to Lawyers Sanborn and Newkirk by the lawyers representing the express company to withdraw the answers and amend them. This request was denied by Mr. Dudley's lawyers.

James C. Fargo, President of the American Express Company, in his answer admits that he was made a Director in the United States Express Company on April 18, 1901, but says he is no longer a Director, and that he drew no salary as a Director, and that, so far as he knew, none of the other Directors drew salaries as such. He admits that his company bought United States Express Company stock. No answer in the suit has been made as yet by President Weir of the Adams Express Company. With that exception, the answers are all in.

Taking the answers as a whole, they deny refusing to call a meeting of shareholders for any other reason than that a request for such a meeting had never been made by two-thirds of the shareholders. They deny that the company's capital has been impaired or that the interests of Mr. Fargo and Mr. Weir were hostile to the United States Express Company.

It is set forth that Mr. Fargo until recently represented 10,000 shares of stock on the United States Express Company board and that his company sold it to Frank H. Platt; that Mr. Weir represented 9,060 shares of stock as President of the Adams Express Company, but that the shares were sold recently to Frank H. Platt.

General denials are made of any negligence or misconduct or delinquency, and it is also denied that refusals have been made to give any information concerning the company. The answers refer to a circular issued by the Directors, which purported to be an excerpt from the report of the United States Express Company to the Inter-State Commerce Commission for the year ended June 30, 1908. This showed, according to the complaint, that the business done during the year amounted to $16,983,638.18, while operating expenses were $16,945,903.54, leaving a net profit of $37,734.64. Included in the operating expenses are these items: "Salaries, $3,685,052.84," and "general salaries, $1,321,930.16," making a total of $5,006,983, nearly one-third of the operating expenses. Those who are bringing the suit here want to know what the difference is between "salaries" and "general salaries," also why the salary list should be so large in comparison with the total operating expenses.

The report to the Inter-State Commerce Commission also shows that during the same year the revenue from the United States Realty Company, all the stock of which is owned by the express company, amounted to $106,264.43. This is considerably more than the profits from the express company business, and Mr. Dudley cites this in his complaint. The total assets of the company in the report to the Inter-State Commerce Commission are given as $13,383,113.87, and the item of equipment is placed at $1,000,000.

The charge is made that the Platts and their friends have surrendered business to rival companies; that the business on the Lake Shore and Michigan Southern, the New York, Lake Erie & Western, and the Chicago & Alton had been surrendered to the express company's rivals. The assertion is made that the general policy of the management has been such that if no change is made it must result in a cessation of dividends and impairment to the capital and a creation of obligations which will be binding on the shareholders individually. Regarding the Directors the complaint says: "They have denied to shareholders their rights and refused to allow a majority of shareholders to bring about a meeting, and have used money, resources, and time of the company to further their own interests and to strengthen their control."

A list of the dividends paid by the company since 1893 is given in the complaint, which then says: "To pay these dividends they have impaired the capital of the company."

When application for a peremptory writ of mandamus to compel Edward T. Platt to permit an examination of the company's books was made yesterday before Justice Guy, a representative of O'Brien, Boardman, Platt & Littleton asked for an adjournment of a week on the ground that the papers had only been served on Mr. Platt on Friday evening, and that there had not been sufficient time to prepare papers in opposition to the motion. It was urged that eight days' notice be given. Justice Guy adjourned the matter until Thursday next. Mr. Sanborn, who appeared for Mr. Dudley, told the Justice that time had been wasted by Mr. Platt in trying to evade service of the papers. Mr. Platt's counsel denied that there had been an attempt at evasion, and that if the person who had the papers to serve had gone to the fourteenth floor of 2 Rector Street, instead of the twelfth floor, he could have found Mr. Platt.

Frank H. Platt, counsel for the express company, said yesterday that the Sprake suit in Montgomery County was, he believed, a repetition of the efforts made by the Hatt and Bannister Committee to force a shareholders' meeting.

"While this case will be fought," he said, "we do not attach any importance to the matter." Mr. Platt said there was no truth in the charge that the United States Express Company has been turning over business to its rivals. He said the company had allowed the Hatt and Bannister Committee to go over its books, and to ascertain the company's financial condition.

Vice President and General Manager Crosby had this to say:

"If those charges which have been made are true, some of us ought to be wearing prison stripes. But they are not true. I am not much alarmed. I have many good friends throughout the country who, I am sure, do not believe these charges. There are some, not friendly, who perhaps do believe them.

"There are no secrets about this business. The books are2always open. We will have something to say when the proper time comes. There should be some redress against those who are attacking the company and its officers, and I am sure steps for such redress will be taken. That, however, is a question for the lawyers. I am not a lawyer."

DEPEW DEFENDS PROTECTIVE TARIFF

Denies That Republican Party Is Pledged to Revision Downward —Urges Duty on Petroleum.

OPPOSES AN INCOME TAX

Senator Sutherland Also Speaks Against Bailey's Plan — Lumber and Hides to be Left to End for Trading.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, May 17.—No progress in the tariff discussion was made in the seven hours of to-day's session of the Senate. The greater part of the day was taken up in set speeches by Senator Depew and Senator Sutherland of Utah—both Republicans, and both apparently speaking with the approval of Senator Aldrich.

While Senator Sutherland confined himself to a detailed speech against an income tax answering the arguments of Senator Bailey, Mr. Depew's speech was a general defense of the high protective principle, though he, too, opposed the Texas Senator's proposed amendment. Mrs. Depew occupied the reserved gallery during the address of her husband, while those Senators whom the heat drove from the Senate chamber crowded around the door of the cloak room, listening attentively, while they puffed comfortably at cigars.

Senator Depew followed the example of Senators Aldrich and Lodge in denying that the party was pledged to revision downward, and he declared that his experience in traveling over the country led him to believe that there was no popular demand for such revision. The question before Congress, he said, was simply to adjust the duties to changed business conditions and development.

He put himself on record in endorsement of Gen. Hancock's declaration that the tariff was a local issue.

A duty on crude petroleum, argued the senior Senator from New York, will be to the advantage of the 500,000 independent owners of oil lands. The fear of aiding Standard Oil he described as an old "bugaboo" that is not borne out by the facts.

He thought the committee had had better sources of information upon which to base a judgment than it was possible for individual members to obtain.

The speaker contended that opponents of the pending measure have lost sight of changes in the cost of production. He said that from 1860 to 1900 wages had more than doubled and that they had advanced 25 per cent. since the Dingley law had been enacted. He also undertook to show that the hours of labor had been greatly reduced and that, "inasmuch as in every production labor is from 60 to 90 per cent. of the cost, we have thus increased our cost from 25 to 50 per cent." He declared that there had been no parallel advance in European countries.

Mr. Depew also discussed the iron and steel schedule, saying in part, "even if it is true that the United States Steel Corporation made $9 in excess of any fair and legitimate return, even if it is true that the United States Steel Corporation can make iron $2 a ton cheaper than the independent companies, there would still have been for the independent companies $7 of profit in addition to a legitimate return upon their capital. As a matter of fact they got no return at all."

Mr. Depew took issue with the advocates of an income tax, declaring that such a tax is the most direct possible attack upon the protective system and asserting that the object and aim of the speeches in advocacy of the tax are to have the Senate reverse the Supreme Court.

The New York Senator concluded with a plea for speedy action upon the tariff, saying, "in all the phenomenal times of prosperity of the past none of them equals the present in its opportunities and its promise."

"I am not a protectionist in spots," said Mr. Sutherland of Utah, in beginning an address in support of the triff bill as reported by the Finance Committee, and in opposition to the addition of an income tax provision. If, he said, there was any question about the amount of duty to be levied on a particular article, he preferred to solve it by having the duty a little too high rather than too low. He could not advocate taxing the products of his own State and deny protection to the products of any other State.

Speaking of the income tax, Mr. Sutherland said the framers of the Constitution had contemplated having the Federal Government obtain its revenues by imposing taxes upon a class of subjects which the States, either under the Constitution, or by common consent, did not or could not tax to the fullest extent that would be possible.

Any effort, he said, to impose taxes upon objects that States tax is bound to result in confusion or double taxation. Taking that view he regarded the income tax as not a proper means for raising revenue for the general Government.

After the two speeches debate reverted to the cutlery schedules. Just before adjournment the Senate leaders seemed anxious for a vote, but Senator La Follette then got the floor and held it until after the usual hour for adjournment.

A feature of the day's work was an amendment offered by Senator Owen, reducing all duties in the pending bill as it will stand when adopted at the rate of 5 per cent. of the duty annually for the next ten years. The amendment carried a proviso that the rate should under no circumstances fall below the difference in cost at home and abroad.

A fight similar to that waged in the House will probably be fought in the Senate over watches and watch springs. The method of counting and classifying jewels in the works and the requirement that the name of the maker be engraved on all the parts has roused opposition that will probably result in prolonged technical debate in the upper house.

It is the thought now that the Senate committee will pass over the lumber schedule when that is reached and save it for the last. Lumber and perhaps hides are the schedules that can be best used by the leaders for trading and clubbing recalcitrant members.

MAGISTRATE DIED PENNILESS.

Tammany Leaders Raising a Fund for James J. Walsh's Widow.

It became known yesterday, through the announcement of the raising of a fund for the widow and children of Magistrate James J. Walsh, who died from neuritis last week, that the Magistrate was practically penniless. Prominent Tammany Hall men have raised $5,000 for Mrs. Walsh, the list being headed by Charles F. Murphy with $1,000. The Board of City Magistrates gave $1,000.

Mr. Walsh had a good salary, but that was his only income, and he always spent his money freely and yielded cheerfully to the financial demands that crowd upon a Tammany district leader. Moreover, he carried no life insurance. About twenty years ago he sought insurance, but was rejected because of a heart lesion, which always debarred him as a life risk. His death was hastened by the heart weakness.

Suspended After 34 Years' Teaching.

Alexander Musgrave, for thirty-four years a teacher in New Jersey schools and for the last eighteen years connected with School 3 in Hoboken, of which he has been Principal, has been suspended by Supt. A. J. Demarest. The latter notified the Board of Education of his action yesterday, and said that the suspension was for cause, directly or indirectly due to alcoholism.

AGAINST POTOMAC CONCERTS.

Taft Criticised for Taking Marine Band from Capitol—Men May Lose by It.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, May 17.—The scheme of the President and Mrs. Taft for Marine Band concerts in Potomac Park on Wednesday and Saturday afternoons has brought about a peculiar complication, the most direct effect of which, if the plan is continued, is to lessen the pay of the members of the band $4 a month.

Ever since the order was issued which sent the Marine Band to Potomac Park for its Wednesday and Saturday afternoon performances there has been more or less criticism of the change on the part of those who formerly could hear the band without trouble. Criticism is made that the concerts are of benefit chiefly to those who own automobiles or carriages. The objection to this arrangement has been so widespread and so vigorous that both the President and Mrs. Taft have received anonymous letters of protest.

The complaint is that they have taken the band away from the poorer people. There is no doubt that the concerts have been a social success. Mrs. Taft's friends have attended them in numbers, and Mrs. Taft herself has not missed one of them.

Gen. Elliott, in command of the marines, points out the fact that the band members get extra pay for playing at the Capitol.

SMITHSONIAN LOSES SUIT.

Institution Fails to Get Provisional Bequest Made by Wallace C. Andrews.

WASHINGTON, May 17.—By a decision rendered in the Supreme Court of the United States to-day the Smithsonian Institution of this city lost a suit which, if it had been decided in favor of the Institution, would have added considerably to its funds. The case was that of the Smithsonian Institution versus C. C. St. John, executor of the estate of the late Wallace C. Andrews of New York. Andrews and his wife were burned to death in their home in 1899.

Andrews, once prominently connected with the Standard Oil Company, made a will providing that after the death of his wife his estate should be used for the establishment of an industrial school for girls in Lake County, Ohio, with the alternative provision that the money should go to the Smithsonian Institution if the plans for the school should fail. As it could not be determined whether Mr. Andrews or his wife died first, the institution put in a claim for the property, but the Supreme Court of New York decided against it.

The institution then appealed to the Federal court, with the result that the case was dismissed. The name of Chief Justice Fuller, as Chancellor of the Smithsonian Institution, appeared as a party to the suit which was finally decided to-day by the court over which he presides. The Chief Justice did not participate in the decision and the result was announced by Justice Brewer.

TAFT GETS ALASKA GOLD KEY.

Delegation Presents Him Instrument to Open Seattle Exposition.

WASHINGTON, May 17.—President Taft is to open the Yukon-Alaska Exposition at Seattle June 1, with a splendid gold telegraphic key presented to him to-day by Secretary Ballinger and the Congressional delegation from Washington. The key is mounted on Alaska marble and is ornamented with twenty-two handsome gold nuggets from Alaska. The key will be connected with the White House telegraph wires, and the President will touch it on the day of the opening, thereby setting in motion the machinery of the exposition.

"CONGRESS CAN GO TO."

Alleged Response Made by Engineer Department to Request for a Report.

WASHINGTON, May 17.—"Congress can go to hell. We will report when we get ready." This, said Mr. Clark (Missouri) in the House of Representatives to-day, was the alleged response given by the engineer department of the army when asked for information regarding the result of the examination made by the engineer officers into the practicability and desirability of constructing and maintaining a navigable channel 14 feet deep and of suitable width from St. Louis to the mouth of the Mississippi River.

The House refused to call for the report from the Secretary of War.

CANNON HITS AT ROOSEVELT.

Consents to Inquiry Into Coal and Steel Merger Investigation.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, May 17.—Speaker Cannon to-day held the House in session long enough to adopt a resolution offered by Representative Burleson of Texas asking the Attorney General what steps, if any, he or his assistants had taken to investigate the merger of the Tennessee Coal and Iron Company with the United States Steel Corporation during the panic of 1907. Members of Congress see in the Speaker's action a parting shot at the retiring Roosevelt Administration.

The general impression is that nothing has been done under the present Administration tending to dissolve or inquire into the legality of the merger.

MRS. PECK WINS LIBEL SUIT.

Temperance Advocate's Portrait Was Published in a Whisky Advertisement.

WASHINGTON, May 17.—The case of Elizabeth Peck versus The Chicago Tribune Company, involving a charge of libel by Mrs. Peck against The Tribune because of the publication of her portrait as part of an advertisement indorsing a certain brand of whisky, was decided by the Supreme Court of the United States to-day in favor of Mrs. Peck and against the company, Justice Holmes announcing the decision of the court.

Mrs. Peck is a resident of Iowa and a temperance advocate. Her picture was printed over another name, that of a nurse, and she was quoted in strong indorsement of whisky.

It was contended that the damage, if any, was nominal. Justice Holmes held, however, that she had a right to prove her case. He also held that even though the publication had been by mistake the publisher was not relieved from responsibility.

Senate Confirms Straus Nomination.

WASHINGTON, May 17.—The Senate to-day confirmed nominations, as follows: Oscar S. Straus of New York, former Secretary of Commerce and Labor, to be Ambassador to Turkey; William L. Rockhill of the District of Columbia, former Minister to China, to be Ambassador to Russia; Charles Denby of Indiana, to be Consul General at Vienna; Amos P. Wilder of Wisconsin, at Shanghai, and William A. Rublee of Wisconsin at Hongkong.

Army Balloon Travels Twenty Miles.

ANNAPOLIS, Md., May 17.—United States Signal Corps balloon No. 11, which started from Washington shortly before noon to-day, descended at Harwood, about twelve miles from here, at 1:21 this afternoon, after having covered an estimated distance of twenty miles. Lieut. Lahm and his companions aimed to descend here, but as the direction of the wind was such that the balloon would have been carried over Chesapeake Bay it was decided to land at Harwood.

HARVARD TEACHER MISSING.

Dr. Hutchinson Disappears from New England Sanitarium.

MELROSE, Mass., May 17.—The police began a search to-night for Dr. Percy A. Hutchinson, instructor in English at Harvard University, who disappeared from the New England Sanitarium leaving a note saying that he was going to commit suicide. Dr. Hutchinson had been at the sanitarium several months undergoing treatment for a nervous disorder. Late to-day when an attendant went to his room the absence of the patient was discovered.

Dr. Hutchinson has a wife and family in Cambridge. His age is about 30.

NICARAGUA SHOWS HOSTILITY TO US

Envoy Here on Peaceful Mission, but Government Press Urges Alliance with Japan.

TALK OF BUILDING CANAL

Price for Japanese Aid in Balking Our "Imperialistic Advance"—Washington Smiles at the Attack.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, May 17.—While Señor Pedro Gonzales, special Commissioner from Nicaragua to undertake the settlement of the vexed Emery claim, was assuring President Taft at the White House to-day of his Government's sincere desire "to maintain and strengthen the friendship which the two countries have preserved so cordially and for so long," diplomats were smiling diplomatically behind their hands. For there arrived in Washington to-day a translation of a fiery editorial in the official newspaper of the Nicaraguan Government condemning the United States and advocating an offensive and defensive alliance with Japan, aimed against this country.

The attack appeared in the Diario de Nicaragua which is published in Managua, the capital. It bitterly assailed both Honduras and San Salvador for entertaining the American fleet under Rear Admiral Swinburne some time ago, and declared that the United States was endeavoring to become the master of Central America, with a view to enslaving its peoples. As a means of balking Washington's imperialistic advance, the paper advocates an alliance with Japan, and urges the dispatch of a commission to Tokio to draw up the articles, and offer Japan the right to construct a canal through Nicaraguan territory.

The editorial would not have attracted attention had it appeared in any paper other than that recognized as the official organ of the Zelayan Government. The State Department, of course, will pay no attention to the matter. Among those knowing the situation, President Taft inspired still another smile when, in replying to Señor Gonzales's felicitous speech with one equally felicitous, he closed with the hope that the Special Commissioner's "short sojourn here might be agreeable."

In company with Minister Espinoza, the Special Commissioner called at the State Department and had a long conference with Secretary Knox and Assistant Secretary Wilson. The department declines to discuss the methods under which the negotiations are being pressed, or the manner in which they are being conducted. It was stated, however, that the prospects are bright for an early settlement of the dispute.

HOLLINGSWORTH'S ATTACKS.

Amuses House with Editorials on His Attitude Toward Jefferson Davis.

WASHINGTON, May 17.—"An ass of the first magnitude," "perhaps one of Sherman's bums who robbed defenseless men and women," "contemptible little whelps," "a political nonentity from Ohio," "a pale-faced luminary," "a pusillanimous pigmy from Ohio."

These were some of the characterizations of Mr. Hollingsworth of Ohio, in editorials, which he had read in the House of Representatives to-day as the basis of a question of privilege affecting his resolution recently offered protesting against the portrait of Jefferson Davis on the silver service to be presented to the battleship Mississippi. These editorials accused him of "waving the bloody shirt," and appeared in The Daily Clarion Ledger of Jackson, Miss., April 30; The Southern Sentinel, Ripley, Miss., May 6; The Shreveport Caucasian, May 4, and one other paper, name not given.

The reading of the editorials caused a great commotion and at times moved the members to great laughter.

Finally Messrs. Bartlett (Ga.) and Fitzgerald (N. Y.) objected to further "lumbering up the Record," and demanded that the Speaker rule on the question of privilege.

In an elaborate opinion Speaker Cannon held that Mr. Hollingsworth had not been attacked in his representative capacity, and he was not permitted to proceed further.

SMITH TELLS OF TAX METHODS

Commissioner Shows Wide Diversity in Corporate Taxation in New England

WASHINGTON, May 17.—A report dealing with State taxation of manufacturing, mercantile, transportation, and transmission corporations was made public to-day by Herbert Knox Smith, Commissioner of Corporations. That part of the report transmitted to President Taft concerns particularly the six New England States. It is expected that additional parts dealing with other groups of States will be published later. The report says, in part:

> The taxation of individuals is substantially the same throughout New England. Corporate taxation, on the other hand, shows wide diversity both in theory and in practice. Individuals are taxed on property. Corporations are taxed on property, or on income, or on a combination of both, or on capital stock, either par or market value, or occasionally—as in the case of telegraph and telephone companies—on mileage or number of instruments. Administration ranges from a system highly developed, handled centrally by State officials with large powers, to no centralized administration whatsoever.
> Particularly interesting is the Massachusetts taxation of "corporate excess," on the market value of stock less property otherwise taxed, and applied to all domestic corporations. Connecticut applies this to railroads, adding also their bonded indebtedness as a measure of ability to pay taxes.
>
> Railroads are among the largest taxpayers. In Maine they are taxed at a graduated percentage of gross transportation receipts; in New Hampshire, on property, but through a State Board; in Vermont, upon gross earnings; in Massachusetts, by the State on their "corporate excess" (market value of stock, less amount of property taxed locally), and by the towns on much of their property; in Rhode Island, on real property by the local authorities; in Connecticut, on the sum of bonded debt and market value of stock.
>
> Other public service corporations, such as street railway, telegraph, telephone, express, car, gas, and electric companies, are most often brought under special and new systems of taxation. Taxation of public service corporations on gross receipts is growing in use. Maine and Vermont use this largely; Massachusetts, Connecticut, and Rhode Island in part; but New Hampshire not at all.
>
> Massachusetts alone succeeds appreciably in efforts to tax specially the manufacturing and mercantile corporations. This State taxes the corporation itself on its corporate excess through the State Tax Commissioner. The other States make unsuccessful efforts to reach this corporate excess in the hands of the shareholders through local officials. Massachusetts receives over two millions of dollars from this source; the other five States very little.
>
> Banks, insurance companies, and other financial corporations pay large amounts, often exceeding the tax paid by railroads, but they do not come within the scope of this report, except in the comparison of financial results.
>
> Maine alone of the New England States secures large revenue by chartering corporations—nearly a quarter of a million dollars annually.
>
> New England has made considerable advance in separating the sources of State from local revenue, supporting the local jurisdictions through the tax upon local property, and the State Government by taxes upon corporations and inheritances. Vermont and Connecticut are the only States which thus pay practically all State expenses. In the other States the towns collect large amounts to turn over to the State.

SPRECKELS ON THE STAND.

Called for First Time to Explain Backing of Bribery Prosecution.

SAN FRANCISCO, May 17.—Rudolph Spreckels, the San Francisco banker, who contributed $100,000 to prosecute an inquiry into municipal conditions in 1906, was called to the witness stand to-day in the bribery trial of Patrick Calhoun, President of the United Railroads. He gave a detailed account of his reasons for opposing Mr. Calhoun's plans for street railway development and of the manner in which he became a supporter of the prosecution.

Assistant District Attorney Heney, replying to a statement by one of the attorneys for the defense, declared that he had thrown down the bars, had summoned Mr. Spreckels as a witness for the first time in any of the bribery trials, and that he stood ready to meet any line of inquiry the defense might choose.

"We have been trying Mr. Calhoun and no other," said Mr. Heney, "but from the time we began the selection of the jury the defense has endeavored to try Rudolph Spreckels and James D. Phelan at the same time. You have insinuated times without number that Mr. Spreckels was back of the prosecution for a malicious purpose, for his personal gain and profit, and in an effort to gain control of the United Railroads. You made this issue. Surely you are not afraid to meet it now that he is on the stand, prepared to meet your questions."

Mr. Spreckels testified that he first came into conflict with the United Railroads in 1905, when he learned of the proposal to substitute the overhead trolley for the cable on the Sutter Street system. As an owner of property on this system's lines he actively opposed the change and directed his lawyer to prepare articles of incorporation of a rival transportation company in an effort to defeat the overhead trolley.

ALIBI FOR BARBER.

Police Now Have No Clue to Murderer of Laura Regester.

PROVIDENCE, R. I., May 17.—Although the police sent out notices broadcast over the Eastern States to-day asking for the detention of the Auburn barber who has been missing since the day before the murder of Miss Laura Regester, detectives at work on the case asserted to-night that the barber has been entirely eliminated from the mystery. This announcement followed a visit by an inspector to Reheboth, Mass., where confirmation was obtained of the report that the missing barber was seen by several acquaintances on a trolley car near Taunton, Mass., on May 10, the night of the murder. This was considered as establishing a complete alibi for the man, as it would have been impossible for him to have been near the scene of the crime at any time Monday night.

That the police have not been able to locate the barber for an interview as to his acquaintance with the slain girl, however, has aroused some surprise, as the fact that he has been wanted has been published widely for days. He is said to have been an admirer of Miss Regester.

With the much-talked-of barber practically out of the case, the police were virtually at a standstill in the investigation to-night. The detectives said they were waiting for something to turn up, and they seemed to have exhausted all clues.

A man with scratches on his face and a scalp wound, who said his name was Thomas Reilly and his residence New York, was apprehended on suspicion to-day. He is said to have been seen near the scene of the crime, but the authorities to-night profess to attach little importance to his detention, although he is still held.

AUTOISTS STRANDED IN DESERT

Two New York Men on Pathfinding Trip Saved by Companions.

Special to The New York Times.

EL PASO, Texas, May 17.—After being marooned three days and two nights on Sierra Blanca Desert, twenty miles from Guadalupe and forty-eight miles from Candalaria, with no habitation for sixty-eight miles, William Knipper and F. Ed Spooner, both of New York, were yesterday rescued through the efforts of their companions in the Chalmers-Detroit "30" on the flag-to-flag pathfinding trip from Chicago to Mexico City.

After running 3,000 miles, the Chalmers car finally stripped its pinion gear bucking the white sands of the desert, after going more than forty miles on low gear. W. E. McCarton, editor of Motor Field, and Mr. Howard walked through sands and mountains all Friday night to the railroad, and took a train to El Paso for help and food.

Mr. Howard rode all night back to Guadalupe on horseback and in a wagon to reach the men. With three quarts of water from the car's radiator, pea soup had been made, and only cold coffee and one small ration remained. Repairs to the car have been made, and another route will be sought, following the railroad.

VIRGINIA HARNED IN RENO.

Mrs. Sothern, Denied Divorce, Takes Up Residence to Insure Getting Decree

Special to The New York Times.

RENO, Nev., May 17.—Virginia Harned Sothern, the actress, and wife of Edward H. Sothern, the actor, arrived in Reno late last Saturday night and is incognito at a private hotel. Her purpose in coming here is to establish a residence in Nevada, which is required according to the law for the issuance of decrees of divorces as set forth by Judge W. S. Pike, who refused to grant her a decree.

The suit in court here for several months was refused on the ground of non-residence on the part of Mrs. Sothern. It is said that the actress has rented a house in this city, and that she will be here from time to time, making it her home.

This much talked-of divorce suit is now on appeal to the Supreme Court, and it is not known when any developments will take place. The actress evidently does not intend to rely upon the higher tribunal for her relief, but will reconcile herself to the required residence in the State.

WANT NO TEA OR COFFEE TAX,

Dealers Protest to the Senate—Poor Would Be Chief Sufferers.

The National Coffee and Tea Association of 32 Broadway sent a letter to Senator Aldrich at Washington yesterday, as well as to every other member of the Senate, pointing out the harm that a tax on tea or coffee would do to workingmen and their families throughout the United States.

The letter, which is signed by F. L. Kramer, Secretary of the association, states that the poorer people do not pay 60 or 65 cents a pound for tea, as alleged, but only 25 to 35 cents, which can be verified by an inquiry at any retail grocery store. The largest retail grocer in New York quotes tea as low as 28 cents. Any tax would immediately raise the price of these low-grade teas, it is declared. The tax on the higher grades would result in inferior teas being substituted. The letter emphasizes the fact that there is no tea or coffee trust in this country, and the trade is, therefore, subject to free and open competition, thus insuring full value to the customer.

Referring to a request from South Carolina for a tax on tea to protect that industry for the State, the letter points out that, after twenty years' experimentation, South Carolina produces 15,000 pounds of tea per year, and that an argument for protection on that ground was an insult to the intelligence of the American people.

New Home for a Republican Club.

The Republican Club of the Twenty-third Assembly District, where Collin H. Woodward is the leader, broke ground for a new home in Amsterdam Avenue, near 159th Street yesterday. This district, which takes in the entire Washington Heights section, has produced the biggest Republican vote of any district in recent elections. The new clubhouse will run through the depth of the block to St. Nicholas Avenue. It will be four stories high, and of white brick. It will be one of the handsomest political club homes in the city, will contain four bowling alleys, a large meeting room, and a banquet hall.

TO SAVE $20,000,000 IN NAVY AND ARMY

At Taft's Request, Meyer Will Confer with Navy Yard Commandants on Retrenchments.

REORGANIZATION INQUIRY

Secretary to Learn Also How Effective Newberry's Plan Has Been—Recommends Adoption of Sperry's Report.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, May 17.—In carrying out his policy of retrenchment in the various executive departments, President Taft has informed the military establishments that he looks to the navy to economize to the extent of $10,000,000 this year, and that he expects the army to do the same. As a result Secretary Meyer will confer to-morrow with the commandants of the navy yards at New York, Philadelphia, Norfolk, Boston, and Portsmouth, who have been ordered here. At this conference the question of retrenchments will be gone into thoroughly.

Secretary Dickinson is at present absent on a visit of inspection to the Panama Canal. The chiefs of the various bureaus of the War Department, however, have practically completed their estimates, and as soon as Mr. Dickinson returns he will meet them to take up the matter of cutting down the figures for the coming fiscal year. All the estimates in both departments, under instructions from both Secretaries Meyer and Dickinson, have been kept at a low level, and the greatest care is to be taken in making further reductions in order that the service may not suffer.

In addition to discussing the matter of retrenchments, Secretary Meyer to-morrow will devote considerable time to ascertaining from the commandants of the five big yards just how effective has been the reorganization plan put in effect some time ago by order of Secretary Newberry. Mr. Meyer would not indicate whether the Newberry plan had resulted in economies in operation when asked about it to-day. He declared that it had not yet had a full enough trial to admit of a decision.

The Secretary, however, announced he would recommend to the President at the Cabinet meeting to-morrow that the Navy Department adopt that portion of the report made by the Board headed by Rear Admiral Sperry, which was unanimous. The features of the report, which are attacked in the minority reprts signed by Rear Admiral Capps and Rodgers, will be held in abeyance for the present, or until Mr. Meyer has had time to study them carefully, and arrive at a decision. The Sperry report deals with the reorganization plan for the naval establishment.

PHILADELPHIA, May 17.—The controversy between the line officers and the staff officers of the United States Navy was the subject of an extended conference to-day at the Philadelphia Navy Yard, when Assistant Secretary of the Navy Winthrop made a careful inquiry into the working of the "Newberry system," by which the management of the yard is placed in the hands of the staff officers. Naval Constructor A. H. Stahl defended the system, which, he said, promoted economy.

Commander T. S. Rodgers, Inspector of Equipment; Commander B. C. Bryan, Inspector of Machinery; Commander McKean of the Ordnance Department, Civil Engineer H. R. Stanford, and Rear Admiral Pendleton, commandant of the yard, also participated in the discussion, which lasted more than two hours. The line officers, it is reported, renewed their objections to the order which placed the staff officers in control.

Assistant Secretary Winthrop asked many questions, but refrained from stating any opinion on the merits of the controversy. A report from the Sperry Commission, which was appointed to investigate the charges of the line officers, is expected to be made public in Washington within a day or two.

ELMIRA GREETS McCLELLAN.

The Mayor a Guest at Reception and Dinner There.

Special to The New York Times.

ELMIRA, N. Y., May 17.—Mayor G. B. McClellan of New York arrived in this city this afternoon, and was met by Alexander C. Eustace, former State Civil Service Commissioner, whose guest he will be until to-morrow. The Mayor was accompanied by Commissioner J. A. Bensal of the Water Board, Assistant Corporation Counsel Crowell, and Thomas Hassett, Secretary of the Water Board.

Several hundred admirers of the Mayor and his father greeted him at an informal reception at the Hotel Rothaun this evening. Later Mr. Eustace tendered a dinner at the City Club in honor of Mayor McClellan. On Tuesday Mayor McClellan will go to Corning to speak before the Business Men's Association.

BOY RUNNING THE ELEVATOR

And a Clerk on His Way to His Office Killed in Transit.

Jeremiah J. Mulhall of 83 East Fifty-fifth Street, employed as a clerk by his uncle, a silk jobber, with an office at 25 West Thirty-fourth Street, was killed by the elevator while going to his uncle's office in the building yesterday afternoon.

Samuel Hamell, a 16-year-old boy, was in charge of the car. As Mulhall was leaving the elevator at the third floor the lad started the car onward above. The heel of Mulhall's shoe was caught by the floor of the ascending car. He was lifted in the air and his head hit the top molding of the gateway.

The alarmed boy stopped the car as Mulhall plunged headlong through the gate to the floor, with a fractured skull. He died in transit to the hospital.

Hamell was arrested. He was not the regular operator, but an errand boy in a phonograph store who had been asked by the janitor to take charge of the elevator while the operator went to work in the cellar.

WOULDN'T BE A FIREMAN.

Bellevue's Supervising Engineer Dismissed for Insubordination.

Samuel J. Jones, supervising engineer of the Bellevue and Allied Hospitals, was dismissed by the Board of Trustees yesterday for insubordination. According to Dr. W. H. Smith, General Medical Superintendent of the hospitals, Jones's dismissal resulted from his refusal to be assigned to a position in the Bellevue fire brigade, composed of the help, clerks, and orderlies, under the direction of an outside instructor. All have different stations, some having to operate the fire extinguishers, others the axes, and others the hose.

When Jones was first assigned to the brigade, he refused to serve. He was asked to reconsider his determination before yesterday's meeting. He said, however, he would not serve. He had held his place for nine years. His salary was $2,000 a year.

GEORGE MEREDITH, NOVELIST, DEAD

in depicting the self-seeking affection of the middle-aged.

Novels of Marriage State.

Between 1885 and 1895 appeared four novels, which dealt with the problems of marriage. "Diana of the Crossways" was published in 1885, "One of the Conquerors" in 1891, "Lord Ormont and His Aminta" in 1894, and "The Amazing Marriage" in 1895. They show that Meredith had been concerned for many years with the problems of the married state, but it is not clear that he intended to approve of the idea of the trial marriage, which one of his characters advocates in "One of the Conquerors." He asked, however, that his readers consider carefully the question of the indissoluble union and to refuse to accept it as an unquestioned ideal.

Mr. Meredith's later verse consisted of "Poems and Lyrics of the Joy of Earth," 1883; "Ballads and Poems of Tragic Life," 1887; "A Reading of Earth," 1887, which was republished with additions in 1901. In 1895 he published in one volume three novelettes, "The Tale of Chloe," "The House on the Beach," and "The Case of Gen. Ople and Lady Camper," and in 1897 appeared his "Essay on the Comedy and the Uses of the Comic Spirit." He also issued in 1898 his "Odes in Contribution to the Song of

CRACKSMAN'S CODE ON JAILED YEGGMAN

George Hunt, an ex-Convict, Caught Here, Had Explicit Directions for Blowing Safes.

"BURGLAR-PROOF" A FRAUD

No Such Thing, Says the Guide to Safe-Blowing Found on "Deafy" Hunt —Record Shows He Knows.

A short, heavy set and stocky man of middle age, with a smooth shaven face, gray hair, and a sullen expression in his small eyes, was brought into Headquarters last night by Detectives O'Farrell, Kinstler, and Dugan. When Lieut. Funston asked him his name and address, the short man raised one hand to his ear and exclaimed, "Huh?"

O'Farrell, Kinstler, and Dugan each shouted the questions at him as Lieut. Funston demanded in turn his name, age, address, and the other data that make up a police pedigree, but the detectives showed no impatience through the ordeal, for in the short man who finally gave the name of George Hunt, an iron worker, living at 65 Eighty-second Street, Brooklyn, the detectives believe they have a famous yeggman.

Hunt was locked up last night on the simple charge of being a suspicious person. The detectives think, however, that he has been one of the band that has robbed many Post Offices in Long Island and through Westchester recently, blowing up the Post Office safes and extracting the money and stamps.

The little man was found in a room in 90 Washington Street, Brooklyn, and the detectives refuse to tell how they traced him there. What led them to seek him was an attack which was made at 2 o'clock on the morning of Monday a week ago on George Lessler, a station agent at 185d Street Station of the Third Avenue Elevated Road. Lessler's assailant attacked him with a blackjack in the deserted station, but Lessler fought him off, and the man ran at the sound of approaching footsteps. Lessler gave a description of his assailant, and the search for Hunt began.

In the small room in which he was found last night the detectives also discovered numerous sheets of paper on which were inscribed many strange words, which, the police say, are in the Yeggmen's code, as well as some other sheets of paper pasted together like a book and containing all sorts of data on the blowing up of safes.

The loose sheets of paper, which were regular legal foolscap, appeared to be letters, since one of them bore the inscription "Friend Chauncey," and was signed "Sing." Others were signed "Chink" and "Hopp S.," which the police believe are the nicknames of yeggmen. One of these notes or letters began with this formula:

"Cpsxyk luzy."

Then on the following lines beneath this appeared "Zukkyss luzy," "Gumphgus luzy," and "Ouss luzy." Beneath these inscriptions came what appeared to be the body of the letter as follows:

"Cpsxyk luzy. This is an old make, but a great many of them in the South. Ema wuy xtpso moyp kknut any quarter."

After this followed many more words which the police say are in the yeggman code. They believe that the code words refer to various kinds of safes—"a great many of whatever kind there are being in the South."

More interesting, however, than the code, which the police confessed themselves unable to decipher, was the manufactured book with its several pasted leaves. This began:

There are fifty different kinds of safes manufactured in the United States and Canada with many different looks and deviously constructed with varying mechanical features. The knight of the road should know his book in order to keep abreast of the times. I can give you a general knowledge of all different kinds of safes, their plating, naddings, &c., so that once you have a practical idea of how to blow one you are through all right. There are two kinds of safes recognized in the profession, namely, fire and burglar proof safes. While there is really no such thing as a B. P. S., (apparently burglar proof safe, yet the kind that are drill proof are called so by courtesy. They are generally made with an oval tumbler, but the bolt is so constructed that you can't do it on the quiet.

Then followed a few lines on how to insert "the dope" and how to get into a safe. Advice was given against going through the back, "as it is likely to be solid material, without packing, and the contents of the safe may be burned up by the explosion."

"In tackling a safe use either G. N. or D.," (which the police say means gunpowder, nitroglycerin, or dynamite,) continues the paper, "and use a small fuse with rifle powder, the smokeless kind preferable. When you have to work quick, measure the safe. For a three-foot safe use four ounces, a safe three feet six inches four and a half ounces, a safe four feet five ounces, four and a half feet five and a half ounces. Never take a chance with a five-foot crack with less than six and a half ounces.

In addition to the notes the police found in the closet some powder caps, a fuse with the wire attached, and a brace and six bits.

According to the police Hunt has been known also as "Deafy" Hunt, George Mason, and John Tucker. They say that his picture is No. 5,000 in the Rogues' Gallery. The records show, say the police, that he was sent to Sing Sing for seven years in 1894 for grand larceny and assault, committed in this city, and in 1903 he was sent back for four years and two months more for attempted burglary in Pelham. In June, 1907, they say, he was committed to the workhouse for six months as a vagrant.

CHILDREN HELP FIGHT FIRE.

Two Score of Them Do Valiant Work In Aiding to Save a House.

About forty girls and boys dragging lengths of hose for the members of Engine Companies 41, 73, and 80, who were extinguishing a fire in the Colonial mansion, at 585 Trinity Avenue, last night, made a sight that interested a crowd of nearly 2,000. The old house stands on an embankment about fifty feet high, with a steep declivity in front extending to the avenue, and for this reason two lengths of hose had to be joined to reach up to the scene of the fire, and the children aided the firemen materially in getting the lines up over the brow of the hill.

The house is owned by Frederick Howe, a draughtsman, and his mother, and the fire, which started on the ground floor from some unknown cause, was discovered by Mrs. Howe last night while she was in the garden in the rear of the house. She saw flames shooting from the kitchen windows, and called to a passer-by, who ran to the box at 149th Street and Trinity Avenue and turned in an alarm.

The house is a two-story frame structure and very old, and the fire had gained a good start before the arrival of the firemen, but with the aid of the children water was soon being thrown on the flames, which were extinguished in half an hour with a damage of about $300, according to the police estimate.

Hundreds of children flocked to the fire from their homes in the adjacent streets, and after the fire Mrs. Howe complained that the youngsters had overrun her garden and destroyed plants and other vegetables. She also complained of the police supervision, asserting that there were only two men there to handle the crowd, and that no reserves were sent from the Morrisania Station to preserve order. She told the firemen she would lodge a complaint with the Police Commissioner.

GOLF REPUBLICAN GAME.

The Republican Club Goes In for It Strong with a Cup and Medals.

Now that the tennis cabinet that was has given way to a golf cabinet the Republican Club, which prides itself on being progressive, is falling in line. At a meeting held last night the club appointed a Golf Committee, and announcement was made that the club's first tournament would be held next Friday on the links of the Dunwoodie Country Club, in Westchester County.

Merritt E. Haviland, Secretary, has presented a silver cup to the club as a permanent trophy in an annual contest. There will be about forty entries at Friday's tournament, including, it was noted last night, many men who believe they could render a far better account of themselves in public office than in private life.

One of the first to proclaim himself a seeker for golf championship honors, according to members of the club, was Job E. Hedges. Mr. Hedges is a humorist. But his confrères in the club declare that ever though he is a better hand at telling a funny story than he is at driving, lofting, and putting, that will not necessarily disqualify him for the Republican Club game, and they won't admit this is a joke at that.

The star entry so far, however, is Moses M. McKee, leader of the Twenty-first Assembly District. He would hold his own with Mr. Taft at a game of see-saw, and is willing to rush in anywhere the President doesn't fear to tread. Mr. McKee believes he will hold out in front, but the other would-be players, some of whom profess to be immune from foozling, are not discouraged.

The play will be at scratch, thirty-six holes match play against par. The winner is to get a medal as well as the custody of the Haviland Cup for a year. There will be a second cup for the next best player.

Among the entries are Robert C. Morris, the new President of the Republican Club, and Charles H. Young, whom Mr. Morris succeeded. Mr. Young is a golf devotee. H. H. Buckley and Chairman William H. Evans, Chairman of the House Committee, will be at Dunwoodie on Friday, too.

MRS. PHELPS LEFT $800,000.

Anson G. Phelps's Widow Wills $40,000 to Charity—Rest to Relatives.

Special to The New York Times.

WHITE PLAINS, N. Y., May 17.—The will of Jane G. Phelps, widow of Anson G. Phelps, Jr., a prominent resident of Tarrytown, well known as a charitable worker, whose country place adjoins the estate of William Rockefeller, on Broadway, at Scarborough-on-the-Hudson, was filed with Surrogate Millard to-day. It disposes of about $800,000 worth of property.

Mrs. Phelps leaves $40,000 to hospitals and churches, as follows: Five-thousand dollars to the Tarrytown Hospital, $10,000 to the First Reformed Church of Tarrytown, $10,000 to the Presbyterian Hospital of New York City, $10,000 to the University Place Presbyterian Church, and $5,000 to the Lincoln Hospital and Home.

By a codicil, the payment of the legacies is postponed until after the death of her sister, Julia A. D. Crane, who is to have the use of the principal during her life.

To an unmarried sister, Helen Louisa Gibson, the will gives the country place at Tarrytown, including water grant, furniture, silver, paintings, jewelry, horses, carriages, and stock in the Market and Fulton Bank of New York City and $100,000. The testatrix leaves to her sister, Mrs. Julia A. D. Crane, $20,000; to her brother, Hanson C. Gibson, $20,000; to her brother, William Cooper Gibson, $10,000; to her brother, John R. Gibson, $10,000; to Mary Anne Case, a niece, $4,000; and to the children of her sister, Olivia Atterbury, $2,500 each.

All of the legacies to the hospitals and institutions are in memory of Mrs. Phelps's husband, who has been dead for many years. The executors, John Knox, D. Willis James, Hanson C. Gibson, and Helen Louisa Gibson, are to have $5,000 each in addition to the usual compensation under the law.

GREENPORT, L. I., May 17.—Howard Marshall, paymaster of the torpedo station of the Bliss Manufacturing Company, arrived in Greenport this morning thoroughly exhausted, his clothing soaked through with water and incrusted with mud. When he had recovered his strength somewhat Mr. Marshall told how he had spent the night wading through quagmires and marshes and swimming creeks in an effort to reach here after his launch, in which he was making the trip from Eastport, broke down in the Sound.

Mr. Marshall said the motor of his launch suddenly got out of order, and a few moments later a thunder storm broke. The light launch was driven before the gale that accompanied the rain and lightning, and presently the small craft went aground. It was too dark to distinguish any landmarks, and Mr. Marshall stepped from his boat into soft marshland.

For the remainder of the night he waded and floundered through mud and water, and it was not until daybreak that he recognized his surroundings and was enabled to start for this town. Even then he had to swim through another creek before he could reach dry land.

MRS. WALLERSTEIN LOSES.

Court Denies Her Application for a Stay in Rubinstein Club Suit.

Supreme Court Justice Hendrick denied the application of counsel for Mrs. Adelaide Wallerstein, President of the Rubinstein Club, for a stay of all action on the part of the organization yesterday pending the determination of the appeal taken in the suit brought in the name of the club against Mrs. Emma L. Chapman, the Secretary, and others.

A week ago Justice Hendrick declined to issue a permanent injunction restraining Mrs. Chapman and other members from interfering with the officers of the club or from calling an election. An appeal was taken from this decision and the stay of the election was asked pending the appeal.

A meeting of the club was set down for to-morrow, when an election of officers and Board of Directors is to take place, and, in view of the fact that the court refuses to grant a stay, the meeting will probably be held. A lively time is predicted.

Saks Apparel for Men

No. 2. EXAMINING, TESTING AND SPONGING MATERIALS

The best mills deliver woolens already shrunk. But we have no infallible method of ascertaining how thoroughly the shrinking has been done. Therefore, we do it all over again just to be certain.

Every inch of yardage is most carefully examined for possible flaws by our own inspectors. Every piece of tape used for staying is tested. Every yard of canvas and hair cloth used in the "foundation linings" is scrupulously examined and shrunk in our own workshops.

No element of chance is allowed, even by oversight, to affect the character of the materials employed in the making of garments which bear the Saks label.

Clothes of our creating retain their shapeliness and distinction without need for the incessant pressings which garments of the ordinary kind require.

MOTHER AND CHILD PINNED UNDER AUTO

Baby Caught Beneath Her and Crushed in a Wreck Caused by Collision.

GIRL ALSO BADLY INJURED

Touring Car Smashes Into a Furniture Van and the Neighborhood Comes to the Rescue.

Special to The New York Times.

MINEOLA, L. I., May 17.—Some distance ahead of him and about opposite Garden City Park, Townsend Titus, a lumber and coal merchant of Glen Cove, L. I., saw a big furniture van as he drove his new automobile to-day along the Jericho Road toward this place from New Hyde Park. In the car with him were his wife and daughter Linda, 19 years old, and Mrs. Edward Skinner and her eighteen-month-old boy Darwin. Mrs. Skinner is the wife of a member of Mr. Titus's firm.

Mr. Titus was driving at moderate speed and turned wide to avoid the van. Just as he reached the vehicle, however, the road, which is in bad repair, dipped sharply down, and the front wheel of the automobile, which skidded badly, smashed into the rear wheel of the van. The force of the collision smashed the supports of the car's canopy top and it dropped down on the occupants of the car, all of whom were in the tonneau except Mr. Titus.

Miss Titus was made unconscious by the blow of the wreckage, which fell heavily and pinned her under its weight. Mrs. Skinner was caught beneath the mass, too, and her infant fell so that the weight of his mother's body pressed hard upon him. Mr. and Mrs. Titus both escaped with bruises.

Mr. Titus was out of the car almost as soon as the accident happened, and set to work immediately to rescue the women. Mrs. Skinner, realizing that her weight was crushing her baby perhaps to death, cried piteously to be released, but it was several moments before she could be liberated.

Meantime Miss Titus was lifted from the wrecked car and stretched out unconscious on the grass by the side of the road. Mr. and Mrs. Titus walked up and down wringing their hands, half crazed by fear, and Mrs. Skinner, herself badly bruised, sat rocking little Darwin in her arms.

It was upon this scene that a score or more of residents of the neighborhood came, summoned by the crash of the collision and the screams of Mrs. Titus and Mrs. Skinner. Several automobiles came up also, and these stopped while their occupants alighted to render what assistance they could. Several physicians were summoned, and hurried to the spot in automobiles and carriages. Dr. Davis, from the local hospital, also arrived in an ambulance. It was found that Miss Titus was probably the worst hurt, and she was hurried to the hospital in the ambulance.

She was still senseless at a late hour last night. She was badly cut and bruised on the face and hands, and it is believed that she has internal injuries.

Mrs. Skinner and her baby were carried to the home of her father-in-law, Dr. E. D. Skinner, in another automobile. Mrs. Skinner was badly bruised and was hysterical from fright. The physician could not tell how badly the baby, his grandson, was hurt. The child had been rendered unconscious and the physician said it would be forty-eight hours before he could diagnose the injuries. He believes, however, that the baby will recover.

BLACK HAND AFTER A PORTIA.

Woman Lawyer Had Caused the Arrest of a Spitter in the Subway.

A "Black Hand" letter came yesterday afternoon to Miss Marion Weston Cottle, a woman lawyer of 220 Broadway, whose home is at 138 Fifth Avenue. This she reluctantly admitted last night after a talk with Lieut. Funston of the Detective Bureau.

"I hate publicity," she said last night at Police Headquarters. "It is very annoying. I am not at all frightened by the letter, but I have important business on hand with which the notoriety may interfere."

A few days ago Miss Cottle caused the arrest and arraignment of a man whom she saw spitting on a platform of the Wall Street station of the Subway.

Many Names for Ogden Committee.

More than 500 suggestions for membership on the Committee of One Hundred and the Committee of Fifteen which is to nominate it have been received by Robert C. Ogden, Chairman of the Cooper Union Conference. Mr. Ogden had expected to make public his appointments on the Nominating Committee to-day, but owing to the many names that have been submitted to him he has decided to devote a couple of days more to the task of selecting the members. It was said yesterday that the announcement probably would be made to-morrow.

MORE HANGINGS BY YOUNG TURKS

Five Mutiny Leaders Sing Hymns with Nooses Around Their Necks.

ASK $15,000,000 FOR ARMY

Cabinet Programme Involves Reorganization Under Gen. von der Goltz—Leishman Calls on New Sultan.

CONSTANTINOPLE, May 17.—Five more men were hanged at 3:30 o'clock this morning in front of the building of Parliament, opposite the Mosque of St. Sophia, in Stamboul. They had been found guilty by court-martial of complicity in the murder of their officers in the revolutionary outbreak of April 13. Among them was one non-commissioned officer; the others were junior officers.

The five men sang hymns while they were being conveyed from the War Office, where they had been confined, to the place of execution. They continued their songs while the final preparations for the hanging were being completed, and up to the very moment that the stools on which they were standing with the ropes around their necks were knocked out from under their feet. All through the condemned men were as calm as though saying their prayers in a mosque.

Hilmi Pasha, the Grand Vizier, in announcing to Parliament in a few days the Cabinet's programme, will ask for a special appropriation of $15,000,000 for the reorganization of the army under Gen. von der Goltz.

John G. A. Leishman, the American Ambassador to Turkey, was received in audience by the new Sultan, Mehmed V., today, for the purpose of presenting his new credentials, which arrived from Washington last Saturday. Mr. Leishman was attended by Secretary A. C. Turner and M. Gargiulo, the dragoman of the embassy.

His Majesty was most agreeable, and sent a cordial message to President Taft. Following the audience the Grand Vizier called upon Mr. Leishman.

MARASH, Asiatic Turkey, May 17.—Recently, when the local Government of Marsovan attempted to send seventeen Mohammedan prisoners concerned in attacks on Armenians to Aleppo, a mob of Turkish women tried to storm the Government House. They kept up their demonstrations for two days. The soldiers threatened to fire on them, but they were finally dispersed without casualties.

MERSINA, Asiatic Turkey, Sunday, May 16.—Capt. William A. Marshall, commanding the American armored cruiser North Carolina, now in this port, has been investigating conditions. He had a conference with the Governor of Adana Province yesterday. As a result, full protection has been promised American interests at Adana, and guards are patroling the American property there and elsewhere.

The conditions in the refugee camps are pitiable. Many thousands of unfortunates are huddled together and lack food, shelter, and medical aid. The authorities are making efforts to improve the situation and send the refugees back to their farms. Many Armenians are quartered at the American missions, and most of them decline to leave, because of lack of confidence in the protection offered by the authorities. The greatest present danger is from epidemic in the overcrowded camps and missions. Measles and typhoid fever already exist. It is urgently necessary that the refugees be dispersed as soon as possible. Money contributions are greatly needed. Capt. Marshall is sending a medical relief party up to Adana.

The North Carolina will remain here for the present.

ALEXANDRETTA, Asiatic Turkey, May 17.—The American cruiser Montana, consort of the North Carolina, arrived here to-day. Alexandretta is quiet.

FLOODS IN PORTO RICO.

Towns Partly Destroyed and Sugar Crop Seriously Damaged by Rains.

SAN JUAN, Porto Rico, May 17.—Considerable damage to property in Humacao has been caused by a very heavy rainfall throughout the island, the heaviest in a number of years. The lower section of the town, including many houses, has been washed away, and two lives have been lost. The town of Salinas also has been partially inundated, and the Yabucoa sugar district has suffered damage estimated at $100,000. The new electrical power plant at Comerio Falls has been badly damaged, and a washout on the San Juan-Caguas Railroad will cause a suspension of traffic for some time. The river along the railroad rose 28 feet.

ALL BRITONS HONOR ROBERTS.

Shower Messages Upon Field Marshal on His Golden Wedding Day.

LONDON, May 17.—Lord Roberts is today celebrating the golden anniversary of his wedding, and so popular is "Bobs," as he is universally called, that the event has assumed something of the character of an imperial festival.

Except during the race meetings the telegraph office at Ascot has never known anything to compare with the rush of messages which have been arriving all day long from all parts of the empire congratulating the Field Marshal. The King and Queen were among the earliest to remember the day, and the newspapers are full of eulogies of the veteran soldier.

REICHSTAG TO ADJOURN.

Recess of a Month to Allow Agreement on Financial Reform.

BERLIN, May 17.—The Reichstag will adjourn to-morrow to June 15 to give the Finance Committee opportunity to make an effort to reach an agreement on a scheme of financial reform.

The existing situation is now most uncertain. The Von Bülow "bloc" is apparently unable longer to pull together. The Government has decided to prepare bills during the Reichstag recess, raising the tax on matches and the import duty on coffee.

The specimens include one rhinoceros, six lions, two giraffes, twenty smaller kinds of game animals, and a variety of birds.

MRS. GLYN AS HUMORIST.

Says Her Servants and Her American Friends Are Humorists Also.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, May 17.—Mrs. Elinor Glyn has a keen scent for advertisement. Her new book, "Elizabeth Visits America," which is already published in the United States, is to be brought out here next week, and consequently a preliminary boom in the newspapers is good business.

One London paper, The Morning Leader, to-day published a cablegram describing the reception accorded the book in New York. Quick as a flash Mrs. Glyn "accorded" an interview to another London paper, The Daily Express, which will publish the story tomorrow, as follows:

"One of Mrs. Glyn's servants reads The Morning Leader. But for this fact the authoress would still be ignorant that the paper is in existence. A maid with a sense of humor, it appears, borrowed The Leader from the fellow-servant who reads it, and showed it to her mistress, and Mrs. Glyn found therein sufficient entertainment for one day at least.

"'No,' she told The Express representative, 'I don't feel in the least worried by it, and I am glad that a paper which is read by my servants was shown to me. My American friends also have a sense of humor.'"

Mrs. Glyn continued to give evidence that she, like her servants, possesses a keen sense of humor by saying, apropos of the remark attributed to Mrs. Imogene King, that she 'thought American men mollycoddles because they did not fly at her when she was alone in a cab and try to kiss her,' by saying:

"Most unfortunately I never was in an American cab. A friend of mine lent me her automobile while I was in New York, and I don't in the least know who Mrs. Imogene King is."

That settles it. The rest of the "interview" is given up to copious extracts from Mrs. Glyn's book, in which she concluded: "Any one who reads it will see that I have paid a high tribute to all that is great and noble in American life."

STAND BY CLEMENCEAU.

Deputy Wants Chambers Dissolved—Vote of Confidence Follows.

PARIS, May 17.—M. Pugliesi-Conti, Nationalist member of the Chamber of Deputies, offered a resolution in the Chamber this afternoon asking President Fallières to exercise the Presidential prerogative and dissolve Parliament on the ground of its "impotency." He supported his resolution in a speech charging that the majority was bringing discredit upon Parliament by utterly neglecting the interest of the country. He said the chief accomplishment of Parliament had been to increase the salaries of the members, and declared that the "bloc" and the Free Masons were dividing the patrimony of the country. At this statement M. Baudry d'Asson, Royalist, shouted: "It would be better to dissolve the republic."

M. Pressense, Socialist, agreed with M. Pugliesi-Conti that the majority was bankrupt, but he explained that the Socialists refused to coalesce with the reactionaries.

Premier Clemenceau, in a spirited reply, insisted that nothing justified the onslaught of M. Pugliesi-Conti. He declared that there was greater liberty in France to-day than ever before, and that the only liberty denied was the liberty of violence. He defended the policy of the Government and asked for a vote of confidence, which was given, 379 to 83.

Previous to this incident the Marquis de Dion violently denounced the singing of the "Internationale" in the Chamber on May 13. He characterized this as an insult to the French flag and an incitement of the army to revolt.

It was obvious, however, that his powers of walking had made no appreciable improvement.

FELS HAS FAITH IN SINGLE-TAX PLAN

Tells of Fund to Push the Agitation and Is Confident of Success.

GETS PLEDGE FROM CANADA

Has Sent to America Greater Part of His First Year's Contribution of $5,000—Gratified at Progress in England.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, May 17.—Joseph Fels talked sanguinely to-day to THE NEW YORK TIMES's correspondent of international backing for his single tax agitation plan which was announced on May 8. At the outset it is well to point out that there is considerable discrepancy in the figures of Mr. Fels's contributions as then stated and as mentioned to-day.

"My offer," said he, "is to give $5,000 annually for five years for the movement in England and America, provided as much is given by others. My confidence in the success of the plan is shown by the fact that I already have remitted to the commission in America in charge of the fund the greater part of the yearly amount I am prepared to subscribe. I have also made an offer to the single taxers in Canada to give $5,000 a year for five years, provided others subscribe an equal amount. Already I have received a pledge from the Secretary of the Single Tax Association of Toronto that the thing will be done, and I have made an initial payment myself into that fund. In a more modest degree I have made like propositions to New Zealand, New South Wales, Victoria, South Australia, and I shall next extend these offers to Manitoba, Denmark, Sweden, and Germany."

Mr. Fels expressed himself as greatly gratified at the progress made by the movement in England, which, he declared, was riper for the movement than any other country. But it must be said that any evidence of an overwhelming trend of British public opinion in the direction of a single tax is not visible to the naked eye.

MAJORITY DEFEND NEW BUILDING CODE

Angry at Minority Charges and Say No Favoritism Has Been Shown, as Alleged.

NO MONOPOLY, THEY SAY

Denial That Only Hollow Tile Fireproofing Can Be Used—Provisions for Sprinklers and Limitation of Height.

The majority members of the Building Code Revision Commission were angry yesterday at the criticisms of their report made by the five minority members of the body. They declared that the statements of the minority give an erroneous impression of the suggested new code as drawn up by them, and that the five dissenting members were actuated more by politics and pique in their criticisms than by sincerity. It was also maintained that in divulging the provisions of the proposed new code the minority members violated the pledge of secrecy which was imposed on the entire commission. The majority report has not yet been made public, but doubtless will be after being reported to the Aldermen at their session to-day.

William A. Gramer, Secretary of the commission, said yesterday that no official reply to the criticisms of the minority will be made.

The principal criticisms of the minority had to do with the provisions of the new code in connection with fire protection. It was charged that too much discretionary power is granted to the Superintendent of Buildings and that under the new code various methods of fire protection will be practically turned into a monopoly when other methods are equally valuable and efficient.

John D. Moore, a consulting engineer at 30 Church Street, who drew the greater part of the majority report, characterized the statements of the minority thus: "These five men have misrepresented the provisions of our report in every point taken up by them. The new code, as drawn by us, will stand on its merits."

"They charge us with granting monopolies to certain manufacturers," said one member of the commission. "The only reply that I can make to that is that it is impossible to restrict human ingenuity. In the old code, which was revised ten years ago, hardly any consideration is made of concrete building construction. Look at the number of concrete buildings being put up in the city to-day. Can any one say that in ten years more some one will not have discovered some other artificial building material that will be equally acceptable? The new code requires the installation of automatic sprinklers in all factories, warehouses, loft buildings, &c., over seventy-five feet in height. What is there in that to preclude the installation of all sprinklers except those of one make?

"The metal paint, it is provided, must be composed of red lead. Every paint concern in the country manufactures red lead. There has been a great deal of talk about prohibiting the use of cinder concrete filling and the requirement of slag, thereby putting the Roebling Construction Company and the other concerns that put in concrete fire-proof arches out of business. The code allows the use of cinder concrete if the work can stand certain tests which are definitely set down in the code.

"This talk of giving a monopoly of the fireproofing under the code to the hollow tile manufacturers is all rot, although many big builders will tell you that they will not put in anything but tile arches."

Another member of the commission declared that shingle roofs will be allowed only on frame buildings, which have alternate fireproof walls.

Non-fireproof tenements will be limited to 75 feet, while the law allows six stories without designating the height of each.

Alderman R. S. Doull, who signed the minority report, repeated yesterday many of the criticisms of the majority report. "The trouble is that it doesn't do anything," said he, "and is practically no improvement on the old code."

The New York Chapter of the American Institute of Architects sent a letter to the Board of Aldermen yesterday asking that careful consideration be given the new code, and urging that public hearings be held on it.

LIMITS HEIGHT OF BUILDINGS.

Massachusetts Law Restricting Them to 125 Feet in Certain Districts Upheld.

WASHINGTON, May 17.—The constitutionality of the regulations, under which the height of buildings in Boston is controlled, was to-day held to be valid by the Supreme Court of the United States in the case of Francis C. Welch. Permission was refused to Welch to erect a building of an elevation in excess of the limitations fixed by a commission.

BOSTON, May 17.—Francis C. Welch said to-day that his appeal affected no particular piece of property in Boston. There was a desire, however, to test the act of the Legislature passed ten years ago, which limited the height of buildings to 125 feet within the business and certain residential districts of the city.

The Anchor liner Furnessia arrived last evening from Glasgow somewhat late, owing to a slight derangement of her machinery, which stopped her for two hours. Capt. Lumsden reports that on May 14, off the Banks, she passed through small ice and sighted one berg.

NO BAIL FOR MORSE YET.

Court Will Take Up the Question When Appeal Is Heard on June 15.

The Judges of the United States Circuit Court of Appeals, under a decision handed down yesterday, will hear argument on June 15 on the appeal of Charles W. Morse from the conviction on violations of the National banking law under which he is sentenced to fifteen years in prison. At the same time the court will consider the application signed by twenty or thirty men of wealth to have Morse admitted to bail on their individual guarantee to furnish surety in any sum which the court may set.

In rendering this decision the Circuit Court takes the position that the application for admission to bail will become timely when there occurs to the court the suggestion of a reasonable doubt as to the guilt of the defendant. Under these circumstances the bail question is entirely dependent upon the showing that the attorneys for Morse may make on the argument.

If their presentation of the case puts the convicted banker in a sufficiently favorable light, the Circuit Court may bail him at any stage of the argument without further action on his part. On the other hand, if the argument on the appeal fails to suggest a reasonable doubt to the court, Morse will have to stay in the Tombs until the final determination of his case is reached.

STEAMSHIP MEN HONOR LOEB.

Gustav Schwab Gives Luncheon for Him on Kronprinzessin Cecilie.

Collector William Loeb, Jr., met the steamship men of this port at a luncheon given in his honor yesterday afternoon by Gustav Schwab, manager of the North German Lloyd Line, on the steamer Kronprinzessin Cecilie. There were fifty guests present, among whom were the heads of the various transatlantic lines here, the Surveyor of the Port, Gen. Clarkson; Deputy Collector Henry C. Stuart, and Naval Officer F. J. H. Krecke.

Gustav Schwab made a speech in which he told the Collector that the steamship men were with him in making improvements at this port, and that with the great capital they had invested they wanted to carry out the laws in every particular. The Collector, in replying, said that he was going to conduct his office for the protection of the Government and at the same time to help, where possible, the steamship lines and develop the commerce of the Port of New York.

MOSQUITOS DISABLE WHOLE SHIP'S CREW

Three Dead and Fifteen Left in a Hospital at Kingston, Jamaica.

ONLY TWO TO DRIVE SHIP

Myriads of the Fever-Spreading Pests Swooped Down on the Men on an Amazon Tributary.

There was an air of sadness over the British steamer Veraston yesterday as she was warped into her berth in Brooklyn. Only three of the original crew who sailed from here on her remained. Their companions are all ill in Kingston or dead. Practically the whole crew are negroes, shipped to bring the vessel back to New York.

The Veraston returns from a 1,700-mile trip up the Madeira River, a branch of the Amazon, from Para. She sailed there laden with provisions and railroad supplies for the builders of the Maderia-Momorg Railroad. While at Porto Velho, where she discharged her cargo, the men began to suffer from malignant malaria. The crew, though their quarters were screened, could not escape the onslaught of mosquitos. Soon they fell ill, and many were in the sick bay when the vessel again turned and started for Para.

One died before the Atlantic was reached, and the steamer stopped at Borba, where he was buried in the little cemetery. Of those who sailed only the skipper, Frederick Weeks of West Hartlepool, England; Second Officer George Nash, Third Engineer William Taylorson, and George Hyde, a steward, are now with the ship.

As the sailors were stricken one by one the skipper and his officers were forced to work night and day to get their vessel to Kingston. At times even sick men had to take their turn keeping the propeller going.

"We sailed from htre the middle of February and arrived at Porto Velho on March 5," said Capt. Weeks after docking his ship. "We moored alongside the jungle land within striking distance of myriads of white mosquitos. They descended on us in clouds, and we had a terrible time keeping them off.

"Before we were moored George Drayton, a sailor, was taken ill. Others were soon complaining. By the time we left there on March 28 Drayton was in bad shape and finally died as we went down the river toward Para. We swung in along the bank, and at a little village called Borba we buried him. Once clear of the Amazon a fireman got so bad that I had to stop at Trinidad and land him. From there we headed for Kingston, and after that the crew began to go all to pieces.

"Many were too ill to work, but I had to spur them to their tasks, for work meant reaching port and medical attention.

"There were times when I had to leave the wheel to tend the sick, and then only the second mate was left on deck and below was only the third engineer.

"The next man to die was P. Haughey. We buried him over the side. The next night Andrew Briggs, a fireman, died."

On April 16 the Veraston reached Kingston. There fifteen of her crew were taken to the hospital. Some were in serious plight. Before sailing for New York Capt. Weeks visited all of those in the hospital. Two of them, he fears, will not recover.

SMUGGLED RAIMENT SALES

Set from June 2 to 12 at the Rate of a Trunk a Day.

The order signed by the court authorizing the sale of the $52,000 worth of confiscated dresses, seized by Customs officers some weeks ago, was handed to United States Marshal William Henkel yesterday. All the goods contained in the five trunks will be sold with the exception of certain garments which have marks on them that may be useful to the United States District Attorney later as evidence, when the prosecution of the smugglers comes before the Federal Grand Jury.

Marshal Henkel said that these goods would be detained for a time, perhaps a year or more, and then sold. After he receives his list to-day from the Collector's office, the Marshal will prepare his sale catalogue. The dresses will be on exhibition, on the specified days, in the civil service room at the Custom House, Bowling Green. The order of the sale has been arranged as follows:

Trunk containing 67 shirt waists, exhibited June 1, sale June 2.
Trunk containing 30 lace waists, exhibited June 3, sale June 4.
Trunk containing 49 princess gowns, exhibited June 7, sale June 8.
Trunk containing 43 princess costumes, exhibited June 9, sale June 10.
Trunk containing 21 shirt waists, exhibited June 11, sale June 12.

NEW PLAN ON FOOT TO CUT MEAT PRICES

Butchers and Steamship Agents Considering the Importation of Argentine Products.

NEGLECT CATTLE BREEDING

Dealers Say Immigrants Now Stay In Towns Instead of Taking Up Profitable Farming in the West.

A movement to cut down the price of meat in this city by bringing into competition with the output of the Chicago packers chilled meats from Argentina is being discussed among butchers and steamship men here. The opinion was expressed yesterday by A. J. Shamberg of the firm of Jacob Shamberg & Son, cattle dealers, that such importations by a direct steamship line having vessels which could make the voyage from Buenos Ayres here in seventeen or eighteen days would solve the problem of cheaper meat, the 2 cents a pound duty on prime cuts not preventing importers and retail butchers from making a profit.

"It would be impossible to import beef on the hoof from Argentina, because the duty is too high," said Mr. Shamberg. "There is plenty of mutton in Canada, but it cannot be imported, owing to the duty of $1.50 a head. The duty on Canadian lamb is only 75 cents a head, and the lamb fetches a high price in the market."

Mr. Shamberg said that, in his opinion, the present high price of beef here and the scarcity which the British public is complaining about are due entirely to a shortage of cattle here. This he attributes, first, to the high price of grain and alfalfa, and, second, to the want of proper help to look after the cattle.

"Steers, when taken off the ranches in Texas, Dakota, and Montana, weigh from 850 to 1,100 pounds, and have to be taken to the corn States—Kansas, Missouri, Illinois, Indiana, and Iowa—to be fattened on grain and alfalfa," he explained. "When they leave there for the New York market these steers weigh from 1,100 to 1,500 pounds. That is what we call beef.

"The supply of thin cattle, the raw material in the trade, has fallen off, in part because the right supply of agricultural labor does not come to this country any longer. The immigrants we get to-day all want to spend their time in the towns instead of going to the West and Northwestern States, where they are badly needed to look after cattle and till the soil. The result is that the thousands of acres of waste land, which begin fifty miles out of New York and continue right up to the foot of the Rockies, are scarcely coming under cultivation at all. There is no reason why an attempt should not be made to raise corn and alfalfa on the thousands of deserted farms in the Eastern States, and this would revive cattle breeding, but no attempt is made to do this.

"It is a much simpler business for a man to start in the cattle business to-day than it was ten or fifteen years ago. There are firms in Texas like S. M. Swanson Brothers of 37 Wall Street, who have their big ranch at Palladuro, Texas, and breed a high grade of cattle which can be brought East and easily fattened for the market in a comparatively short time.

"The importation of beef and mutton from Argentina would pay well," added Mr. Shamberg, "if the meat arrived in proper condition—that is, by the chilled and not the frozen process of carrying meat on steamships."

Lloyd B. Sanderson, General American Manager of the Royal Mail Steam Packet Company, 19 and 21 State Street, said that the company had a line of steamships on the Southampton-South American run equipped with the latest machinery, especially prepared for carrying meat, and he had no doubt that the vessels could come direct from Buenos Ayres if a certain amount of refrigerator freight was guaranteed.

Exporters deny that American cattle shippers are holding back to keep up the prices in England. They attribute the falling off in the exportation to the high price of cattle and the shortage.

1910 A PROSPERITY YEAR.

Harvesting Machinery Manager Says the Outlook Is Very Promising.

Edwin D. Metcalfe, Vice President and General Manager of D. M. Osborne & Co., harvesting machinery dealers, and President of the Columbian Rope Company, who is attending the annual convention of the Manufacturers' Association at the Waldorf, talked yesterday with a TIMES reporter about the return of prosperity.

"It seems to me now," he said, "to depend on the harvest. If it is good, and at present there are no reasons why it should not be, I look for a very big year in 1910. But, however well the crops turn out, the farmers will not be getting their money till next Spring, and so it is likely to be next year before there is a return to the conditions which prevailed in 1906 and 1907.

"At the present moment there is, however, one hopeful sign. Large buyers have arrived at the conclusion that prices have about reached bottom and are looking around to place large orders. Thus I heard of the United States Government the other day advertising for a year's supply of a certain class of goods. On the other hand, the manufacturers are not anxious to sign contracts a long way ahead. They are expecting a rise in prices and are unwilling to bind themselves down. Business is just waiting for buyers and sellers to get together, and when that has been accomplished prosperity will be back again.

"Of course the manufacturers are hanging back to see what the tariff will be. It does not matter so much whether it is the Payne bill or the Aldrich bill. Once the question is settled business will accommodate itself to the new rates.

"I don't see why we should not have good crops. All the reports of Winter wheat are good, and although in some parts of the Northwest Spring sowing has been delayed by cold, there is still time to make it up. Anyhow, with the prices of cereals what they are, there is sure to be an increase in the acreage sown."

Regulation of Taximeters Is Likely.

The Aldermanic Law Committee met yesterday afternoon at City Hall to consider the proposed ordinance for the licensing and inspection of taximeters by the city, and the regulation of taxicab fares. No definite action was taken, but it is believed that the taximeter section of the ordinance will be reported at the meeting of the board to-day, the proposed cut in the fares being left in abeyance for the present.

GOMPERS ASSAILED AS A PUBLIC ENEMY

Bitter Attack in Report on Unionism and Its Leader at Manufacturers' Convention.

FREIGHT RATES CRITICISED

Hidden and Indirect Advances Charged —More Power Urged for Commerce Commission.—Trade Pleas.

A bitter attack on Samuel Gompers and other leaders of organized labor, which was contained in the report of the Committee on Industrial Education, marked the first session of the annual convention of the National Association of Manufacturers yesterday afternoon at the Waldorf-Astoria. Anthony Ittner, in reporting for the committee, declared that, although industrial education was making such strides that the committee might be dispensed with, it might still be of service "to keep the movement free from the domination of organized labor, which has its own special purposes in view and tends to sacrifice the public welfare to the supposed advantage of a class."

The report spoke of Mr. Gompers as "defying the highest courts in the land, and that, too, while he is under a jail sentence." Mr. Ittner also reported that he had replied to an invitation to join the National Society for the Promotion of Industrial Education, in which certain labor leaders are included, by saying that "to invite leaders affiliated with the American Federation of Labor to become members of the society would be tantamount to inviting the devil and his imps to participate in a movement for the promotion of the Christian religion as taught by the lowly Nazarene while on earth."

However, he was induced to join the society, and found that some of the labor members were "broad and liberal minded citizens." This did not change his general opinion. The report says:

> Were organized labor formed and conducted along rational and just lines it would be a sin to exclude it from any movement for the advancement of the human race; but as it now stands, to put it in charge of a movement in the interest of industrial education and trade training would be like putting the lamb in the care of the wolf or the chicken in care of the hawk. Too much stress cannot be laid on this phase of the subject as long as the present attitude of organized labor remains unchanged.

Minority Opposes Attack on Labor.

To this attack on organized labor one member of the committee, Frederick W. Sinyers of Milwaukee, did not assent, and he refused to sign the report on the ground that it contained too many personal opinions. A minority report from him will be read later in the convention, and Mr. Ittner moved that the committee to be appointed to consider the majority report be specially authorized to cut out of it whatever it thought fit.

"We do not object to organized labor," he said amid applause. "We have to work with it. We do object to its methods. Some of them are damnable."

The rest of the report reviewed the general progress in the establishment of trade schools to remedy the defects of the ordinary public schools. It attacked the statement that employers are not willing to employ even as many apprentices as the union rules permit, and urged that what unwillingness exists is accounted for by the submission of all apprentices to the rules of the unions and their obligation to strike when called upon. It concluded with the words:

> We are pleased to state, however, that industrial freedom is in sight, and that it will be a matter of but a few more years when we will be blessed with the fullest possible industrial freedom, such as was vouchsafed to us by the Declaration of Independence and the Constitution of the United States. At least we hope so.

The Committee on Traffic was instructed last year to oppose the rise of 10 per cent. in freight rates, which the railroads were supposed to be contemplating. It found, however, that this rise was not put into force, and on asking instructions was directed by the Executive Committee not to bother with isolated increases, as some of the members of the association were in sympathy with the attempt of the railroads to advance their rates.

The committee report said:

> There have been indications that the railroads are advancing rates by indirect methods of which they are master, such as changing merchandise from a lower to a higher classification, by increasing the rates on single articles or commodities, by changes in rules, by increasing the minimum of car loads, by imposing switching charges where no charge had heretofore been made, or increasing such charges as were already made, and in various other ways.

The powers of the Inter-State Commerce Commission over freight rates are declared unsatisfactory because they gave the Commissioners no authority to deal with a rate, however unreasonable, until it was actually in force. A considerable period of time necessarily elapses between the date of the complaint and the completion of its investigation.

Consequently it was argued that a manufacturer might find that a contract extending over a long term might be turned into a losing one by a small alteration in freight rates, and the commission should receive authority to pass on all rates before they are enforced. This would, it was believed, result in vastly fewer changes being made.

The committee also touched on the immense variety of rates and declared that from July 1, 1906, to Jan. 15 this year, 150,000,000 rate items were filed with the Inter-State Commerce Commission. It was suggested that the Traffic Committee of the association be made permanent, and that a special department be organized at the New York office to deal with questions of this nature. The resolution was referred to the Executive Committee.

The Committee on Banking and Currency briefly reported against the inelastic currency systems of the United States and England, and had high praise for the system of France. It recommended that the association indorse the Fowler Currency bill.

John Barrett, Director of the International Bureau of American Republics, addressed the convention on South American trade. He said:

Tariff's Effect on Imports.

> There has been absolute neglect of the effect of the tariff on exports. Our exports are approaching $2,000,000,000 a year, $25 for every person in the country, and we should think of them as well as of our home trade and the revenue. Manufacturers should watch the schedules and see that they do not mean cutting off exports, which will do the country far more harm than the duties will do good.

Mr. Barrett favored a tariff commission, and went on to say:

> It is all poppycock to talk of any prejudice of Latin-America against us. They will buy just as quickly from the United States as from Europe, but we must not levy taxes against them. Our Ambassadors ought to attend to trade and commerce. I don't believe in Ambassadors who only think of their social duties. Even in capitals, where plush coats and knee breeches are the rule, our Ambassadors should be ready to put on their overalls and attend to trade.

Mr. Barrett defended the South American Republics against the idea that they are subject to continuous revolutions, and declared that the principal trouble was that they are now in the condition in which the United States was seventy years ago. They lack skilled labor, capital, and cheap fuel, but are splendidly rich in raw products. He touched on the fierce competition with European nations for South American trade and said that our manufacturers must remove the general feeling in South America that we desire to "hog the whole trade," and it would be a good thing if no duty was put on coffee or cacao and if hides were admitted free. He said there should be better steamship communication and a Latin-American bank should be established in New York.

DEFICIENT BOYS HAVE SKILL.

Backward and Difficult Youngsters Prove to Have Mechanical Talent.

A demonstration of the effectiveness of wood and metal work in arousing backward and mentally deficient children was given yesterday at the West Fifty-third Street School of the Children's Aid Society. The demonstration consisted largely of an exhibition of the work done in less than a year by a class of sixteen "difficult" children, ranging from eight to twelve years old. These were pupils on whom ordinary grade work had made no effect. They were hard to manage, and, as a last resort, they were sorted out from different grades and placed in this special workshop class.

Although the experiment has been going on less than a year, and the material what the teachers called most unpromising, there were more than two large benches full of satisfactory woodwork and an equally sizable exhibit of tooled and hammered brass and copper. Nearly every piece displayed had a history.

There was a beautiful tray of iridescent copper, made in the shape of an apple blossom, and carefully tooled, which was done by a nine-year-old mental defective. Although the boy seemed absolutely impervious to any other kind of learning, he has developed unusual mechanical and artistic skill in the metal working to which he devotes himself.

A brass picture frame in the shape of a six-pointed star is the outward and visible sign of another boy-problem solved. Its maker was hurt in childhood, losing an arm, so that at nine years he was not only physically handicapped, but nervous and extremely difficult to handle. When he found that he could do brass work with one hand, a change of heart came over the former bad boy, and he is now on the high road to advancement.

A skillfully constructed tool box in three layers represents the rousing of ambition in a listless, backward pupil. He has now decided that a man ought not to be content to be a street car conductor or a teamster when he grows up, but should work into a good trade and be a mechanic.

In these commercial days it is interesting to learn that the sale of twelve pieces of the class metal work to a downtown store did not stir the enthusiasm of the pupils half so much as each boy's being allowed to take home a sample of his skill at Christmas to give to his family.

HAWLEY REFUSES TO SELL C. & O. ROAD

Pennsylvania and N. Y. Central, Fearing a Trunk Line Rival, Try to Buy Him Out.

OFFER HIM A BIG PROFIT

He Turns It Down—Plans a Line from Chicago to the Seaboard—"Benevolent Neutrality" in Danger.

Persons who in banking quarters were understood to be acting in the interest of the Pennsylvania Railroad and of the New York Central made an offer to the Hawley syndicate recently, it was learned yesterday, for the repurchase of control of the Chesapeake & Ohio. The offer was refused.

The purpose of Edwin Hawley to make a trunk line out of the Chesapeake & Ohio in pursuance of a plan which he has formed for the development of the road on a broad scale is said to be in large measure responsible for the regret which is now felt by New York Central and Pennsylvania interests, that this control of the Chesapeake & Ohio, until recently within their hands, should have been permitted to pass to others, who, by the connections they may establish, may make it an active competitor of other Chicago-Atlantic seaboard lines instead of being governed by the policy of "benevolent neutrality."

In the light of this effort to buy out the Hawley syndicate from its control of the Chesapeake & Ohio renewed interest attaches to the recent repurchase by the Pennsylvania Railroad of the stock in the Norfolk & Western, which it sold in 1906 to Kuhn, Loeb & Co. about the same time it sold out its Chesapeake & Ohio to the same bankers, who later sold the stock to the Hawley syndicate. The syndicate at the same time acquired the New York Central's holdings of Chesapeake. It would appear from these developments that the Pennsylvania management's reason for buying back this Norfolk & Western was to guard against the possibility of a repetition of the Chesapeake & Ohio incident in the case of the Norfolk & Western, in which event the Pennsylvania would have had to meet from the Norfolk & Western the same kind of active competition which it now expects from the Chesapeake & Ohio.

By what route the Chesapeake & Ohio will be made to reach Chicago has not yet been made known, although it is admitted by representatives of the Hawley syndicate that the road is to be extended to that city. It has been rumored for some time that the syndicate is likely to acquire control of the Chicago, Cincinnati & Louisville, a road which some time ago went into receivership, and of which W. A. Bradford, Jr., is President. This line extends from Cincinnati, which is now reached by the Chesapeake & Ohio, to Chicago. To bring the "Bradford road," as it is known, up to the requirements of a link in a through line from Chicago to the seaboard would call for the expenditure of a considerable amount of money.

The offer which was made to the Hawley syndicate for its stock control of the Chesapeake & Ohio would have represented a large profit to the syndicate. The Hawley syndicate acquired a practical majority of the Chesapeake & Ohio's $62,799,000 stock at a cost of between $60 and $61 a share. It is now selling in the market at about $79 a share.

The inspection party made up of members of the Hawley syndicate which at the close of last week made a trip over the Chesapeake & Ohio returned to New York yesterday with satisfactory accounts of the progress which the road's traffic is making. The Chesapeake & Ohio is now handling 1,100 cars of coal a day, compared with 700 cars a day at this time last year, an increase of 20,000 tons a day in the road's coal traffic.

BARRELED A LUNATIC.

Jersey Policeman Adopts Enveloping Movement Against Meat Cleaver.

William Hughes of 11 Nicholson Street, Newark, became demented in that city yesterday. After he had armed himself with a meat cleaver, his family summoned the police. Patrolman Schott found himself unable to make an arrest by ordinary means.

Not wishing to hurt Hughes, the policeman looked about him for a harmless weapon. He found a large barrel. This he grasped firmly by its bottom as he approached Hughes. At the proper moment the policeman clapped the barrel over Hughes's head, bearing his weight downward.

Hughes, taken by surprise, collapsed under the barrel, and Schott, who weighs more than two hundred pounds, sat on the barrel until Hughes became so weak from his exertions that to escape he went willingly to the police station.

He will be examined to-day.

REWARD FOR ROCHE, MISSING TEN DAYS

Lawyer Offers $250 to Any One Who Will Find the Man in New York or Brooklyn.

HE GIVES NO EXPLANATION

Reported That He Had Been Seen in Harlem—Mrs. Roche Gives Detailed Description of Her Husband.

$250 reward for any person furnishing any information as to where Theodore M. Roche can be found in New York or Brooklyn. He is 56 years old, thick set, 5 feet 7¼ inches in height, 240 pounds in weight. He has a sandy complexion, gray curly hair, brown eyes, thick eyebrows. He recently disappeared, and is stopping somewhere under an assumed name.

This advertisement appearing several successive mornings in a newspaper has aroused a great deal of curiosity. The mystery it suggests is heightened by the refusal of its author, George W. Godward, a lawyer of 200 Broadway, to give any adequate explanation of it.

He does admit that Mr. Roche disappeared about ten days ago; that a man who knew him by sight reported that he had encountered him last Friday in Herald Square, and that Mrs. Roche gave the above accurate and detailed description of him. His disappearance has not been reported to the police officially, though they have heard of it. His name is in neither telephone book nor Directory of Manhattan, the Bronx, or Brooklyn.

Brandenburg Back in the Tombs.

Broughton Brandenburg, who was brought back on Sunday from San Francisco to answer a charge of grand larceny in the third degree in selling to THE NEW YORK TIMES an article purporting to have been written by the late President Cleveland, was committed to the Tombs yesterday by Justice Fitzgerald in the Criminal Branch of the Supreme Court. Samuel Bell Thomas, his counsel, told the court that no application for bail would be made, at present. No date has been set for the trial.

MURRAY AND DOYLE FLAY REDS' PITCHER

Notable Young Giants Bat Home Five of New York's Six Runs with Long Hits.

MATTY SCORES A SHUTOUT

Peerless Pitcher Keeps Hits Well Scattered and Pulls Out of Some Perilous Situations.

Egan, the first man up for the Cincinnati Reds in the first inning yesterday afternoon at the Polo Grounds, hit the ball to left field for three bases, and that, thanks primarily to Mathewson, was the nearest home any Red got in all the nine innings. Meanwhile the Giants, thanks again to Mathewson, Murray and Doyle, crossed the home plate six times.

There were 20,000 at the Polo Grounds on Saturday to see the Giants defeated; there were hardly 4,000 there yesterday to see them drub the Reds in the second of the series of four games. Monday had something to do with lessening the attendance; the cold, damp weather had more to do with it.

In that first half of the first inning, after Egan went to third, Oakes hit the ball down near the plate, and then got to first safely, Myers throwing wide to Tenney. None out and two on bases. It looked a little serious. Lobert popped up a fly to Bridwell. Mitchell sent a grounder to Tenney, who snatched it up and ran down the baseline, keeping his eye on Egan on third. Mitchell kept retreating until he was back to the home plate and was called out. Hoblitzell went out, Doyle to Tenney, and the Giants' sky cleared up.

One easily fielded grounder to Downey and two to Lobert retired the Giants in that inning. Rowan, pitching for the Reds, did good service the first half of the game, and until the sixth inning not a McGraw man reached second base. Mathewson made the first Giant hit, for a single, in the third inning, but was forced out at second on Tenney's grounder to Downey, making the third out that inning. Nor did the Reds get beyond first in those five innings.

Mathewson's hit was more effective in the sixth inning. The first Giant up then he drove the ball at Egan. Even this batted ball of his must have been a curve; it shunted off Egan's glove to left field, permitting a two-base hit. Tenney sacrificed beautifully, and Mathewson took third. Doyle struck out. McCormick was given his base.

Two out, two on bases, and "Red" Murray at the bat. There was considerable noise from even the 4,000. Again he filled all hopes. He drove the ball to centre. Oakes, who had been playing deep, naturally ran in to get the drive on the fly. He fell just before reaching it and the ball struck some of his feet and shunted far away. While he was recovering his feet and the ball Murray went on to third base, Mathewson and McCormick scoring.

The next inning the Giants scored three more runs, putting the game, according to the most approved slang, "on ice," as the 4,000 spectators had been for some time. Devlin, with none out, singled to centre. He took second while Hoblitzel was putting out Bridwell at first. Myers singled to centre and Devlin took third. Mathewson chopped the ball down in front of the plate. Rowan grabbed it up and got across Devlin's path, who went out dodging, while Myers took third and Matty got to second. Tenney was given first base by Rowan on balls.

Here were the bases full, with two out, Doyle was at the bat. He had already struck out twice. He was requested to redeem himself. He did. After fouling the ball over beyond third base several times he drove it in the same direction, out to the fence, off which it jumped, much to the disgust of Paskert. Doyle went on to third base, when Paskert threw home, all three runners scoring. If the Saturday's 20,000 had just been there to root for that. McCormick went out, Lobert to Hoblitzel.

In the eighth Murray was the first Giant up. He drove the ball to left field for two bases, and then took third on Rowan's wild pitch. O'Hara, who had got no hit up to date, and who had struck out once, singled to left, bringing Murray home. Hoblitzel snatched up Devlin's grounder, touched first base, and threw out O'Hara at second. Bridweli was out, Egan to Hoblitzel.

There was no more scoring.

In the ninth Egan, the first Red up, singled cleanly to left. Oakes flied out to McCormick. Egan took second on Lobert's single to left. But Mitchell flied out to Doyle, and Hoblitzel went out, Tenney to Mathewson, and the shutout was completed.

O'Hara, who has been working on probation, it was said yesterday, has been promoted to full Giantship. Baltimore is not to get him back. The score:

Now straws spring up, and you want to know what's what.

First, sailor shapes—rough braids and smooth, with a tendency toward wider brims for young men. Our "Victor Jay" London straws are among the sailors—"boaters" the English call 'em. $2 to $4.

Then soft straws—the Mackinaw and Milan braids; conservative high crowns with moderate brims for older men; lower crowns and wider brims with "pencil curl" for their juniors. $3 and $4.

And "neglige" straws—a wider variety than ever. Three shapes of Panamas at $5, $10 and $15; and three of the still lighter Leghorns at $5.

Bangkok straws—the very lightest of all, in telescope ("college") and the Alpine shapes. $6 and $10.

Boys' straw hats too.

"Star" neglige shirts are a match for the most critical examiner.

Their patterns are always centered on the bosoms and matched on the cuffs—not always the case with negliges. $1.50 to $5.

PASTORIOUS SUITS PIRATES.

National League Leaders Score Eleven Runs to One for Brooklyn.

Pastorious lost his cunning against the Pittsburg team yesterday, for the leaders in the National League race came away from Washington Park with an 11 to 1 victory over the Brooklyns. In the five innings that the Brooklyn "southpaw" officiated he gave nine men bases on balls, was hit safely eight times, including a three-bagger by Leifield, and eleven runs were the result. Furthermore the fielding of the Superbas was execrable, Lennox celebrating his reappearance after suspension with a dropped fly and a wildly thrown ball. Scanlon, who succeeded Pastorious in the sixth inning, kept the Smoky City players down to three hits without a run.

It looked like a shut-out for the Brooklyns when they appeared at the bat in the eighth inning, but singles by Burch and Alperman and Barbeaute's bad throw to first in an effort to get Alperman after making a good catch of Jordan's foul fly enabled Burch to make Brooklyn's only run.

Alperman seemed to have no trouble with Leifield's delivery, getting three safeties out of four times at the bat, while Manager Clarke of the Pittsburgs was sent to first four times on called balls out of six times at bat. The score:

Cubs Win; Chance Injured.

PHILADELPHIA, May 17.—Chicago scored an easy victory here to-day by hitting the ball hard. Covaleski was knocked off the rubber in the sixth inning. Manager Chance had his injured left shoulder subjected to an X-ray examination to-day, and it was discovered that a bone was broken. The injury was caused by a collision between Chance and Gibson of Pittsburg nearly two weeks ago. Chance will be kept out of the game a month. The score:

YANKEES WIN HARD UPHILL FIGHT, 6 TO 5

Shifts in the New York Team Bring Victory in Twelfth Inning.

BROCKETT SUPPLANTS LAKE

Cleveland Batsmen Like Joe's Pitching, but Brockett Stops the Naps—Athletics Beat White Sox.

Special to The New York Times.

CLEVELAND, May 17.—By sending Brockett into the box to relieve Lake in the sixth inning, shifting his field, and substituting batters, Manager Stallings brought his Yankees up from behind and took the second game away from the Naps when it looked like an easy victory for the locals. Score, 6 to 5, twelve innings.

The Cleveland players seemed to have awakened from their long sleep and played with old-time ginger, but errors in the eighth inning allowed New York to tie the score. It went that way till the twelfth, when by hits and two errors the Yankees got the winning run.

New York started the runmaking in the second inning, when Engle got a pass to first, was sent to second by Chase's sacrifice, and put across the plate by Laporte's single to centre. One more run was added in the third, when Cree doubled, went to third on an out, and scored on a wild pitch.

Cleveland then tied the score by some real classy playing. Goode beat out an infield hit, and, advancing on Bradley's out, tallied when Turner hit sharply to left. Turner stole second, Lajoie walked, and, after Stovall had forced Turner at third, Clarke sent Lajoie home by a single to right, but was out trying to stretch it to a double.

Seeing a chance to win a game, the Naps added another run in the fourth. Birmingham started off with a hit, was sacrificed to second by Lord, and scampered home when Berger's grounder went through Austin for a single.

Getting the scoring habit, Cleveland chalked up two men in the fifth. Lajoie walked, Stovall hit for a sacrifice, but Chase threw the ball over Austin's head, advancing both runners a base. Then Clarke singled and both men went home.

For a minute it looked like more runs, for with but one out Chase made a fumble that gave Lord a life, and the swift outfielder at once stole second, but Berger and Goode could not hit safely.

In the sixth Brockett was sent to the box, and Cleveland's chances to score never came again, Brockett allowing but two hits. In the eighth, when the fans began to think the Naps would really win a game, the surprise came. Elberfeld singled and stole. Engle doubled to left, scoring Elberfeld. Chase singled to right, scoring Engle. Laporte sacrificed, Berger to Stovall. Hemphill batted for Austin and struck out. Chase took third on a wild pitch and Demmitt was safe on Turner's error, Chase scoring. Brockett filed to Bradley. Three runs were in and the score was tied.

Knight was sent to short and Blair behind the bat, and the battle went merrily on. In the twelfth, after Elberfeld was out, Engle singled, went to third on another bad throw by Clarke, and scored on Chase's bunt, which was too well placed to handle. Cleveland tried to get the run back when Stovall started off with a single and was sacrificed to second by Perring, but the next two men were easy out. The score:

Tigers Win on Crawford's Triple.

DETROIT, May 17.—Crawford tripled in the eighth inning, with the bases full, and decided the game in favor of Detroit. One run already had been scored and Crawford got home on Rossman's long fly. Stahl's triple, coming between singles by Hooper and Niles, gave Boston 2 of its runs. It was Pitcher Killilan's first appearance this season. McConnell's fielding was a feature. Carrigan and Moriarty have been suspended indefinitely because of their altercation on Sunday. Score:

AN ISSUE FOR MR. TAFT.

In a moment of extraordinary candor last year, the Ohio Republicans, under the guidance of their candidate for the Presidency, formulated a principle of tariff reduction. The tariff taxes were to be no higher than the difference between foreign and domestic cost, with a reasonable profit to the American producer. In one sense, of course, this is rank State Socialism, since there is no more reason why the legislative power should be used to secure profits to manufacturers than there is for using it to secure high wages to workingmen, high fees to doctors, or good returns to farmers. But protection is State Socialism at the best, and this phase of it had the merit of fixing an upward limit to exactions from the mass of the people for the benefit of the manufacturers. The principle was ultimately, again under pressure from the Presidential candidate and from the then Administration, adopted by the National Convention of the Republican Party. It was accepted, expounded, emphasized, and repeatedly urged by Mr. TAFT during the campaign, and when Mr. PAYNE'S Committee met it was announced, with much zeal, that experts had been engaged all the Fall in making the necessary investigations to enable the Committee to apply this principle, which they intended to do with firmness and impartiality.

There the matter apparently was dropped. The House Committee had prepared for its use a handsome volume of some thousand pages, in which all the facts pertinent to the work of the Committee were supposed to be arrayed in an orderly fashion, every item in each schedule of the tariff having separate treatment. But in this vast mass of figures it was utterly futile to hunt for any adequate information as to the foreign and domestic cost of producing the articles upon which competition was to be restricted by taxation. In the stenographic reports of the hearings before the Committee, covering other thousands of pages, the hunt for any sufficient or even plausible evidence on the question of foreign and domestic cost proved equally in vain. At best, the vague estimates of interested parties were taken. The discussion of the Committee's bill and report in the House was perfunctory. The Committee made no serious attempt to enlighten the House on this matter, as, indeed, it would have been foolish in them to try to do, since they were totally in the dark about it themselves.

When, however, the bill went to the Senate and was met by what was practically a substitute prepared under the rule of Mr. ALDRICH, discussion was unavoidable. A certain number of Senators, mainly from the Middle West and the Mississippi Valley States, set to work to see if any light could be obtained on this subject. They have been at it now for over a month. They have been diligent, urgent even, ingenious, searching, in their questioning, and they have utterly failed. They have not even succeeded in making the champions of the beneficiaries of the tariff acknowledge that the Senate and the country are entitled to any definite information on the point. The stand-patters have practically insisted that when men wishing a tax on their foreign competitors declared that the tax must be at a certain specified rate or their factories would have to close down and their workmen sent to join the army of the unemployed, that should satisfy the most inquisitive minds. As for the common herd that pay the taxes many times over for the profit of the protected interests, they deserve no consideration in the eyes of the stand-patters. They are not represented in the lobby. Their votes are not organized. They are an ignorant, supine, amorphous mass of mere American citizens. No Senator can "do business" with them. So the hunt of the "insurgent" Senators for usable data as to the principle of difference in cost and limitation of protection has been the vain pursuit of a political will o' the wisp, with this difference, that the will o' the wisp is a phenomenon of nature, the famous "principle" of adjustment of the tariff is an invention intended to mislead and deceive.

At least it is that to the honorable gentlemen who are serving the interests and obeying the behests of the favorites of the tariff. What is it in the mind of President TAFT? No one could be more explicitly committed to a definite policy as to a great political issue than he is to the policy of protection limited to difference in cost and a reasonable profit. It is in itself far from a good or just or defensible policy. Gross mischief and wrong might under it be inflicted on great multitudes of the American people. But it is a policy which, fairly, intelligently, firmly and in a businesslike fashion applied to the actual tariff, would remedy mischiefs and wrongs still more outrageous. Does Mr. TAFT mean to enforce its application? It is the gravest issue that has been presented to a President in many a year. It involves the welfare of the whole country, the honor of the party in power, the worth of the pledged word of the President.

VICTORIA AND VANCOUVER.

The Mayor of Vancouver asked his Finance Committee last week to appropriate what was necessary to entertain the sailors from the Japanese squadron now on a visit to the ports of its ally. The money was refused, because, in the immortal and burning words of Alderman MCMILLAN, "we ought to show the Japanese how well prepared we are to shoot them." The Trades and Labor Council of Vancouver was not a whit less Chauvinistic, formally deciding that no labor organization should take part in the hospitalities to the guests of the mother country's colony. San Francisco itself could not have gone further against the National policy.

The Japanese squadron arrived according to programme, and on Saturday night appeared "the strangest parade ever seen in Victoria." Four hundred sailors from the Japanese warships marched arm in arm with sailors and marines from the Esquimault station, the hosts escorting their guests aboard after the smoking concert following the reception given by the garrison. Who can say this is not as it should be, whatever the future holds in store? These fraternizing fighters may face each others' muzzles when the boasting Aldermen are far from the firing line, but to-day they are at peace, and are acting like civilized men, white and brown alike. Victoria makes Vancouver look foolish by comparison, and sets an example which may well be followed by ourselves whenever Admiral IJICHI'S vessels come into a port where the sentiment is like Vancouver's.

BANKNOTES, GOLD, AND FOREIGN TRADE.

There were published yesterday several apparently unrelated items of news which gain significance when brought together. The customary weekly increase of banknote circulation was only $624,290, but it brings the total to about $690,000,000. That is a maximum record, about $100,000,000 above the circulation at this time of the year before the panic, when certainly there was a greater need for hand-to-hand money than now.

At that time it was impossible to get banknotes enough, and to supply the deficiency of currency we imported gold. Now it is impossible to reduce the redundant banknote circulation, and it is stimulating exports of gold. On the first of this month the gold in our circulation was $1,413,800,000, against $1,445,400,000 last year. Yesterday $2,000,000 gold was engaged for export to Holland, and this year we have exported something like $49,000,000.

Yesterday were published the figures of our foreign trade, showing an excess of exports of $2,990,151, as compared with $45,989,075 for April last year. For the ten months of the fiscal year the excess of exports is $351,047,143, a decrease of $262,554,309. This is mostly accounted for by the decrease of exports, although the increase of imports has lately attracted attention. For the ten months the imports this year were $1,071,247,953, against $1,018,345,740, but for April alone the increase was from $87,481,258 last year to $122,211,068.

The relation between the increase of banknotes and the expulsion of gold is too plain for elaboration, but the relation between the exports of gold and the imports of merchandise is more obscure. It is most generally attributed to anticipation of possible increases of customs, which is surely a remarkable commentary upon the action of a Congress which was to revise the tariff downward. Some of the increase is also attributed to revival of trade, but this is a remarkable attribution regarding imports of diamonds and automobiles, and other similar goods which we are under no necessity to import, but which are a drug upon markets where depression of trade is severer than among ourselves. It would seem that there is another less familiar factor at work, the reverse of the maxim that water seeks the lowest level. Capital seeks its highest appraisal, going where it is most wanted and bid highest for. Our merchandise market is the world's highest, thus accounting both for the check to our exports and the increase of imports. But France is the world's highest market for gold, and it goes there naturally. The movements are distinct, and in opposite directions, but they explain each other. We are keeping the goods which we are overvaluing, and we are parting with the gold which we undervalue. If our bankers were free to use their judgment they would probably act as does the Bank of France, stocking up with the basis of credit while it is cheap, in order to part with it when it is dear. But what's the use of doing that in the United States, where gold is disqualified for banking purposes by law, and where last week New York banks added $10,114,925 to their reserves in the same week that we exported $2,682,866 gold?

We are losing gold from our superfluity, it is true, but not for that reason should we overlook the economic and financial significance of what is happening. We have more gold than is in circulation, no less than $1,613,000,000 in all, or more than any other country. Of the thirteen billions of gold produced since the discovery of America, we have produced one-quarter, and for the last decade the increase in our gold money—according to Treasury figures published yesterday—has been about the same as the increase in the world's stock. No nation in the world has the same command over gold, not even France, to whom we are losing gold, and yet no nation in the world has such disturbed finances. For example, the Treasury is spending more than it collects, and is under the necessity of issuing bonds in the near future. If it issues 2 per cent. bonds it must give the note circulation privilege to keep them at par, and thus increase the undesirable effects already remarked upon. If it withholds that privilege it must issue 3 per cent. bonds. In any normal market there would be a difference in price between 2 per cent. and 3 per cent. bonds, and since the 3 per cent. bonds could not sell much above par, and 2 per cent. bonds could not on an investment basis bring par, we should see the basis of our banknotes fall below their face value. We still have an option to amend our preposterous currency laws, but soon we shall be under compulsion.

HUDSON-FULTON ACCOMPLISHMENT

The Hudson-Fulton Celebration Commission asks for contributions to a Citizens' Fund of $500,000—checks to be made payable to ISAAC N. SELIGMAN, Treasurer, 1 William Street, this city—that will assure success to the tercentenary of HUDSON'S discovery in 1609 and the centenary of the river's navigation by steam in 1807. There will, of course, be generous response to this appeal. The feasting and the pageantry next Fall will have more than a passing effect. They will draw the eyes of the Nation to the needs of the Hudson's desecrated but war-hallowed and still beautiful shores. The Commission has already done something toward their preservation. It has in the Merritt Highlands bill—to which, we trust, Gov. HUGHES will affix his signature—for the first time embodied in legislation a State's undoubted right to restrict the cutting of private wild forests.

Wild timber land is derived originally from the State. It may not be wasted so as to impoverish the State or its people. On April 6, 1908, the Federal Supreme Court declared through Justice HOLMES that the Commonwealth of Maine, as a sovereign power, "has a standing in court to protect the atmosphere, the water, and the forests" within its confines, "irrespective of the assent or dissent of the private owners of the land most immediately concerned."

The sub-committee of which Judge ALTON B. PARKER is Chairman not only drew the Merritt bill but strove for the passage of an act creating a permanent Highlands Commission, like that which rescued and preserved the Palisades. We do not doubt that the next Legislature will see fit to pass this most important of the Hudson-Fulton Commission's bills. Meanwhile Gov. HUGHES is privileged to lead the Governors of other States in affirming the new principle of State jurisdiction over private forest lands.

THE NEW BACONIAN CIPHER.

A Mr. BOOTH of Cambridge, Mass., has written a book in which he makes known a cipher newly discovered by him in the First Folio Shakespeare, which indicates that BACON wrote the plays and poems. This is the third cipher discovered in that famous book to the same effect. IGNATIUS DONNELLY'S was the first. Mrs. GALLUP'S is the most extensive and original. It not only reveals BACON'S authorship of the plays, but makes known many previously hidden passages of his life. It also reveals "a scandal about Queen ELIZABETH." Three several and distinct ciphers, therefore, must exist in the same book, which also contains the most remarkable body of verse in English literature.

Mr. BOOTH'S cipher is intelligible and workable. It is found in the dedication, in the poems, in all the plays. The discoverer declares that it is frequently keyed. It is a most accommodating cipher. One reviewer of the book, not liking the way in which Mr. BOOTH has traced the cipher of FRANCIS BACON, in MILTON'S famous sonnet on SHAKESPEARE, (the existence of which must prove that MILTON knew of BACON'S authorship of the plays,) has been at pains to discover a better and more scientific cipher to the same effect in the same poem. Another reviewer, quite carried away by the irresistible force of this discovery, points out the existence of the same Bacon cipher in a paragraph of his own review. In the lines inscribed to the Droeshout portrait, which forms the frontispiece of the First Folio, a cipher indicating that Mark Twain is identical with SHAKESPEARE is easily discoverable. One may read in the cipher, if he chooses, anything he wants to read in almost any medium. Mr. BOOTH reads, by his cipher method, in the first scene of "Hamlet": "Who goes there? WILLIAM SHAKESPEARE. Exit. For this relief much thanks. FRANCIS BACON." Following his rule one may read in part of a paragraph of a recent editorial of The London Times on the Lloyd-George budget: "WINSTON CHURCHILL made the budget. Supertaxation of the rich is his favorite notion." In two stanzas of "The Rape of Lucrece" which Mr. BOOTH holds particularly useful in proving the existence of the Bacon cipher one may read the name of THEODORE ROOSEVELT from right to left downward, and from left to right upward, beginning and ending on the first and last letters.

An editorial writer of The Sun discovered the Roosevelt acrostic in the lines on the Droeshout portrait. We have had our doubts about this important discovery originating in The Sun office, suspecting that it was contributed by some intimate friend of The Sun possessing inside information. This suspicion is amply confirmed by our discovery of the cipher in this paragraph of the editorial article in question:

This is tHe rEvelation Of surpassing interest which Mr. William Stone Booth of CambrIDge has barely missed. Not only does the acrOstic of Francis Bacon stand Revealed, but also thE name of Francis BacOn's gReat collaborator. And if any inveStigator with an arithmetical habit of mind dEsires to appreciate fully the elaborate care and mathematical exactitude with which the acrostic of Theodore RooseyElt was woVen into the lines attributed to Ben Jonson, Let him counT the position of Each Significant letter in its line, threaDing accordIng To Mr. Booth's directIons from left tO right And then reversing from right to Left.

There, indeed, is a revelation full of significance: "THEODORE ROOSEVELT'S EDITORIAL." From the wilds of Africa the voice of the Colonel is heard, as it should be heard, in solution of an important literary problem. This shows us what a flexible, adaptable, convenient cipher is this new discovery by BOOTH of Cambridge.

All True, but Injudicious.

Admiral SIGSBEE, who, as Capt. SIGSBEE, commanded the Maine when that vessel was blown up in Havana Harbor, made, in the course of a lecture delivered in Washington Sunday evening, some statements which are unfortunate, not because they were either inaccurate or unreasonable, but because they are sure to be misinterpreted by the queer people who insist on believing that the Maine was or may have been destroyed by an interior explosion.

That theory, as none knows better than the Admiral, is not only without enough basis of fact to raise it into the realm of possibility, but its falsity was long since demonstrated beyond the questioning of anybody not so eager to discredit the United States Government and navy as to ignore all the evidence in the case. Realizing this, the Admiral discussed the proposition to raise the Maine merely as an engineering problem, and expressed the opinion that the task would be one of enormous expense and difficulty if it were performed in such a way as to bring the ship to the surface in the condition in which it now lies half buried in the harbor mud.

People have forgotten, he said, how much the Maine suffered from the explosion. The few parts still above the surface of the water give but little indication of the torn and twisted wreckage out of sight. To maintain the existing relations of the shattered parts would be a very different thing from the ordinary raising of a little-injured vessel. It would require, among other things, the construction of a coffer dam around the whole wreck, and this would involve the prolonged exposure of a lot of mud as noxious as is to be found in the world for a considerable period to the tropic sun, with consequences to the health of the city that might be serious. Raised in sections small enough to be manageable, of course nothing one way or the other would be proved as to the nature of the explosion to those still in doubt about it.

In conclusion, Admiral SIGSBEE noted the fact that the Maine on the bottom occupies much less harbor space than she did when swinging at anchor, so the need of her removal is not desperate on that account, and his suggestion as to final disposition was that she be blown up in detail, with no systematic attempt to recover the fragments. All that is sensible enough, but so long and bitter has been the controversy over the matter that even the semblance of opposition to raising the Maine should not come from anybody connected with the navy. The navy has nothing to fear, and it is under no obligation to dissuade others from paying for raising the ship if they choose. Certainly it should be got out of the way of commerce somehow or other in order that the whole lamentable episode may be the sooner forgotten.

Train Robbery of the Worst Kind.

Train robbing has several points of likeness to the piracy of other days, and just as the pirate was held an enemy of the human race, with his life forfeited to anybody who could catch him, so the train robbers who go about their work with arms in their hands deserve the severest and promptest of punishment, and in their pursuit no such things as State or National boundaries should be recognized. For the train robber, in his quest for booty, almost always endangers, and often takes, the lives of people who are not interested in the property he seeks, and who have no defense against his attacks except such as can be given them by a rigorous execution of a stern law after the attacks have been made.

The latest exploit of these bandits, the "hold-up" of a Great Northern train out in Washington, was marked by a peculiar atrocity. After the locomotive and mail car had been detached from the rest of the train in the familiar way, and taken ahead some miles to a place where the mail bags could be searched without fear of interruption from the passengers, the robbers, out of what seems to have been mere desire to kill, set the forward section in motion backward before starting for the mountains, and that it did not do more than injure a few persons in the cars that had been left behind was due only to the fact that the quick-witted conductor was able somewhat to diminish the force of the collision by throwing a tie under the wheels of the cars in motion just before they struck those standing still.

This, so far as we recall, is an entirely new feature of train robbing. It may have been an accidental result of the handling of the locomotive by inexperienced men, it may have been a more thoughtless manifestation of brutal recklessness, or it may have been a deliberate attempt to facilitate escape by concentrating attention for a few hours upon a terrible wreck with scores of dead and injured victims. The third of these suppositions is far from the least probable, and its plausibility ought to lend redoubled vigor to the pursuit of the robbers.

Toleration Carried to Extremes.

It is hard to understand why the French Government permits the almost public gathering of its avowed enemies to plot its destruction. No other description would apply to the Royalist dinner held in Paris Sunday evening.

Under guise of celebrating the beatification of Joan of Arc, some 500 persons assembled to toast "the King," to denounce the republic in violent speeches, and to proclaim the intention of restoring the monarchy in a near future. A futile and unalarming lot the Royalists of France doubtless are, but they are quite capable of taking advantage of perilous situations created for them by more energetic revolutionists, and in spirit and intention they are unquestionably traitors.

It is all very well to talk about free speech, but such tirades as that made by Senator LE BRETON went far beyond the permissible limits of liberty, and to have silenced him would have been the ordinary self-defense of any established Government, and in no sense an exercise of tyranny.

AMERICAN MICA.

Pleads That Import Tax of 3,700 Per Cent. is Justifiable.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

I have read with some interest an article entitled "Duty on Mica," written by Mr. W. J. Gibson of New York, in your issue of May 9. Mr. Gibson is evidently not well posted on the production of mica in the United States or foreign countries. My company has four large Muscovite mica mines in South Dakota, one mine yielding during the year 1908 1,250,000 pounds of rough-mined mica with a comparatively small force of men; the other three equally as productive when conditions warrant their operation. This statement is verified in the records of the Geological Survey Department at Washington, whose representative visited our property and has written an extensive article setting forth what can be done with the mica industry in the United States, if properly developed and managed.

The quality of the product of these mines is equal, if not superior, to the very best India mica ever imported. This the writer would willingly demonstrate to Mr. Gibson, (if he so desires,) and will prove to his satisfaction that there is an abundance of Muscovite mica equal to the consumption of the entire electrical and stove industry to be found in eighteen States of the Union, which will be fully developed if the Dingley tariff rate remains, or a rate equally as good and affording proper protection.

May I put to Mr. Gibson this simple question: Are the miners and producers of domestic mica not justified in asking for a specific and ad valorem duty that will amply protect an industry employing labor to whom wages of from $3.50 to $4 per day are paid, while in India from 8 cents to 15 cents per day is paid to those who produce this material?

Mica is not "easily taken out of the ground," as he states, for we are purchasing dynamite in carload lots, shipped to South Dakota for the purpose of extracting the mineral, not "easily," but with much difficulty and expense. Also, mica is no less and no more a product of nature than numerous other articles in their crude and unmanufactured state, which are represented in the tariff bill.

LOW PRICES FOR APPLES.

Says the New York Farmer Gets Not Over $1 a Bushel.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

I am part owner of 119 acres of farm land in the Hudson Valley, 7 acres of which are devoted to apple growing. I readily agree with Mr. Powell's statement in THE TIMES that apples are as prolific and of as good (if not better) quality in New York as in Oregon. But to me, as to other farmers, the most vital question is, How to obtain prices which would compensate for the trouble and expense of cultivating a high-grade apple.

If Mr. Powell can show us an easy and inexpensive method of preserving the fruit and how to market it profitably, he would indeed be conferring a boon, and at the same time give an incentive to those interested in apple growing in the State of New York. Every practical farmer knows that as long as he can get only 75 cents or $1 per barrel, it does not pay him to grow apples.

Beating Rugs a Seven-Year Plague.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

For the past seven years—a sacred number—the beating of rugs in the yards of some of the upper west side houses of well-to-do citizens has not only annoyed the ears of the strong and healthy, but has been a source of extreme discomfort to the "shut-ins." Added to this the dust flies in every direction, settles upon the next door neighbor's fine linen, or enters the window laden with germs, which often produce illness and death. The Health Board responds gallantly—whenever called upon—by sending a good-looking officer to inquire where the beating is being done. The house is pointed out. The officer promises to do all that he can, and the next year the programme is repeated. For seven years this has been going on, and now the tired housewife cries, "How long shall this thing be, against the law and yet allowed?" M. C. T.

"Orbur."

To the Editor of The New York Times:

A new word is now required to take the place of "aerial garage." We no longer say "automobile stable." Take the first part of Orville Wright's first name and the last part of Wilbur Wright's first name and you have "orbur," which may in the future designate the shed or building in which an aeroplane is kept.

Another new word is needed for the platform where the machines alight and from which they depart. Is it not likely that prominent rock formations like Mount Morris Park in Harlem will be at a premium as stations? There are several such in the Bronx—one, in particular, that I know of near 149th Street and Trinity Avenue is a perfect plateau, and all about fifty feet up in the air.

Organist Hall and the Bishop.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

May I correct a wrong impression which is conveyed in an article in THE TIMES this morning relating to the Cathedral organist?

The headline "Mr. Hall defies the demands of Bishop Greer and the Trustees" is misleading.

My respect for Bishop Greer and the Trustees would preclude any such attitude. My position is simply this: Inasmuch as no reasons have been given for my sudden retirement by the Trustees, it seemed to me, in justice to myself and my profession, that the action should be taken by the Cathedral authorities rather than by myself.

Flouts Importer of Cotton Yarns.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

Your correspondent "Importer," whose letter appears in to-day's issue, infers that the (possible) payment of 35 per cent. dividends by certain cotton yarn spinning mills is sufficient reason for the reduction of duties on cotton yarns. It may be so, but when, as during the past year, certain sizes have been imported and sold at less prices than they can be bought from the American spinner, the industry and all patriots will, under similar conditions, welcome an increase of duty to such an extent as will secure goods made in the United States an equal chance of being sold in the home market. An importer's interest is the last that should receive consideration.

THE BATTLE OVER TEA.

Shall Tea be Free or Dutiable?—The Arguments Pro and Con to Payne Tariff Makers.

Specially Written for THE NEW YORK TIMES.

No article in the long schedules and free list making up the Payne Tariff bill has excited so much controversy and conflict of interest as tea. Around this one item is being waged a battle extending to every nook and corner of the United States. Hundreds of thousands of circulars are flooding the country, delegation upon delegation has visited Washington, and a special organization, embracing retailers throughout the country and large tea shipping interests here and abroad, has been organized to push the propaganda in favor of keeping tea upon the free list, as it is under the existing Dingley bill.

The argument from this point of view has been the familiar one in behalf of the consumer, an argument that should have great weight when supported by the facts. This side of the controversy is best set forth in one of the circulars that have been sent out. Here it is:

> In the interest of millions of American consumers we hereby voice their sentiment in opposition to any duty upon tea. The quantity of tea imported into this country is about 90,000,000 pounds annually. The use of tea is not a luxury, but as much a necessity as the use of bread. It is to the average consumer a vital part of the daily food supply. The suggested duty of 8 or 9 cents per pound will fall upon those who use tea as a necessity and not upon the few who purchase the most expensive teas as a luxury. Ninety per cent. of the tea consumed in this country is of moderate price, and as the profit upon all such teas is small the added duty will of necessity be paid by the consumer. The importer, jobber, wholesaler, and retailer cannot pay it at the present low price to the consumer. The consumer is the one who will pay. The added duty will increase the cost of teas to the great majority practically 10 cents per pound, which means an increase of from 30 to 40 per cent. upon present prices. This increased cost will affect nearly 90 per cent. of all tea users, who represent more than 5,000,000 families of our population.

When the Spanish war tax was imposed upon tea, importations of the choicest grades of Japan teas declined 75 per cent. Teas from other countries were similarly affected. The tax had this effect: The better class paid the duty by receiving a poorer grade; the poorer people paid the tax by having 10 cents per pound added to the price. This is a fact, not theory. We believe such a duty not only unnecessary, but unjust and onerous as well. Such a duty would violate all the tariff principles of the Republican Party, would be most unpopular, and would impose a galling hardship upon the great working masses of the country, who are to-day the consumers of fully 90 per cent. of all teas. It is not a duty for protection, and a duty for revenue should never be levied upon the necessities of the poor, but, if at all, upon the luxuries of the rich.

When the Payne bill was introduced in the House of Representatives tea had been taken off the "free list" and a duty of 10 cents a pound placed upon it. Then arose a bitter conflict to have this duty stricken off, certain tea and coffee interests joining hands to bring the subject of the duty on both these articles to the attention of Congress through pressure from their tea and coffee buying constituents at home. As a result, when the Payne bill passed the House, tea and coffee were again upon the free list.

Against the free tea men has arisen an important and expert opposition of tea importers. These men, who are among the leaders of the association of New York, and have been for years among the largest tea importing firms of the United States, combat practically every argument used by the recently organized Coffee and Tea Association and its supporters.

They say, first of all, that the consumer would not suffer in the least by a duty of 10 cents a pound on tea; that, on the contrary, such a duty would be borne entirely by the producing countries and the distributers and retailers of the United States. Further, they say that on the average, approximately one-half the tax would be paid by the exporting country, and the balance would be deducted from the large profits over import cost.

These opposing tea firms say that a duty on tea operates to curtail the ever-increasing hold which foreign firms, without capital invested in this country, have upon the wholesale tea-distributing business of the country. It is pointed out that Canada maintains a discriminating duty of 10 per cent. ad valorem on tea against the United States, while admitting tea free when imported from other countries.

But the most damaging statement made by these latter firms is that the consumer, concerning whose welfare the free tea men profess to be so deeply concerned, really are paying now, under a free-tea régime, an advance of from 250 to 350 per cent. over the import price; that the average import tea price is 15 cents per pound, and that it is a matter of common knowledge that its average retail price exceeds 50 cents per pound.

To clinch this argument the friends of a duty on tea produce this table to show the retail price and the average import cost of tea now being retailed in New York City:

Description.	Retail Price. Per Lb.	Average Import Cost.
Formosa	60c.	15c. to 16c.
Congou	50c.	14c.
Congou	60c.	15c. to 16c.
Blended	60c.	20c.
Blended	50c.	11c. to 12c.
Blended	50c.	16c. to 17c.
Congou	50c.	12c. to 12½c.
Formosa	60c.	18c. to 19c.
Congou	60c.	16c.
Formosa	60c.	19c. to 20c.
Blended India-Ceylon	80c.	17c. to 19c.
Blended India-Ceylon	60c.	17c.
Blended India-Ceylon	80c.	18c. to 19c.

It is contended that these figures represent actual purchases, during the month of April, from six large dealers in teas, in this city, including teas representing the output of well-known foreign package tea firms.

To prove the contention that the duty would be borne between the foreign exporter and the retailer, not by the consumer, it is pointed out that public circulars issued by American export houses in Japan show that, in 1903, immediately after the repeal of the 10-cent Spanish-American war tax on tea, the per picul price of Japan tea advanced 10 to 12 yen, equivalent to 6 cents gold per pound.

Japan, and her dependency, Formosa, exports more than one-half the tea consumed in the United States, but during the imposition of the 10-cent war tax Japan exported only 15 per cent. of the amount consumed in the United States, that is during the seasons of 1903 and 1902. Following the repeal of the tax, during the seasons 1903-1900, Japan absorbed fully one-half of the trade.

A heavier indictment brought by the opponents of the no duty régime is that "the curse of the United States tea trade has been poor tea of high retail prices," and that this deterioration in quality has resulted in a tremendous falling off in the per capita consumption of tea in the United States, both relatively to former years, and to the principal countries of Europe.

The annual consumption, it is said, has been reduced to one pound per head of the population. In 1872 the consumption was one and a half pounds, notwithstanding the average import cost was 36 cents, duty 15 cents, a total of 51 cents; while now, under a no-duty régime, the import and total cash averages onnly 15 cents.

The opponents of the green tea men claim that this is a demonstration of their claim that, notwithstanding an immense decline in import cost, the consumption of tea in the United States has fallen off as a direct result of the decline in the quality of the teas imported. They point to the fact that England collects a revenue from tea varying from 10 cents to 12 cents per pound and that, notwithstanding this, excellent teas are retailed there at a much lower price than in the United States and that, furthermore English consumption of tea is six times the consumption of the United States.

Russia levies a duty of more than 40 cents a pound on tea, and Russia gets the best tea in the world. Only the good tea would be shipped with such a duty, and so these firms contend the consumer would get the benefit. Where no duty is levied the lowest grades naturally have the easiest entrance and market. If these were sold at low prices, or prices with a reasonable profit, the consumption might not be affected, but an advance of 200 per cent. to 400 per cent. over the import cost is, in conjunction with inferior quality, at once reflected in the consumption.

And so the war goes on, literally another "revolution over tea." The Finance Committee of the Senate on Friday last in reporting certain belated administrative features of the tariff brings tea and coffee under the famous "maximum and minimum" clause, under rates of 5 cents and 10 cents per pound respectively. This does not mean that 10 cents per pound will actually be placed on tea; it means, in its present form, that the President may impose that rate of duty if the country from which the tea comes discriminates against the United States or gives a preferential rate of duty on any product to another country, or places an export tax upon an article of import into the United States. Whether this will strike Japan or other tea exporting countries would, therefore, be an open question.

There is another element, independent of the tea importers, who favor a duty on tea as well as coffee. These are the strict revenue tariff men. They contend that these two articles would bring a large direct revenue to the Treasury of the United States, and that as there is no corresponding domestic product of the United States all the revenue would flow into the Treasury and more in the form of protective tariff prices, into the pockets of private parties. In other words, there would be but one tax and that tax would go to the Government.

But these defenders of a tea and coffee tax insist, as part of the bargain, that the excessive duties on the so-called protected articles shall be scaled down to reasonable revenue producing limits.

TUBERCULIN EYE TEST.

Early Diagnosis Is of Tremendous Advantage to the Patient.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

Referring to a recently published and unjust criticism of the Health Department for using the tuberculin eye test in the diagnosis of early tuberculosis, allow me to state the following:

Calmette of Lille and Wolff-Eisner of Berlin have used this test in thousands of cases without harmful results. I have applied the test in nearly 800 cases and have not had a single accident. The opponents of the test owe their bad results largely to faulty technique, carelessness, or failure to examine the eye before applying the test. It should never be done, if the eye is not perfectly normal. It is obvious that the earliest possible diagnosis of tuberculosis is of tremendous advantage to the patient. It is for this reason that the eye test is used; for the recognition of tuberculosis can often be greatly facilitated thereby, and much valuable time may be gained. In my experience 87 per cent. of all cases in whom tubercle germs were subsequently found reacted to the test, proving its great value; the remaining 13 per cent. were mostly far advanced cases, in whom the absence of the reaction was, of course, of no diagnostic significance, the signs and symptoms being sufficiently characteristic.

It is very regrettable that criticisms such as I have referred to should be published in the lay press, with adverse quotations from a few skeptical so-called observers, thereby misleading the public. It would be fair, I believe, to mention that hundreds of scientific medical men throughout the world think very highly of the tuberculin eye test.

Two Rates to the Same Point.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

In your issue of even date you have some news about express rates. It is to be regretted that your informant did not take the trouble to ask whether there might not possibly be a reason for the two different rates on the same parcel to the same point. There is a reason, viz.: the value of the parcel.

When the express company assumes a liability of not exceeding $10 the charge is 10 cents for a sixteen-ounce parcel.

When the express company assumes a liability of not exceeding $50 the charge is 25 cents for a sixteen-ounce parcel.

Subway Manners.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

Your article in Sunday's issue on "Testing Subway Manners" is a corker and ought to be set up in big type and posted all over the city. The writer made only one error—he sometimes called the brutes he was describing "men."

PREPARING FOR A REST.

If you're waking, call me early, call me early, mother dear,
For to-morrow I start packing as I do this time each year.
I am going for vacation up where mountain streamlets run,
And I'll need a rest, dear mother, long before my packing's done!

I must fold my shirt waists, mother; there are twenty-three, I think,
And my lingerie needs ribbons—I shall run it all with pink;
Then the skirts must not be crumpled and the hats must not be crushed,
And my coiffure puffs, dear mother, must be all unrolled and brushed.

Then my slippers need new boxes and my silk embroidered hose
Must be laid out lengthwise, mother, in the neatest kind of rows.
And my sheath and evening dresses and my jewels ought to be
In the safest trunk, dear mother; so, at least, it seems to me.

Seven parasols, I fancy, will be quite enough to do,
And a dozen three-piece costumes really ought to see me through.
I shall wear my cherry basket and an automobile veil,
And the yellow Rajah empire with the stunning fan-shaped trail.

If you're waking, call me early, call me early, mother dear,
For there's such a lot of packing now my fortnight's grace is here.
But it must be done, dear mother, ere I gain the rest I seek—
Where? Just going to the mountains; Wild Cat Cottage. Six a week!

SOCIETY'S NEW FETE SEEN IN REHEARSAL

In the Glow of Three Thousand Lights Amid Structures That Look Like Marble.

DANCING THE BEST FEATURE

The Danse Furiant Particularly Appreciated—Big Audience and Large Profits to Hope Farm Assured.

By the glimmer of 3,000 electric lights, unassisted even by one little star, the dress rehearsal of the garden fête to be given Tuesday, Wednesday and Thursday for the benefit of Hope Farm was held last night in the newly made garden back of the Lenox Library.

The neighborhood has been quite curious about that garden. For a week, ever since the work of erecting stage, band stand, booths, pergolas, walks, and shrubbery was begun, the transformation of the back field of the Lenox Library has caused folk both small and large to stand with eyes glued to the fence cracks. And in the evenings, when carriages drove up and left women in evening dress, who trailed their long trains through the mud, up to a rough, wooden, uncovered platform, even the people in the brownstone houses along Seventieth and Seventy-first Streets turned out the lights and opened their windows.

Last night, though, these patient watchers had their reward. All the lights in festoons, clusters, and strings, were turned on in a brilliant display, so that the people in the upper windows did not have to use their opera glasses. And this, although it was only a week ago that the architect, A. R. Sargeant, received the commission to make this particular wilderness blossom as nearly like the Acropolis as possible, Mr. Sargent worked wonders. For the dress rehearsal most of the bay trees lining the inside of the board fence were not yet dressed; that is to say, they were shrouded in florist wrappings up to their leaves. Most of them, too, had not as yet climbed into their classical pots, but were merely in green wood tubs, and only a few had been removed to the large carved marble casings which are to hold them.

But to the right and left of the main entrance, which is on Madison Avenue, white "marble" booths had already been erected. Of course they are not marble, but with the aid of the colored lights and a little imagination one could easily dream that he dwelt in marble halls, although only by a mighty power of romance could the police stationed around be made to answer for the vassals and serfs in the picture.

In the decorated booths all kinds of lingerie, perfumes, and embroidery will be sold. Scattered among them are tents for Punch and Judy shows imported from London and several varieties of fortune tellers. The grounds are laid out in walks and promenades, converging toward the central band stand. There in the afternoons a Hungarian band will furnish the music, and in the evening the Twelfth Regiment band will play. Around the band stand are groups of cedars, each sheltering a statue of a sweetly smiling maiden looking coyly down last night on the shovels and hoes which the workmen had dropped at their feet. These tributes, however, will be removed before the opening.

At the other end of the field is the open-air theatre, where the vaudeville performance and the dancing will take place. Sloping up from it is the platform with seats for 300. Every one of the seats, as well as the eight boxes has been sold for all the performances. Behind the seats the boxes were still last night in process of construction, but doubtless they will be completed long before the opening. A broad promenade completes the theatre, and this will be screened off from the rest of the garden with boxes of scarlet geraniums. Then each of the fifty-odd pillars, from which the strings of colored lights are festooned, is crowned with a mass of white daisies and more red geraniums. Beyond the theatre tables for light refreshments will be placed, while a larger space to the north and south will be used as a dining room, where Delmonico is prepared to serve 300 each evening. The price of the dinner is to be $4 a plate. Even the programmes of the fête will be sold for $1 apiece.

This fairyland of lights and flowers has cost some $6,000 to construct before a cent will be taken in. Yet already, from the advance returns, it is known that at least $75,000 must be made, and the possibilities range indefinitely from that up. One well-known New York woman, who has just sailed for Europe, wrote to the managers expressing her regret at not being able to assist in the work and inclosing a consolation check of $1,000. Several large donations of this kind have been made.

The most striking feature of the entertainment will be the ballet from "The Bartered Bride," performed by sixteen persons well known in New York society, and a trio dance, "The Furiant," done by Mrs. Austin Gray, Mrs. James Eustis, and Thomas Clarke. Mrs. Arthur Scott Burden, and Lydig Hoyt will dance a solo waltz.

At rehearsal last night the curtain went up on a scene in the Alps with the feminine dancers in blue, pink, and lavender satin skirts and figured brocade bodices, and their partners in Tyrolese costume with bare knees. Unfortunately, however, it was not to dance, but to have their pictures taken that the curtain rose, and this process was continued for nearly an hour while the camera men stood around accusing each other of setting off flashlights at inopportune moments. It grew chillier with every moment, and ballet dancers withdrew to put on carriage wraps and furs while the camera men still stood debating over who put off that last flashlight. Finally the chorus men from the stage took up the cry, "Serve those pictures with gas stoves," till the photographers finally withdrew and the curtain fell.

Soon after that the musicians started up. Owing to the dampness, each fiddle, flute, and 'cello played in its own chosen key, but finally the curtain went up again, this time on a group of laughing, rollicking "peasants," and the dance was on. It is a very pretty and intricate polka, from the second act of the "Bartered Bride," and with the color and lighting effects was certainly much prettier out of doors than at the Opera.

After the chorus dance the "peasants" gather about the small tables drinking healths. Then one of the men, Mr. Clarke, came dancing forward, touching one girl from one side of the stage and then one from the other, and the three start dancing together. This is "The Furiant," which leaves the three dancers whirling down by the footlights to the applause of the feasters. These remembered to cheer last night when coached from the side lines.

The music changed to a slow waltz, and from the group came out the two solo dancers, Mrs. Burden and Mr. Hoyt. As they danced rather gently down to the front of the stage the music became faster, till the man picked up his partner and tossed her high in the air. This was quite the most graceful moment of the dance. Mrs. Burden seemed to be flying like Peter Pan. The audience on the stage became so lost in admiration that it forgot its cue, and not until the orchestra leader yelled "Yah, Yah, Hiyah," was it remembered that it was their turn to shout as the curtain fell.

The other dancers in the ballet were Miss Blanche Oelrichs, Miss Julia Hoyt, Miss Lucy Brown, Miss Ellen Rogers, Miss Dorothy Moran, Mrs. J. Gordon Douglas, Miss Katherine Atterbury, and Mrs. Arthur Iselin. The men were T. Markee Robinson, E. Gerry Chadwick, Edmund P. Rogers, Tiffany Richardson, Charles Draper, Newton Richard Lawrence, Seymour Johnson, and William Iselin.

MISS OGDEN'S WEDDING.

She Marries Pierpont Davis at the Church of the Incarnation.

The wedding of Miss Josephine Ogden, younger daughter of Mrs. John R. Ogden, Sr., of 345 Lexington Avenue, to Pierpont Davis, a son of Mr. and Mrs. Fellowes Davis, took place yesterday afternoon at the Church of the Incarnation, Madison Avenue and Thirty-fourth Street. The Rev. William Grosvenor performed the ceremony. The church was decorated with tall staves topped with lilies and greenery, placed at the end of each pew on the nave. The chancel was also decorated with lilies, smilax, and palms.

There was a large assemblage in the church, many of the guests coming from out of town for the wedding, and the reception afterward quite filled the large house where it was held.

The bride, who was given in marriage by her brother, John R. Ogden, wore a gown of white satin embroidered in pearls and white lace and wore a veil of point lace over white tulle and orange blossoms. Her attendants were Mrs. Robert Gillespie, Mrs. William Bayard Blackwell, Miss Ellen Turnbull, and a sister of the bride, Miss Sarah Ogden. CONSTIPATIO

PEACE ONCE MORE IN HEBREW CHARITIES

All Differences Over the Widowed Mothers' Fund Committee Settled Last Night.

THE VOTE WAS UNANIMOUS

Mrs. Einstein May Resume Her Old Duties in the Organization—New Plan for Deaf-Mute Institute.

The differences between Mrs. William Einstein of 121 East Fifty-seventh Street, who recently resigned as Vice President of the United Hebrew Charities and organized a new organization known as the Widowed Mothers' Fund Committee, and the United Hebrew Charities were finally settled amicably last night. To the Jewish Communal Council, of which Supreme Court Justice Samuel Greenbaum is Chairman, is due the credit for the peaceful readjustment of the difficulties that have beset the United Hebrew Charities, as a result of the resignation of Mrs. Einstein as an officer of that organization.

Mortimer L. Schiff is the author of the resolution, which was adopted unanimously, and as the result of which the Widowed Mothers' Fund Committee will exist in the future as an autonomous organization of the United Hebrew Charities Committee. This committee will be governed by a committee of eight, four each from the United Hebrew Charities and the Widowed Mothers' Fund Committee. The funds of the Widowed Mothers' Fund Committee are to form a special fund for the care of the widowed mothers.

It was also reported last night, but not verified, that now that peace reigns again in the United Hebrew Charities, Mrs. Einstein may assume her old duties as one of the vice-presidents of the organization. Justice Greenbaum, who presided at a meeting of the council, at which were present about twenty representatives of the most prominent Jewish institutions in New York, said, after the meeting adjourned, that the settlement had been accomplished without a dissenting voice.

Among those who attended the meeting, which was held in the board room of the Mount Sinai Hospital, were Cyrus L. Sulzberger, Edward Lauterbach, Leopold Stern, Marcus W. Marks, Jonas Weil, Charles Dittman, Nathaniel Meyers, J. Ballin, and Mortimer L. Schiff. The committee went into session at 8 o'clock and adjourned three hours later.

Justice Greenbaum said that other matters than the settlement of the widowed mothers' question had been considered at last night's meeting, an important business undertaking being the reorganization and taking over, under Jewish control, of the Institution for the Improvement and Instruction of Deaf Mutes, at Sixty-seventh Street and Lexington Avenue. He said that about $30,000 had been raised for this institution.

MANTELL IN A REVIVAL.

He Appears in the Old-Time Romantic Drama, "The Marble Heart."

THE MARBLE HEART, a drama in five acts by Charles Selby, the Academy of Music.

Raphael Duchatlet	Mr. Mantell
Ferdinand Volage	Fritz Leiber
M. Venadore	George Stillwell
Viscount Chateaumargaux	Guy Lindsley
Lord Merton	William J. Bowen
Fred De Courcy	L. Rogers Lytton
John	Frederick Baldwin
Baptiste	Edward Lewers
Mlle. Marco	Marie Booth Russell
Clementine	Lillian Kingsbury
Mariette	Edith Campbell
Fedora	Josephine McCallum
Marie	Lorraine Frost
Mme. Duchatlet	Janet Barrington

Robert Mantell and his company gave a revival of Charles Selby's old-fashioned romantic drama, "The Marble Heart; or, the Sculptor's Dream" last night at the Academy of Music. It was the first time during his present engagement that Mr. Mantell has appeared in other than classical rôles. The play, set in the mid-Victorian era, calls for costumes of fashionable Paris about 1850. It presents little scope for dramatic action, although Booth and other actors used it in their repertoire, as did Mr. Mantell about ten years ago. Mr. Mantell's performance did not add anything to his reputation.

The language of the play is stiff and stilted to the last degree, full of mock sentiment and heroics which could not produce a single genuine thrill. The production was interesting mainly as showing what kind of so-called wit and sentiment pleased playgoers of a former generation. Throughout the five acts Mr. Mantell waited for the most part for something to do. When the time came, however, as it did in the third and fourth acts, he worked hard, and the audience rewarded him with repeated curtain calls.

The first act showing a scene in the studio of Phidias at Athens was probably the most interesting of all. Mr. Mantell as Phideas, George Stillwell as Gorgias, Guy Lindsley as Alcibiades, and Fritz Leiber as Diogenes, were better in their classical rôles than they were later amid more modern surroundings.

The play tells the story of a heartless coquette, Mlle. Marco, who broke the heart of Raphael Duchatlet, a sculptor. The characters are supposed to be in these scenes the reincarnations of the ancient Athenian characters who appeared in the first act. Mlle. Marco being the reflection of the three statues of Phidias who, when brought to life, forsook their creator for Gorgias.

Fritz Leiber as Diogenes in the first act and Ferdinand Volage, the editor, in the other four, shared honors with Mr. Mantell. Marie Booth Russell as Marco was coquettish and captivating. Lorraine Frost won applause by her delineation of Marie, the poor orphan.

The play will continue the rest of the week.

CAPT. SANDEN DEAD; FERRYMAN 55 YEARS

Officials of 34th Street Line to Pay Tribute to Veteran at His Funeral To-day.

PILOTED LINE'S FIRST BOAT

He Was a "Five Star Man," Each Star Representing Ten Years of Service—Dies at Age of 79.

Flags were at half-mast yesterday on the Thirty-fourth Street Ferry in honor of Capt. Andrew P. Sanden, who died on Saturday night after a continuous service of fifty-five years in the employ of the company. More than half a century ago he piloted the first ferryboat of that line across the East River, between old New York City and old Long Island City, which was then a part of the old town of Newtown. He remained with that ferry line, though it passed under the control of three different companies while he was an employe. Capt. Sanden died at his home, in 101 Bodine Street, Long Island City, at the age of 79.

During the hours of the funeral services this afternoon the ferry company will pay the same honor to his memory that was paid only to the memory of William H. Baldwin and William F. Potter, Presidents of the Long Island Railroad, who died in office. All trafic possible will be suspended on the ferry while the ferry officials attend the services.

Capt. Sanden was born in Sweden and came to this country about 1850, and first came into prominence when, as sailing master of the sloop yacht Julia, owned by the late James M. Waterbury, he beat everything in her class. Later, when the old East River Ferry Company was organized with Mr. Waterbury as its President, Capt. Sanden was taken off the yacht and on April 20, 1854, went into the employ of the ferry company. In those days the Manhattan slip of the ferry was located where First Avenue now runs through, while the ferry slip in Long Island was as far back as West Avenue. Three ferryboats of the old walking-beam type were put in commission on the ferry. They were the Suffolk County, the Queens County, and the Long Island City, although one boat was ample to carry all the traffic, and the fare each way was 4 cents. According to the ferry records the Suffolk County was the first boat to make the official trip from Manhattan to Long Island City, with Capt. Sanden in the pilot house, and for years following he played the part of Captain, crew, and ferrymaster on the line.

He also ran the first boat that opened traffic on the old James Slip Ferry, which was discontinued several years ago, and during his long service it is recorded that he never met with a collision or had a damage claim laid against his boat. During his term of service the East River Ferry Company sold out to the Metropolitan Ferry Company, and they in turn to the Long Island Railroad Company, and when the Pennsylvania Railroad took charge in 1901, under a rule of that company Capt. Sanden, who was still in active service as a pilot, was compelled to surrender his post on account of the age limit. He was then made gateman and dispatcher on the old Annex line, which post he retained up to the day of his death.

Capt. Sanden was a widower and is survived by two sons, Andrew Barnett Sanden and Amos Sanden, and one daughter, Mrs. C. Curtis Woodruff. He was a member of Island City Lodge, F. and A. M., of Long Island City and had accumulated considerable real estate in that place.

Capt. Sanden was known among young and old employes of the ferry as the "five-star man," each star representing ten years of service. A floral piece representing a steering wheel, on which will be implanted the five stars, will be sent as their tribute by the ferry employes to the old pilot's bier.

HACKETT IN A SKETCH.

He and E. M. Holland Appear in Vaudeville in "The Bishop's Candlesticks."

James K. Hackett and his former star, E. M. Holland, appeared at the Plaza Music Hall yesterday in a sketch called "The Bishop's Candlesticks," a one-act dramatization by Norman McKennell of the incident of the Bishop and the convict Jean Valjean described by Victor Hugo in "Les Misérables." Mr. Hackett played the part of the convict and Mr. Holland the Bishop. They got an ovation from the large audience.

Mr. Hackett's delineation of the half-famished Jean Valjean, who comes to the house of the Bishop seeking food and shelter only to steal his heirlooms when the good churchman's back is turned was powerful, despite a touch of theatricalism. The scene in which the convict falls on his knees and professes repentance after the Bishop saves him from the police and gives him the candlesticks which he had stolen was particularly effective.

Although Mr. Holland's Bishop was manifestly too young, he acted the part with skill and judgment. Jane Burby, as the Bishop's sister, and Bertha Bartlett, as the faithful servant, have short parts, but both showed that they had studied their rôles carefully. The sketch is bound to find favor with vaudeville patrons.

Another new act on the programme which pleased the audience was Miss Toye, a singer with a double voice. At will she changes from the deep notes of a man to the soprano tones of a woman. Others on the bill were the Reid sisters, singers and acrobatic dancers; Frederick Fischer and Maurice Burkhart, in songs; Wilson Franklyn and company, in the skit, "My Wife Won't Let Me"; the three Diamonds, Lelmore and Lee, athletes, in an original novelty; Cliff Gordon and the three Delton brothers, comedy acrobats.

EVIDENCES OF POOL SELLING

Transactions Larger and Losses Sharper in Pool Issues—Substantial Engagements of Gold for Europe.

Although the course of prices in yesterday's stock market was lower, with rather substantial declines in the leading shares registered at the close of the trading, yet the selling was by no means so general as it was in several of last week's sessions. It was in issues which had been the subjects of market pools in which the maximum losses of the day occurred and in which the heaviest transactions were reported. In some cases disappointment over the orderly fashion in which the general market has advanced for some time past explains, perhaps, the relinquishment of their position by certain pools, and in others the breaking up of these combinations may be set down to the failure of certain events upon which their operations were based to materialize. In New York Central, for example, it had been expected that the so-called "Eleventh Avenue bill," conferring valuable rights upon the Central, would upon its signature by the Mayor mark the inception of a sharp rise in the price of this stock. The Mayor has, of course, vetoed the bill. Perhaps the most significant thing about the market as a whole was its disposition to grow dull as prices sagged, and so persistent was it in this course that the day's business was the smallest transacted in a long time. News developments were relatively unimportant in a market sense. Reports of excellent weather through the West were received with indifference on grain markets, where prices closed above Saturday's levels. Such railroad returns as came to hand simply bore out the improving tendency noted by all earlier earnings statements. Copper metal was a trifle higher with enlarged sales. Prices on wire products, which were so recently sharply cut by the makers, were advanced and an excellent demand reported. The strong investment situation here was illustrated by the successful bidding of two New York banking houses for a substantial issue of bonds by the City of Baltimore.

Presumably the easier tendency in money rates toward the close of last week, occasioned by the heavy receipts of interior money and reflected in the accumulation of over $20,000,000 of surplus by the local banks, had considerable to do with the resumption of exports of gold to Europe yesterday on a fairly large scale. Announcements covering the engagement of some $4,000,000 were made before the close of the day, a part of this sum being in gold coin. In London Austria secured the $3,500,000 gold arriving from South Africa without opposition from Paris, which seems to prefer to withdraw its gold from this market.

PHILADELPHIA PRICES.

Special to The New York Times.

PHILADELPHIA, May 17.—With the exception of Lake Superior the local market displayed a firm aspect to-day, with noteworthy strength in United Gas Improvement stock and warrants. Philadelphia Electric, too, was a buoyant feature. Rapid Transit continued to show resistance to all attempts to depression. Cambria Steel was still in fair demand, despite the recent irregularity exhibited by United States Steel. Lake Superior, as already stated, was weak, easing off close to 30 on scattered selling. The close was steady.

TOPICS IN WALL STREET.

Mr. Vanderlip, Soothsayer.

Mr. Vanderlip's reputation as a prophet is so firmly established in Wall Street that his infrequent predictions are awaited with the keenest interest. In Cincinnati on Saturday night he declared that immediately on the signing of the Tariff bill by President Taft a business boom of unprecedented proportions would set in. Wall Street believes Mr. Vanderlip implicitly, yesterday's stock market to the contrary notwithstanding. When the financial community was downcast in 1904 Mr. Vanderlip's cheerful words aroused it, and it was also Mr. Vanderlip who in the golden age before the October panic assured Wall Street confidently that no tree ever grows quite to heaven. The particular tree referred to stopped growing soon thereafter.

Character of Operations.

Some brokers contended that the dwindling of business as prices sagged off on the Stock Exchange yesterday confirmed the theory which they had held for several weeks that the activity of the market and price advances were due more to absorption by outside interests than to operations by professional speculators. They argued that no adequate explanation on other grounds could be given for the sudden decrease in the volume of trading, inasmuch as nothing had occurred to call a halt on professional operations on a large scale. If this class of speculators was willing to turn over large blocks of stock last week, it was reasoned, there was nothing to prevent it from continuing the process in the same way yesterday. The flaw in this interpretation of the situation was the failure of those holding such a theory to explain why the outside participation in the market should have ceased so suddenly. The professional traders on the floor of the Exchange are noted for the agility with which they can reverse their position, acting almost as one man, while public participation in the market either as a buyer or seller is usually a matter of slow development and gradual growth. If the public was buying so heavily last week, it was hard for some to understand why the buying should have ceased so abruptly yesterday.

Waiting for Inspiration.

"The market is now waiting for some new inspiration," said an experienced trader. "The commodities clause decision kept it boiling in pretty good shape for two weeks, and that is about as long as the influence of any single event, outside of a panic, may be expected to be felt on the market. By the expiration of that time it usually needs a rest to prepare for the reception of the next development calculated to influence it in one direction or the other. Reports of trade improvement are now becoming so general as to be commonplace. Something more than that is needed to arouse fresh enthusiasm. Perhaps the needed stimulus will come in connection with the disposition of the Tariff bill, or it may be derived from the conclusion of some important corporation deal."

Opposite Interpretations.

What impressed the bulls as much as anything was the absence of any pronounced liquidating pressure on the market. This they construed as meaning that the vast majority of security holders were well satisfied with the outlook, and not disposed to let go of their stocks at the first sign of weakness. Reasoning from much the same premises the bears also derived conclusions which, from their point of view, were eminently satisfactory. They contended that the declines recorded in the market even on comparatively light selling indicated a condition of hollowness and lack of support which simply goes to show the susceptibility of the market's action at any time of being construed to suit almost any frame of mind. Were such not the case the stock market would be a very different kind of an affair to what it is. It always takes two to make a bargain, and if the needs or opinions of the contracting parties were exactly alike no bargains would ever be made. Differences of opinions give life to the stock market. No matter what unanimity of opinion concerning the drift of security prices may superficially appear to exist in Wall Street there must necessarily be some one to sell stocks for the other fellow to buy.

Weakness in Tractions.

The weakness in Third Avenue was attributed by some to the issuance of a decree for the foreclosure sale of the property next September. That is more than three months off, and everybody knew that it would have to come sooner or later. Just why the stock should be sold on the announcement was a puzzle to the average man in the financial district, but there is always a large number of persons who buy stocks and then suddenly happen to remember that some such event as this is to take place, whereupon they hasten to dump them over. As likely as not, if the market happened to be going up, Third Avenue would have risen as well, on arguments to the effect that the foreclosure would merely hasten the time for the return of the property to its owners. As the general market happened ao be sagging, visions of a possible assessment on Third Avenue shares were aroused instead. Interborough-Metropolitan issues showed sympathetic weakness.

Time Money Easier.

Those who have been worrying over the prospects of much firmer money had some of the ground taken from under them yesterday by an actual decline in rates for time money for certain periods, even in the face of considerable engagements of gold for export. At no time, however, have those who have carefully watched the domestic movements of money been at all alarmed over the shipments of foreign centres. The influx from the interior within the last few months has more than counterbalanced the exodus to Europe and South America. From present indications leading bankers appear to be of the opinion that the same will hold true for at least two or three months longer, should the export movement not be terminated long before that time. An idea is entertained in some international banking quarters that purchases of securities for European account will figure prominently in this situation before long.

$40,000,000 FORECLOSURE.

Third Av. Road Ordered Sold Unless Mortgage Is Paid in Twenty Days.

The decree of foreclosure against the Third Avenue Railroad under the refunding mortgage of 1900, trusteed by the Central Trust Company, was filed yesterday with the Clerk of the United States Circuit Court. Under the decree the property of the road is to be sold on Sept. 2, 1909, on the steps of the County Court House unless there is paid within twenty days the claim of the trust company for $37,560,000 for principal on the mortgage and interest at 4 per cent. since July 1, 1907, amounting all told to $40,381,173.

The decree enumerates the property that is to be sold, namely, all the physical property of the Third Avenue Road and stocks and bonds which it has held of its various subsidiaries, and 20,000 shares of Union Pacific stock, which turned up in the Third Avenue's treasury. This Union Pacific stock is worth at present values more than all the stocks of the Third Avenue's old subsidiaries put together. Special Master Howard Taylor is directed to prepare an inventory of the physical property.

The sale is made subject to the first lien of the $5,000,000 first mortgage bonds of the Third Avenue Road, and the purchaser is to assume also all pending contracts and the obligations of the road on contract and tort claims. The purchaser will have to deposit $200,000 with the receiver of the Third Avenue, Frederick W. Whitridge, before the sale of the physical property is made and $100,000 before the securities are sold.

First Lien and Terminal 4% Gold Bonds
DATED JANUARY 1, 1904. PAYABLE JANUARY 1, 1954.
These bonds are an absolute first lien on valuable real estate and terminal properties in St. Louis, Chicago and Quincy, Illinois.
The St. Louis properties include about three blocks in the wholesale district. These properties are connected with the tracks of the Terminal Railroad Association of St. Louis and are available for use by all railroads entering St. Louis. The indenture under which these bonds are issued provides that title to all properties bought with proceeds of these bonds shall be vested in the trustees free from all liens. These bonds underlie the issue of First Refunding and Extension bonds, and estimating the preferred and common stocks at approximate prices there exists a present equity in market value in excess of $55,000,000 in favor of these bonds.
We advise the purchase of the bonds, believing they are well secured and are relatively cheaper than other bonds of equal class.

EAST SIDE BAKERIES ALL SHUTTING DOWN

Employers Hit Back at Strikers and a Bread Famine May Come.

WERE RUNNING AT A LOSS

Non-Union Men, Thrown Out by the Shutdown, Decide to Join the Union.

By a decision reached after midnight on Sunday the East Side Boss Bakers' Association, at a meeting in the rooms of its bureau, 159 East Houston Street, decided on a general shutdown of the bakeries as a result of the strike of the bakers for the closed shop. This will mean, according to the boss bakers, one of the worst kosher bread famines the east side has seen in many years, the shutdown affecting some of the independent bakeries, which were represented at the meeting, as well as those of the members of the association.

At another meeting of the association held last night in Landsman's Hall, 282 Broome Street, the shutdown was confirmed, and it was announced that the Kosher Bakers' Association, consisting of seventeen boss bakers, employing only union men, had joined in the lockout.

Reports were made at the meeting that though bakers were returning to work in twos and threes the mischief caused by the strikers and their sympathizers and the terrorism they inspired among the men who were working made it impossible for the boss bakers affected by the strike to run their bakeries except at a loss. A shutdown was then agreed on until the strikers came to terms.

The shutdown began yesterday afternoon at 4 o'clock by the closing of the bakery of Jacob Bock, President of the association, in East Houston Street. Committees then went to all other bakeries in the district, which began to close in rapid succession. The committees will continue their work to-day, the officers of the association said, and the shutdown, which, it is believed, will affect nearly 400 bakeries and throw many bakers, union and non-union, idle, in addition to those already out, is expected to be complete to-day.

The employers say that the constant strikes at unexpected times within the last two years, winding up with the present general strike, made conditions intolerable for the master bakers. There was little money in the business at the best, they said, but under present conditions it was folly to keep their bakeries open. An official statement was made by Secretary Brayer of the East Side Boss Bakers' Association, in which he said:

"The members of the association decided that matters had come to a pass where something radical ought to be done. There were 182 members at the meeting, besides representatives of the independent boss bakers, and the vote to shut down was unanimous. Those at the meeting went over the situation carefully. It was found that some of the strikers were returning and that the downtown bakeries were adding now and then to their forces, but the attacks and mischief caused by the strikers and their sympathizers made normal business impossible. Our men were constantly attacked, mud and stones, and sometimes live lime and mortar, were thrown down the chimneys of our bakeries.

"When arrested for attacks on our men or our wagons, they were sometimes discharged, at other times fined, the union paying the fines. There was nothing for it but a shutdown under these conditions."

The non-union men who found themselves on the street last night or who expected to be thrown idle to-day through no fault of their own, were much wrought up. They decided to join the union, and a meeting was held at 236 Eldridge Street to appoint a committee to confer with the union. Meantime the news that a shutdown had been declared leaked out and caused great excitement at the headquarters of the strikers.

Some of the smaller boss bakers who are in the association said that the strike had cost them more than they will make in a year, despite the fact that they themselves have been working in the bakeries twenty hours a day to make up for missing journeymen. The boss bakers in most cases have been working instead of journeymen nearly night and day, and this was one of the strongest arguments with them for a shutdown.

A meeting of the strikers was held at their headquarters, 127 Delancey Street, Max Kasimirsky, the strike leader, made a statement in which he said that the shutdown was decided on by the employers because they wanted to head off an extension of the strike in which the non-union men would have joined.

City Officials as Yachtsmen.

Controller Herman A. Metz and President Ethel S. Coler of Brooklyn Borough will appear in the role of yachtsmen on Saturday, June 12, as members of the General Reception Committee to greet visiting yachtsmen and other guests at the formal opening of the new home of the Brooklyn Yacht Club. The new quarters were purchased last year at Bensonhurst, being near the old clubhouse, but a much larger house has been obtained, to which extensive improvements have been made during the Winter. Controller Metz has been named Chairman of the Entertainment Committee by Commodore William C. Tower, while President Coler is Chairman of the Special Committee to receive visiting yachtsmen. The Thirteenth Regiment Band will give a concert in the afternoon. The Brooklyn yachtsmen will take an active part in all of the big Gravesend Bay regattas this season. The club's big event will be the ocean race to Cape May and back, starting July 3, for the silver cup presented by Richard Croker.

Miss Harley Leads Boston Golfers.

BOSTON, May 17.—The high-class play which last year gained Miss Katherine C. Harley of Fall River the National Woman's Golf Championship was much in evidence on the Country Club links to-day, when Miss Harley defeated the representative strength of Boston district in an open tournament. Her score was 97 gross and her rating plus 1. Miss Harley was the only player to break 100 on the gross score. Except at four of the eighteen holes she negotiated the distances in championship form.

Written Exclusively for THE NEW YORK TIMES
By EDWARD PAYSON WESTON.

Special to The New York Times.

OAKLEY, Kan., May 17.—After enjoying a restful day and a most refreshing sleep, arising at 10:30 P. M., I partook of a substantial meal and hurriedly wrote a short letter to the king of mascots at 60 Wall Street.

I started for Oakley at 12:05 A. M. with a number of ladies and gentlemen accompanying me several miles out of town. Mr. Schwiggert walked with me to Quinteer, a distance of 22 miles, without a stop before breakfast. Arriving at Grinnell, 22 miles further, at 1 P. M., I stopped for a long rest, and arrived at Oakley, 13 miles, at 6:40 P. M.

I am in excellent condition, not having a pain or ache of any kind. I will go to Monument, which is 9 miles from here, although I started out with the intention of remaining here over night. I feel good enough to make this extra distance without injury to myself.

All along the route, whether early in the morning or midday, I am met by enthusiasts who usually have some fresh milk or an eggnog for me, which is very kind and thoughtful of them, and escorting me into the town, where I am greeted by the entire population as I pass through, many going with me for many miles and catching a train going back home.

The weather, the roads, and my own condition are most favorable for walking. I could not wish it better. Total for today, 66 miles; grand total, 2,243 miles.

POLICEMEN AS ATHLETES.

Pittsburg Bureau to Encourage Sports in the Department.

Special to The New York Times.

PITTSBURG, Penn., May 17.—John R. Morin, Director of the Department of Public Safety of Pittsburg, himself a former professional baseball player and oarsman, believing that good athletes make good policemen, started a movement this morning to promote open air sports among the members of the Police Bureau. After the meeting of the Police Board the Director proposed that the policemen have a field meet next Fall. The police inspectors were instructed to organize ball teams.

"Nearly every large city in the country has an annual field meet," said Morin, "and the present class of men in the police bureau, with a little training, could easily get into shape to compete with any of them."

The superintendent stated that the men would be allowed certain times to exercise, and that it was proposed this morning to have a ball team to represent each of the different districts.

"Athletics will be compulsory," declared Morin. "What good is a policeman who cannot run or jump? If necessary the men will be given instruction in running, jumping, boxing, wrestling, putting the shot, and, in fact, every other sport, and it is now up to them to get in line."

Corbett Lucky to Last Ten Rounds.

Special to The New York Times.

SCHENECTADY, N. Y., May 17.—Before the American Athletic Club here to-night "Fighting" Dick Nelson made "Young" Corbett look like a novice. The men went the full ten rounds, but in the ninth Corbett's condition was pitiable. Nelson hit him absolutely at will, and Paul Kelly, who was in Corbett's corner, began throwing water on Corbett.

"Young" Corbett swung his famous right and left swings on the empty air more times than he landed, and twice coming out of breaks which were to be clean he jabbed, but did little damage. Nelson forced the fighting and worked hard for a knockout, but could not place the punch with sufficient force. In the eighth Nelson had Corbett bleeding and groggy, and he clinched repeatedly to save himself.

Walsh and Corbett Draw.

Eddie Walsh of New York, and Freddie Corbett of Philadelphia fought a fast ten-round draw at the Bedford Athletic Club last night. The bout was redhot all the way through, and toward the end Corbett was forging ahead. In the last three rounds his execution in close fighting told palpably on Walsh, who hung on for dear life. However, he was just able to get back one or two himself, which saved him from a popular verdict defeat.

Welch and Goodman at Fairmont A. C.

Freddie Welch, the English lightweight champion, and Jack Goodman, one of the best lightweights in this city, are scheduled for a ten-round bout at the Fairmont Athletic Club, 137th Street and Third Avenue, on Friday night. Goodman has won several good fights recently, and is expected to show to advantage against the Britisher. The winner will probably be matched to meet Packey McFarland sometime in June.

$10,000 Offer for Papke.

SAN FRANCISCO, May 17.—Fight Promoter James Coffroth has offered Billy Papke, who defeated Hugo Kelly here Saturday, $10,000 to meet Sam Langford in the Colma arena. The offer was made to Papke's brother and the date suggested was July 5. The offer was so unexpected that the Papkes were not ready to give a definite answer. Coffroth asserts he will offer $5,000 to Langford for his end of the purse, and he is confident of landing the match.

Racing Sloops Remodeled.

Three of the well-known racing sloops, Cornelius Vanderbilt's Aurora, George M. Pynchon's Istalena, and H. F. Lippitt's Winsome, are being overhauled and slightly remodeled at the Herreshoff yards, Bristol, R. I., for the coming season. The Istalena has had a deeper keel fitted. All of the boats will carry slightly more sail this season, and they are being fitted with a longer topmast, gaff, and bowsprit, while the lower masts will remain as formerly. The work will be completed within the next two weeks, and early in June the fifty-seven-footers will appear for the opening regattas in Long Island Sound. C. C. Rumrill's forty-six-foot Adventuress, one of the notable new boats of the year, will have her first trial spin in about a week. She will be in charge of Albert M. Shepard as sailing master during the coming club regattas.

Brooklyn Athletic Club Games.

The Brooklyn Athletic Club, 374 Bedford Avenue, Brooklyn, will hold its annual games at Washington Park, Grand Street, Maspeth, on Sunday, May 30. The following events are scheduled: 100-yard dash, 300-yard run, and 880-yard run, all handicap events; one-mile run, 75-yard dash, 600-yard run, and Virginia reel.

Lee Wins 20-Mile Race at Chicago.

CHICAGO, Ill., May 17.—James J. Lee of the Mercury Athletic Club of New York won a twenty-mile road race here yesterday in 2:10:10. Sam Mellor, a team mate of Lee's, was also a starter, but he was forced to drop out early in the race because of the hard roads.

FISHING AND FISHERMEN.

Seabass, small, but of good quality, gave Great South Bay fishermen some good sport last week. In the vicinity of Massapequa, Amityville, and Babylon quite a number were caught, a few weighing one pound each, but the average was from a half to three-quarters of a pound. A few blackfish have also been running, but flounders are very scarce.

The Sappho Fishing and Pleasure Club of Brooklyn expects a big turnout to-day, the second trip of the season. The members will leave Canarsie at 7 o'clock this morning on the motor schooner yacht Sappho, and all the prominent fishing points in Jamaica Bay will be visited. The officials will all be on deck, as follows: President, W. Albrecht; Vice President, Charles Stegner; Secretary, Louis Von Amdunsen, Jr.; Treasurer, George Hensler; Sergeant-at-Arms, H. Kautzman; First Mate, W. Schenk; Second Mate, J. Regnault; cabin boy, Fred Spraine.

Five million dollars a year is claimed by the statisticians to be a low estimate of the amount of money spent by American anglers who visit the salmon streams of Canada yearly.

NEW HAVEN POLO VICTORY.

Squadron A Loses First Games at Country Club of Westchester.

A well-played polo game afforded entertainment to the members of the Country Club of Westchester yesterday afternoon, when New Haven and Squadron A lined up on the big field for the first tournament match of the season. The game was the first of three events for the Westchester cups. The New Haven men came to town with a fine string of ponies, and their superior mounts contributed materially toward their victory, as they won handily by 11½ goals to 8. The victors earned 13 goals, but lost 1½ for penalties.

Hugh Drury was easily the star of the visitors, and he invariably hit the ball with force and accuracy. He made 6 splendid goals. C. C. Rumsey also made 6 goals. The New Haven men showed excellent teamwork, while the Squadron A players showed both lack of practice and inability to work well together. The troopers received 4 goals by handicap and earned 5, Neilson and Joseph Hunt making 2 each. They lost 1 goal for penalties, Seward Cary being a very exacting referee. The line-up:

SQUADRON A.		NEW HAVEN.
J. H. Hunt	3	J. B. Thomas, Jr.	2
Louis Neilson	3	Hugh Drury	5
A. D. B. Pratt	1	C. C. Rumsey	4

Summary: Goals earned—New Haven, 13; Squadron A, 5. Allowed by handicap—Squadron A, 4. Lost by penalties—New Haven, 1½; Squadron A, 1. Net score—New Haven, 11½; Squadron A, 8. Referee—Seward Cary.

AMERICAN POLOISTS FAST.

Meadow Brook Team Defeats Best English Players at Hurlingham.

LONDON, May 17.—The Meadow Brook polo team of Long Island, N. Y., to-day defeated a team made up of Great Britain's best players at Hurlingham by 8 to 4, and as a result English players are fearful for the outcome of the contests in which the Americans are to compete next month for the American Cup, a trophy that has been held by the Hurlingham Club since 1886.

The Hurlingham team was composed of W. Jones, Capt. Wilson, W. S. Buckmaster, and P. W. Nickalls. The three first players probably will be included in the defenders of the American Cup in the forthcoming matches.

The Americans played a wonderful game. Their combinations were admirable and their quickness on the balls was a sensation to the spectators. M. Waterbury and L. E. Stoddard each scored three goals, while H. P. Whitney and L. Waterbury scored one goal each.

ATLANTIC Y. C. OCEAN RACE.

Commodore Richards Offers Cup for Run to Nantucket and Return.

Still another ocean yacht race has been arranged for the coming season, and the amateur skippers who enjoy getting out into the open to test their seamanship will not lack opportunities for lively sport. The Regatta Committee of the Atlantic Yacht Club has announced that an ocean race from Sea Gate to Nantucket Lightship and return, a distance of about 400 miles, will be the big feature of the Atlantic Club's race week during the first week of September. Commodore Leonard Richards has promised to offer the trophy to the winner, and other prizes will be arranged later in the season. It is planned to have this ocean event an annual affair. The race this year will start Sept. 1, the opening day of the club's race week. Besides this event the second series of races for the Thompson Cup will be sailed in addition to races for the other regular classes.

Professional Golfers at Scarsdale.

A number of the leading local professionals will assemble on the Scarsdale Golf Club links to-day for the fourth annual championship tournament of the Eastern Professional Golfers' Association. Isaac Mackie of the Fox Hills Club the present title holder, will be among the starters, and among the twenty-eight who have entered for the championship are Alec. Smith of Wykagyl, the winner in 1906; H. H. Barker of Garden City, Dave Hunter of Essex County, George Low of Baltusrol, Willie Norton of Deal, Herbert Strong, Gilbert Nichols, Tom Anderson, Jr., Peter Clark, James Norton, R. M. Thomson, and Alec. Cunningham. The Boston and Philadelphia professionals, owing to the activity at this time of the year at their respective clubs, were unable to make any entries. One of the features of to-day's play will be a professional four-ball match between teams of professionals and amateurs. Among the amateurs who will compete are George T. Brokaw, Findlay S. Douglas, Oswald Kirkby, and W. H. Vanderpool.

ON THE TENNIS COURTS.

Three lawn tennis players worked their way through to the round before the semi-finals of the Harlem Club tournament yesterday. Theodore R. Pell, the indoor National champion; Gustave F. Touchard, and Roy Richey were the successful ones. Distinction especially attached to Touchard, as he defeated George O. Wagner, the Buffalo expert, who toured the world with the American international team. He won from Wagner, 6—1 and 6—love, in a match that was not onesided despite the appearance of the score.

Pell engaged in two good matches. His first was against William H. Connell of the Bedford Park Club, whom he defeated 6—4, 6—3, with the points 34—26 and 32—26. This put Pell on the semi-finals, and he won his match against George P. Parkes, the former Southern champion, 6—1 and 6—1. The summary:

Men's Cup Singles.—First Round—Walter D. Chase defeated G. W. Smith, 6—4, 7—5; Richard H. Palmer defeated E. Goldmark by default; E. H. Janes defeated Edgar Leventritt by default; George O. Wagner defeated Harold Livingston by default.

Harry C. Martin, who has gained fame on the courts of the Crescent Athletic Club, set a high mark for himself yesterday in the beginning of the championship tournament on the courts of the West Side Tennis Club, at 117th Street. He faced his old rival, Frederick C. Inman, and defeated him, 6—3, 10—12, and 7—5. Martin was five times within a stroke of the match in the second set and Inman twice in the third before Martin's sharp and swift volleying won. The summary:

$4,000,000 IN GOLD TAKEN FOR EXPORT

Holland, Which Seldom Gets Gold Here, Obtains $2,000,000 on a Special Exchange Operation.

$1,000,000 BARS TO PARIS

Argentina Also Absorbs $750,000—Bankers Believe Gold Outflow Will Continue.

The National City Bank, it was learned yesterday, has arranged for the export this week of $3,750,000 gold to three different destinations, in addition to which $296,000 was taken from the Assay Office, presumably for export, by the Chase National Bank, acting for a client.

The exports of gold to be made by the City Bank, of which $2,000,000 goes forward to-day and the balance later in the week, are based on operations in foreign exchange which have aroused considerable interest in banking circles. One reason for this is the fact that the $2,000,000 which is being shipped to-day goes to Holland, to which country gold is seldom shipped from New York. This gold is going in the shape of coin, which was taken from the Sub-Treasury yesterday. On Thursday the National City Bank also will send $1,000,000 to Paris, and $750,000 is to go on Thursday to Argentina. The Paris shipment will be made in gold bars. These were not obtained from the New York Assay Office, whose supply was again exhausted by the gold taken by the Chase National Bank. This bar gold was, however, obtained here in New York. The shipment of $2,000,000 coin to Holland by the Noordam of the Holland-America Line to-day was arranged, it is understood, against the sale of Dutch exchange, much of which was sold last week at European centres. Seemingly in reflection of this transaction, sterling exchange in Amsterdam rose rather sharply yesterday and on Saturday. In this market sterling was firm all day at about $4.8780 for demand and $4.88 for cables.

It was reported that the $296,000 in gold bars engaged at the Assay Office by the Chase National Bank was taken for Goldman, Sachs & Co., though the name of the client for whom the bank was acting in the matter was not announced. It is understood that the gold is reserved for export, the delay in sending it out being due, it was said, to the fact that the steamship companies have recently advanced their rates on gold shipments of $300,000 or less. By keeping this lot of bar gold until more can be added to it the old rate of freight can be obtained on the shipment.

The belief was expressed in well-informed banking quarters yesterday that the gold export movement is likely to run some time longer. Imports of merchandise from abroad, in anticipation of increased duties on some articles, is contributing, it is said, to the present demand for foreign remittances. Interest rates here, however, are so low as to stimulate a further outflow of the precious metal.

BOSTON STOCK MARKET.

Special to The New York Times.

BOSTON, May 17.—The local market opened dull, and with prices about unchanged from Saturday's close. Trading dragged along until the announcement of the $1 North Butte dividend, after which heavy buying orders for this stock appeared, and the price was advanced nearly 3 points in about as many minutes.

THE EUROPEAN MARKETS.

London Exchange Quieter—Austria Gets Bulk of Gold in Open Market.

LONDON, May 17.—Money was plentiful but in small demand on the market to-day, and discounts were steady. Austria secured the bulk of the $3,500,000 in gold offered on the open market.

The week on the Stock Exchange opened quieter. Speculators were not disposed materially to increase the large bull account already built up, and the prices of Kaffirs and copper shares occasionally were easier. But gilt-edged securities continued firm and foreigners improved on Continental buying.

American securities were neglected in the forenoon. Values rarely exceeded parity, and ruled lifeless until the New York opening was received, when Canadian Pacific, Union Pacific, and United States Steel hardened fractionally. The market closed quietly steady.

Bar silver quiet, 24⅝d. per ounce.

Money, ¾ per cent.

The rate of discount in the open market for short bills is 1 5-16 per cent., and for three months' bills 1 5-16 per cent.

PARIS, May 17.—Prices on the Bourse to-day were firm.

At closing three per cent. rentes were 97f 65c for the account.

Exchange on London, 25f. 15c. for checks.

BERLIN, May 17.—Prices on the Boerse to-day were weaker.

New High Records with Good Crop News—Closes 9 to 15 Points Up.

COTTON.—Old crop positions made new high records for the season yesterday. The market closed steady at a net advance of 9@15 points.

The opening was steady at an advance of 14 points on May and 3 points lower to 4 points higher on later positions. Liverpool cables were a little disappointing, but rallied quite sharply from their early decline by the hour of the New York opening, while the early reports of light rains in Texas were offset to some extent by apprehensions of a wet spell in eastern and central sections of the belt. The market turned easier following the detailed reports from Texas showing rain to have been more general and rather heavier than suggested by the early map, but firmed again during the afternoon.

NEW YORK BOYS CHEAT LAW.

State Commissioner of Education Finds Fraud In Getting Certificates.

ALBANY, May 17.—Following a hearing to-day before Dr. S. A. Draper, State Commissioner of Education, in the case of a student who had completed his second year in one of the New York dental colleges, and who is suspected of having obtained his entrance certificate fraudulently, it was announced that the State Department had certain similar cases under consideration, which are likely to result in the arrest of those responsible for the sale of fraudulent certificates. It was also stated that several young men who were suspected of having secured similar certificates under the same circumstances would probably have their certificates revoked, resulting in the loss of several years of study and all the expense and time involved in the securing of an education for the profession which they cannot practice under the laws of the State.

According to a statement given out by the Education Department, Regents' examinations have been passed by means of impersonators, who, taking advantage of the large number examined in the Grand Central Palace, New York, hoped to escape detection. As a result of the investigations conducted during the year, the department says it learned that Max Sosinsky, a graduate of the College of the City of New York, had written papers for fourteen different men in several different professions.

The department has been active also in prosecuting certain frauds which centred about Francis College and Academy, Brooklyn. Two professors were arrested, and one, C. D. Christie, was sentenced to one year in the penitentiary. The other was discharged for lack of substantial evidence. It appears that these professors made a practice of dictating papers to certain students.

It has been brought to light recently that in two years a certain professional impersonator earned between $3,000 and $4,000 by securing certificates which are equivalent to a four years' course in a high school, and must be obtained before a student can take up the study of a profession such as medicine, law, or dentistry. As a result of the disclosures greater safeguards have been thrown about these examinations by the State Department.

25 LAWYERS PROTEST.

When A. O. Brown Co. Men Ask for Discharges in Bankruptcy.

The application for a discharge from bankruptcy made by five members of the firm of A. O. Brown & Co., stock brokers, 30 Broad Street, namely, Albert O. Brown, Samuel C. Brown, Lewis G. Young, W. Rhea Whitman, and Edward F. Buchanan, came up before Judge Hough in the United States District Court yesterday.

About twenty-five lawyers rose when the case was called to oppose the discharge, and the matter went over for the usual two weeks. A technical objection was raised in the case of Mr. Buchanan, as his application was not signed by him, but by his attorney, Dix W. Noel. Mr. Buchanan being in Prescott, Ariz.

Hays, Hershfield & Wolf entered an appearance against a discharge for Halstead, Hedges & Co., Harris & Fuller, Charles Minzesheimer & Co., Wood & Craft, Kremer & Co., Mendham Brothers, Lansburgh Brothers, Chadwick & Burnham, T. L. Manzon, & Co., and thirty-eight other creditors. Other attorneys entered appearances for the following creditors: Max Rosenthal, R. H. Weatherhead, Paul Perrett, Lewis J. Helzmann, Reading, Penn.; First National Bank of Princeton, Ill.; Clarence E. Simons, Cleveland, Ohio; Leonard H. Hochstadter, William J. Ehrich, Harold L. Mack, Daniel Manning, Frank V. Strauss, and Henrietta C. S. Burley.

John Townsend, referee in bankruptcy, certified to the court that the five members of Brown & Co. had conformed to the requirements of the Bankruptcy act, and, in his opinion, were entitled to a discharge. The objecting creditors have ten days in which to file specifications of objections.

BABY NOT TO BE DEPORTED.

Times Readers' Fund and $100 Gift Keep the Sakolik Family Together.

Abraham Sakolik, the pushcart peddler of 106 Eldridge Street, was the happiest man in New York yesterday when he found that his wife and 2-year-old son, Gerschon, would not have to be deported. Gerschon is the child which was detained at Ellis Island, threatened with deportation, because of having ringworm and the father being unable to pay the hospital charges and other expenses.

Through contributions sent to THE TIMES amounting to $82, and an additional contribution of $100, the full amount has been raised and the child will be restored to its parents. A physician, who has become interested in the case, has volunteered to treat the child for ringworm at its father's house.

THE TIMES received yesterday additional contributions of $88, thus bringing the total received from TIMES readers to $82.

'NELLIE BLY' WINS WILL FIGHT

Surrogate Upholds Seaman Will Giving Entire Estate to Widow.

Surrogate Thomas handed down a decision yesterday in the contest over the will of Robert Seaman, at one time President of the Iron Clad Manufacturing Company, and who late in life married Elizabeth Cochrane, better known as "Nellie Bly," the newspaper writer.

The Surrogate finds that the purported last will executed by Seaman at Wiesbaden on Nov. 29, 1897, is genuine; that the testator was of sound mind, in no way incompetent at the time of its execution, and that it was not made under restraint or compulsion.

The will gives to the widow the entire estate, both real and personal, and makes her executrix, although her husband before his death had already given to her most of his property.

Forged Gas Rebate Check Indorsement

Solomon Moses of 202 East Ninetieth Street pleaded guilty yesterday before Judge Swann in General Sessions to forging the indorsement of Mrs. H. A. Rand of 1,390 Second Avenue, to a gas rebate check for $4.46, and later cashing it at a drug store. The prisoner told Judge Swann that he found the check on the street near Mrs. Rand's home. In view of the good character Moses was able to prove Judge Swann suspended sentence.

German Manufacturers of Enameled Kitchen Steel Goods Win Their Case.

Domestic manufacturers of enameled steelware, principally kitchen articles, received a setback yesterday when the Board of United States General Appraisers, in a decision by I. F. Fischer, declined to uphold higher duties on German-made enameled ware imposed by the local Appraiser, George W. Wanmaker.

For many years the competition between the domestic makers, headed by the American Enameled Ware Company, usually known as the trust, and the Lalance & Grosjean Manufacturing Company on the one hand, and Stransky & Co., representing the German manufacturers, on the other, has been most keen. The German makers, who are strongly organized, have built up a heavy demand for their products in this country. The American manufacturers, too, have in recent years gained ground rapidly, with the result that competition between the rivals has become fierce.

In the latest case Stransky & Co. entered a large importation of light blue lipped saucepans invoiced at various prices. It alleged that the invoice values were lower than the actual foreign market values, whereupon Appraiser Wanmaker raised the invoice prices and exacted the 45 per cent. duty on the increased valuation. The importers appealed to the board for a reappraisement, and, after a consideration of the evidence, General Appraiser Fischer sustains the prices at which the German goods were entered, thereby reversing the local Appraiser.

CONEY MANAGERS STIRRED TO PROTEST

See Ruin Ahead in the Strict Enforcement of Early-Closing Laws in the Resort.

EVEN FERRIS WHEELS HIT

They and the Scenic Railways Must Close at Midnight—Yet Police Are Withdrawn from the Bowery.

The unexpected activity of the police since the opening of Coney Island on Saturday night has thrown the amusement enterprise owners and hotel proprietors into a state of combined anger and worry. Men who have managed various kinds of resorts on the island for years profess to see ruin ahead if the 1 o'clock closing law is strictly enforced for the remainder of the season.

The managers of the larger places, including the three big parks, Luna, Dreamland, and Steeplechase, met at an informal conference in the administration Building in Dreamland yesterday at noon, and spent some time in discussing the situation that has arisen. Manager Samuel W. Gumpertz of Dreamland presided, and there were present also James P. Robbins, representing Luna Park; L. Fletcher Snapp, from Steeplechase; John J. Byrnes, of "The Rocky Road to Dublin," John Blake, manager of the free circus in Dreamland, which was closed on Sunday, as well as representatives of several other amusement enterprises.

Mr. Gumpertz brought out the fact that the police objected most in Dreamland to the circus. This performance is given without charge, except the 10 cents gate admission, which, he remarked, was used for the maintenance of the park, and a great part of it went to paying taxes.

Committee to See the Mayor.

Ex-Judge Owen F. Finnerty, President of the Thirty-first Ward Board of Trade, suggested that a committee be appointed to call on Mayor McClellan some day this week and present the views of the amusement proprietors and business men of Coney Island on the matter of early closing and Sunday closing. James N. Conahan, Secretary of the Board of Trade and editor of a local newspaper, was instructed to write to the Mayor asking an appointment for next Thursday for Mr. Finnerty and the other members of the committee, which will include representatives of most of the big enterprises.

A meeting of the Board of Trade will be held in Stauch's Assembly Room on Friday night to hear the result of the conference with the Mayor. Several of the members said last night that in the event of the Mayor declining to assist them, they would mandamus both the Mayor and Police Commissioner Bingham to show cause why the Bowery should not be policed.

The decision of Commissioner Bingham no longer to police the Bowery and the sidewalks between it and Surf Avenue has caused some apprehension among amusement owners in the Bowery. They fear a repetition of acts of rowdyism which once were characteristic of the Bowery. Last night a meeting was held in Ferris's Hotel at which about 200 such owners gathered. They organized the Coney Island Protective Association, of which Louis Gold was elected President and William E. Peters, Secretary. The meeting voted that the Bowery was the "playground of the last hour," and for that reason it was the sense of the meeting that the amusement enterprises along its route should not be compelled to shut down promptly at 1 o'clock. In years gone by the scenic railways and rides have remained open much later.

Lack of Police Means Big Fire Rates.

Another consideration which the removal of the police from the Bowery has raised is the matter of fire insurance rates. Already the rates for fire insurance of places on the island are almost prohibitively high, the property owners say, and they fear that these rates will be increased even more when the policemen are removed. Mr. Finnerty said he would demand police protection for the Bowery, the sidewalks, and the beaches when he conferred with the Mayor.

Should police protection not be forthcoming, it is the intention of some of the property owners along the Bowery to bring suit against the city for the recovery of assessments and taxes paid in past years. In declining to police the thoroughfare, Police Commissioner Bingham gave as a reason that it was private property. If it be indeed private and not public property to the extent of commanding police protection in that it is daily and nightly thrown open to the public, then the property owners believe that it will be possible for them to retrieve some of the money paid out in past years.

Frederic Thompson of Luna Park is still confident that the prosperity which Sunday showed at the resort will last through the season at Coney. His own attractions have not been affected by the new order of things, but Mr. Thompson takes an interest in everything that is doing at Coney. He said last night:

"I pointed out yesterday that the slogan of Luna Park is 'The place for your wife, your mother, your sister, or your sweetheart.' I will only add now that Coney Island has become an institution as a recreation place for the masses. The public demand it for a breathing spot, with amusement. While some may get hysterical for the moment, I am sure that its carnival spirit must prevail seven days a week."

Scenic Railways' Turn Next.

Despite this optimistic declaration, Francis V. S. Oliver, Chief of the Bureau of Licenses, made it known yesterday that the end of the Island's Sunday troubles is not yet. He declared that the Mayor is determined to put a stop to the Sunday shows which do not come under the jurisdiction of the theatrical law—that is, ferris wheels and scenic railways—if he can.

Mr. Oliver said that he will go about the matter by refusing to issue seven-day licenses to these shows when their present permits have expired. The Mayor will then expedite a test case on the question.

Justice Carr of the Kings County Supreme Court handed down a decision two weeks ago declaring that the Mayor could not refuse to issue Sunday licenses to these "common shows," as they are classed in law. If he is upheld by the higher courts it will be impossible to regulate those amusements which do not come within the jurisdiction of the Police Commissioner in enforcing the theatrical law.

As to this class of amusements Mr. Thompson said:

"Scenic railways and most of the other rides which make Coney Island unique among the amusement resorts of the world are nothing more than elaborations of the sliding cellar door of our childhood. They are the most innocent of all forms of amusement. If they were stopped it would mean the ruining of the world's greatest amusement resort, but this has not been done, nor do I anticipate that it will be."

Breitag, Wife Murderer, Goes to Prison.

Carl Breitag, who several months ago killed his wife at their home in South Brooklyn, was sentenced yesterday to Sing Sing by Justice Blackmar in the Supreme Court, Brooklyn, for murder in the second degree. The minimum time he is to serve is twenty years and the maximum, life.

Breitag, who is about 50 years old, buried the body of his wife, after the murder, in the cellar of his home. He then called in men and had the floor of the cellar covered with concrete. The disappearance of Mrs. Breitag excited suspicion and the concrete in the cellar was dug up, revealing the body. Detectives Murray and Roddy, who discovered the body, learned that the woman was Breitag's second wife, and that there had been frequent quarrels between husband and wife because of the man's attentions to a girl. At the trial Breitag's lawyer asserted that the man had done the killing in a fit of uncontrollable passion, and asked for clemency.

WILLCOX ANSWERS MAYOR.

Commission Could Not Test Right to Remove Eleventh Avenue Tracks.

Chairman William R. Willcox of the Public Service Commission took issue yesterday with the statement of Mayor McClellan in his veto of the New York Central's Eleventh Avenue bill that the power lay with the Public Service Commission to test the validity of the Saxe law of 1906, which required the removal of the Central's tracks from Eleventh Avenue. Mr. Willcox said that the commission had done everything in its power in that direction, and that further action was up to the city administration through the Corporation Counsel's office. Mr. Willcox said this when the reference to the commission in the Mayor's veto was called to his attention.

The Chairman of the Public Service Commission pointed out that the commission, as soon as it took office, in July, 1907, began an investigation of the Eleventh Avenue situation, and in November of that year notified the Corporation Counsel to begin an action to condemn the Eleventh Avenue tracks and franchises. Eight months afterward the Corporation Counsel reported that the power to condemn never became operative.

Continuing, Mr. Willcox said:

"It is perhaps unnecessary to say that the commission has no powers of condemnation through any office other than that of the Corporation Counsel, and having thus requested him to commence proceedings, and he having declined to entertain the request, it is difficult to see how there is any further duty for the commission to perform in the premises.

"I have always believed that the proper way to test the law was for the Corporation Counsel to have begun the proceedings as requested by the Public Service Commission a year ago last November, and then it could have been determined in the courts whether all the preliminary work on the part of the Rapid Transit Commissioners had or had not been done."

SUIT OVER ORPHEUM THEATRE.

Mrs. Olson, a Defendant, Says She Leased It on Misrepresentations.

Trial of a suit brought by Solomen Kaplan, a dealer in enameled ware on an assigned claim, against John E. Olson and his wife to recover $1,230 on two notes made by Olson and indorsed by his wife, and in turn indorsed by Mrs. Olson to Cooper & Feder, was begun yesterday before a jury in Justice Bischoff's part of the Supreme Court.

The notes were signed in April, 1905, when Mrs. Olson became lessee of the Orpheum Theatre in Harlem, and were made to carry out terms of the lease. Mrs. Olson says she was induced to sign them by misrepresentations about the theatre, declaring it was stated to her that the playhouse was making a daily profit of $100, and that the café in connection with it a like amount.

After signing the notes, she says, she found out that neither of the statements was true, and that officials of the Fire Department had complained of the building. She testified that the rent of the house was $11,000 a year, and that she was to pay the first month in advance. When she found out that conditions had been misrepresented to her she refused to pay the rent, and the agents, Cooper & Feder, would not allow her to take possession. Then, she alleges, a demand was made for the notes and refused.

EARTHQUAKE IN CHILE.

Panic but No Fatalities—Disturbance Recorded at Cheltenham and Toronto.

TACNA, Chile, May 17.—The Provinces of Tacna and Arica and the country south of them have been visited recently by frequent earthquakes. There was a severe shock at 3 o'clock this morning of ninety seconds' duration. The innabitants were thrown into a state of semi-panic, but there were no fatalities and no material losses have been reported.

WASHINGTON, May 17.—An earthquake, estimated as being 3,600 miles away, was recorded at the Cheltenham, Md., magnetic observatory of the United States Coast and Geodetic Survey today. The record showed tremors of more than average amplitude. They began at 3:12 o'clock this morning, seventy-fifth meridian time. The maximum waves occurred at 3:22 and the tremors ended at 4:18.

A moderate earthquake was also recorded at Cheltenham last Saturday night, beginning at 11:18. Its indicated origin was about 1,750 miles distant, and is probably the one that press dispatches reported in Montana.

TORONTO, Ontario, May 17.—The seismograph here registered a strong earthquake at 3:13 this morning. It lasted one hour and thirty-two minutes. The large waves were at 3:21 and continued about ten minutes. It is estimated that the earthquake was over 4,800 miles away.

BUYS $5,000,000 JUDGMENT.

W. H. Stanage Pays $525 for Assets of Harper's Wrecked Bank.

CINCINNATI, Ohio, May 17.—W. H. Stanage paid $525 to-day for the assets of E. L. Harper that remain in court custody as a result of the failure of Harper's Fidelity National Bank, Cincinnati, twenty years ago. The sale was conducted by Major J. B. Wallace on order of Receiver J. C. Rankin of Washington, representing the United States Treasury Department.

Chief among the assets obtained by Stanage is a court judgment by creditors against E. L. Harper for $5,000,000, which, with interest, amounts to $6,000,000. Major Wallace referred to Harper, who served a term in the penitentiary on the charge of wrecking the Fidelity Bank, as at present President of a $16,000,000 corporation in New York City

Mr. Stanage said he bought the assets merely as an investment, and denied that he represented Harper in the matter.

Harper's failure was caused by the collapse of a "wheat corner" he was attempting to carry on the Chicago Board of Trade.

HOLDS VENEZUELAN ARCHIVES

German Consul Will Not Yield Them to Gomez's Consul at Curacao.

WILLEMSTAD, Curacao, May 17.—The German Consulate has refused to deliver the archives of the Venezuelan Consulate to the newly appointed Venezuelan Consul at Curacao. The reason for this attitude is not known.

It is presumed, however, that the German Consul is awaiting direct authorization from his Government to hand over the archives, which were placed in his charge last July, after the Venezuelan Consul, Señor Lopez, had been forced to flee from Curacao.

The building will be open to the public for inspection from 2 to 6 in the afternoon and in the evening a vaudeville performance will be given for the men of the navy.

CITY BREVITIES.

The report of the payment of gas rebates to consumers for the eleventh week, made to Commissioner Shields yesterday, shows a total repayment of $6,568,102.85 up to Saturday.

The fifth person to be implicated in the alleged conspiracy to conceal the assets of H. Feinberg & Son of 48 East Tenth Street, furriers, was arraigned before Judge Hough yesterday. He was Abraham Minsky, son-in-law of Herman Feinberg, head of the firm. He appeared voluntarily, and through counsel pleaded not guilty and was released in $2,500 bail until Wednesday, with leave to demur then.

Charles Bowser, a negro, living at 414 West Thirty-ninth Street, whose recent trial and conviction for murder in the first degree for killing another negro in a saloon made a record for speed, was sentenced yesterday by Justice Fitzgerald in the Criminal Branch of the Supreme Court to die in the electric chair in Sing Sing during the week of June 25. Motions for a new trial were denied.

HAINS'S SENTENCE IS 8 TO 16 YEARS

Law Vindicated, Says Justice Garretson in Imposing It on Annis's Slayer.

THE PRISONER IS UNMOVED

No Application to be Made Yet for a Reasonable Doubt Certificate or Stay of Sentence.

Capt. Peter C. Hains, Jr., received with calmness a sentence of from eight to sixteen years at hard labor in Sing Sing Prison yesterday for killing William E. Annis on Aug. 15, 1908. The indeterminate sentence was pronounced by Supreme Court Justice Garretson at Flushing. The prisoner's gray-haired father, Gen. Hains, and his brother, Major Hains, were in court, but left soon after the sentence was imposed.

The courtroom was filled with curious men and women when Justice Garretson entered the room at 10:30 o'clock. District Attorney De Witt immediately moved for the sentence of Hains. John F. McIntyre, chief counsel for the prisoner, interposed with a list of motions to set aside the verdict. He contended that it was contrary to the weight of evidence, that the indictment was irregular, that the facts disclosed did not constitute a crime, that the court had no jurisdiction owing to the fact that at the time of the homicide the prisoner was a soldier in the employ of the Government, and that the United States had not formally surrendered his body. The motions were denied.

"Peter C. Hains to the bar," called Clerk Peace.

The prisoner, nudged by a Deputy Sheriff, arose and approached the bar, upon which he rested one hand. He was sworn and his pedigree taken. He was inattentive during the questioning by Clerk Peace, and some of the queries had to be made several times before a reply was elicited. He was asked three times how old he was, finally replying that he was 36.

"Ever arrested?" asked the Clerk. He shook his head sadly.

"Have you a trade?"

"I am a soldier," said he.

"Have you a mechanical trade?"

"I am a soldier," he repeated, as if that were a sufficient answer. The question as to whether he was married aroused him slightly, but he did not respond, Lawyer Young giving the reply.

An Appeal for Clemency.

"Have you anything to say why sentence should not now be pronounced?" he was asked.

Mr. Young asked for clemency because of Hains's service to the Government.

Mr. McIntyre urged upon the court the fact that Drs. Arthur C. Brush and Clarence A. Platt agree that the defendant not only was but still is insane, and asked that Justice Garretson consider their opinion.

"As to that," said Justice Garretson, "I have no knowledge that would enable me to act judicially in that relation. This man stands before me in exactly the same position as any other defendant."

Sentence of the Court.

Then, turning to the prisoner, he said, slowly and impressively:

Peter C. Hains, Jr., after a fair and impartial trial upon an indictment for murder in the first degree, in which you were defended by able and experienced counsel, you have been found guilty by the jury of manslaughter in the first degree. The court is unaware of any substantial error having occurred in the trial to your prejudice. The jury have discredited your plea of legal irresponsibility, and by their verdict have shown to you the utmost consideration which the facts and the law warranted.

With this verdict the court is not disposed to disagree. The logic of it is that the killing of William E. Annis by you on the 15th day of August last was not justified, and was the act of a man who was responsible therefor, and you must receive the penalty which the law prescribes, that no person may assume to be judge, and executioner for a real or fancied wrong done to him by another; society cannot approve and the law does not sanction it. Such a doctrine is abhorrent to all right-thinking men, and the practice of it is subversive of modern civilization.

In this case the law of the State has been vindicated and the claim to the right to mete out personal vengeance has been again condemned. Further comment is needless. The result of this trial is its own best commentary.

The judgment of the court is that you be confined in the State prison at Sing Sing at hard labor for an indeterminate sentence, the minimum of which is eight years and the maximum of which is sixteen years.

"Your Honor, I ask that the warrant be delayed one day until I can determine what I shall do," said Mr. McIntyre.

"It is the duty of the Sheriff to pursue a certain course," responded Justice Garretson, "but there is no reason for unusual or indecent haste. There may be a delay of twenty-four hours."

Taken Back to Jail.

After a few words with his father and brother and lawyers Capt. Hains, handcuffed to Sheriff Harvey, was led to a waiting automobile and sped off to the jail in Long Island City. As the car started the prisoner avoided the eyes of the crowd of curious persons, but responded with a laugh to something the Sheriff said to him.

Mr. Young, who was associated with the defense, announced that there will be no application for a certificate of reasonable doubt or stay of sentence at this time. He added that an appeal will be taken in the regular way.

Under the indeterminate sentence act Capt. Hains must serve at least eight years in the State prison. He is then eligible for parole provided his conduct has been such as to meet with the approval of the Warden of Sing Sing.

The application to the Pardle Board must also be accompanied by letters of recommendation from responsible persons in the community.

The Pardon Board.

If the application is indorsed by the Warden the prisoner is taken before the Parole Board, which visits the State prisons once a month, and is examined. If the board decides to release the prisoner then one of the conditions is that he report in writing to the State Superintendent of Prisons once a month until the maximum sentence has expired. As he is out on parole the defendant may be retaken any time if his conduct is not up to accepted standards, and then he will be compelled to serve out the full time of the maximum sentence.

As Capt. Hains will be a prisoner as a first offender he will don a gray suit with a white solid circle the size of a half dollar on the left arm. The second year a white bar is worn in place of the circle. In the sixth year this mark is changed to a white star.

NEGROES CAUSE STRIKE.

Georgia Railroad Engages Them as Firemen and Whites Quit.

Special to The New York Times.

ATLANTA, Ga., May 17.—Every white fireman and hostler employed on the Georgia Railroad went out on strike tonight as a protest against the employment of negroes by the company. Knowing that the men intended to strike, the railroad has been discharging them all day as fast as they came in from their runs. It is said that negroes are being employed by the road to take the places of the white men who have been discharged and who have struck. The officials of the road say that the strike will not interfere with the operation of trains.

The trouble between the road and the white firemen over employment of negroes has existed for some time. The white men allege that they were discriminated against in favor of the negroes and that the Georgia Road intended to man its trains with negro firemen entirely.

There is a good deal of public feeling against the road because of its action. The white firemen are backed by the Brotherhood of Firemen, and Eugene Ball of Toronto, Vice President of the order, is here directing the strike. It is said that the engineers will refuse to work with negro firemen and may become involved in the strike. The Georgia Railroad is leased to the Louisville & Nashville, and the strikers intimate that unless their demands are granted trouble will spread over the system.

CORNELL AWARDS PRIZES.

W. A. Shea Gets Income of $1,000 for Essay on Shakespeare.

Special to The New York Times.

ITHACA, N. Y., May 17.—A number of important prizes were awarded at the last meeting of the Cornell University Faculty to-day.

The Barnes Shakespeare Prize, founded in 1887 by Mrs. Alfred Smith Barnes of Brooklyn, was won by William A. Shea, '09, of Brockport, N. Y. The subject of his essay was "Shakespeare's Tragedy of Passion." The prize consists of the income of $1,000. Mr. Shea is a senior in the college of law. He won the Guilford essay prize two years ago.

The Corson Browning prize was won by Marion Collins, '10, of Amsterdam. The subject of his essay was "Character in Browning's Dramas." This prize was founded in 1902 by Prof. Hiram Corson, and consists of a gold medal of the value of $50 or that sum of money.

The Corson French prize, also founded by Prof. Corson, went to George I. Dale of Schenectady. His subject was "Paul Verlaine's Poetry." The prize consists of a gold medal of the value of $50. It is never to be awarded in money.

The Fuertes medals awarded annually to a graduate student and an undergraduate in the college of civil engineering were won by William M. Torrance, '95, of East Orange, N. J., and George F. Weighart, '09, of Baltimore, Md.

CIRCUS MAN'S ALIMONY.

He Paid Only $15 in Five Years, Wife Says—Catches Him on the Road.

Special to The New York Times.

WHITE PLAINS, N. Y., May 17.—Mrs. Frances E. Robbins, who obtained a divorce from her husband, Frank A. Robbins, the circus man, in 1894, applied to Justice Tompkins in the Supreme Court at White Plains to-day for an order to punish him for contempt for failing to pay alimony amounting to $3,785.

Her lawyer, Frank A. Syme, said that according to the decree the circus owner was to pay his wife $5 a week, but had paid her only $15 since 1894. Counsel for the showman opposed the motion. He said that after all these years this was the first time that Mrs. Robbins had applied to the court for alimony.

The application was adjourned pending inquiry into the terms of the divorce decree which was granted in New York. Mrs. Robbins is now living in Mount Vernon. Her husband is on the road with his circus and was passing through New Rochelle.

LONG-DISTANCE ELECTRICITY.

Power for a Trolley Line Being Carried 35 Miles on Long Island.

The Long Island Railroad has perfected a plan for transmitting electric power a distance of thirty-five miles without material waste for the operation of a trolley line, and the current has just been turned on.

The railroad now has a trolley line five miles long running from Huntington, through Fair Ground to Melville. It is extending the line across the island, and will have the entire cross-island line in operation this Summer. The power plant at Huntington was found inadequate for the requirements of the extended line, having been built for a road only three miles long. The old plant was unequal, at times when travel was extra heavy, to supplying sufficient power to push the cars up one very steep hill.

A wire was run out to Huntington from Long Island City, a distance of thirty-five miles, and a sub-station was installed at Fair Ground. From the company's huge electric plant in Long Island City the current was turned on. Now the trolley cars can negotiate the hill at nearly top speed.

HUDSON-FULTON APPEAL.

Celebration Commission Asks Patriotic New Yorkers to Contribute.

The Hudson-Fulton Celebration Commission has issued a circular letter appealing to the "public spirit and patriotism" of citizens of this city for contributions to carry out more thoroughly than is possible without their help the plans for next Autumn's tercentenary celebration. In this letter they ask:

Are you a New Yorker? Do you wish to make a special effort for New York? If so, please make your check payable to Isaac N. Seligman, Treasurer of the commission, and send it to 1 William Street.

The appeal says:

Toward the expense of this celebration the State and municipal Governments have made liberal apropriations, but in asking from these sources only a part of the requisite funds, and in refraining from asking the Federal Government for any appropriations whatever, the commission has confidently counted on the local pride, patriotism, and public spirit of the private citizen to meet the requirements for an adequate celebration worthy of this great and wealthy metropolis.

We appeal to you in the name of the navigator who made our harbor and river known to the world; in the name of the pioneer inventor who laid the foundation for our great water-borne commerce, and in the name of the genius of our people in every walk of life which has made New York the second city of the world, to lend your substantial aid to the suitable celebration of our historical festival.

The appeal says that such portion of the funds thus raised as arenot expended on the educational features of the commemoration will be devoted to a permanent memorial.

ROCKEFELLER VERSE QUOTED TO NURSES

His Jingle Figures in the Opening of the Training School on Blackwell's Island.

ADVICE FOR THE INMATES

William Rhinelander Stewart Gives Them a Few Points on How to Act in a Sickroom.

Joseph H. Choate told William Rhinelander Stewart at the opening exercises of the Metropolitan Training School for Nurses on Blackwell's Island yesterday that he was the bravest man he had ever seen. This was after Mr. Stewart, who as President of the State Board of Charities had made an address, gave the nurses who are occupying the new building some good advice. He first quoted to them this little rhyme, one of the articles of faith proposed to his followers by a man who Mr. Stewart admitted later was John D. Rockefeller:

A wise old owl sat on an oak;
The more he saw the less he spoke;
The more he spoke the less he heard.
Why can't you be like that wise old bird?

"The nurses go from house to house," continued Mr. Stewart. "They see all the workings of the household and the doings of the family, and I have known a great deal of trouble made where the nurses talked."

He also told the nurses to be careful to talk in softly modulated voices and walk around furniture instead of trying to go through it in the sick room. One nurse, who was attending a man of Mr. Stewart's acquaintance, lost her place because she would persist in colliding with the bedstead. This jarred the sick man, who complained to his doctor that he would not have her any longer, and did not.

"And now," said Mr. Stewart, referring to the new building, "there are 114 of you women who are going to live in one building. You know that Solomon said that it was 'better to live on a housetop than in a house with a brawling woman.' I trust that you will so live in your new home that Solomon would feel here that his proverb was unnecessary."

"Such courage as Mr. Stewart has exhibited here to-day I never expected to witness," said Mr. Choate. "To tell 114 women to hold their tongues and not to fight! I never dared to say that to one woman, and I know if I had I should have got as good as I gave."

Mr. Stewart said he felt that he had a hereditary interest of over a hundred years' standing in the school, for William Rhinelander bought sixty acres of land just across from Blackwell's Island in 1798, in the days when Chambers Street was the northern boundary of New York City, which had 30,000 inhabitants, and took his eight children up there to live.

"One of the eight was my grandfather," said Mr. Stewart. "I had many intimate talks with him, and he told me that when he was a boy these islands were so thick with trees and bushes you could not see across them. He and his brothers had a flat-bottomed skiff with which they used to cross the swift current to the northern end of this island to fish for bullheads. As we cannot have the trees now, I would rather see this building here than anything else."

St. Clair McKelway, Vice Chancellor of the State Board of Regents, was the only man there wearing a straw hat. He told the audience he would have been much depressed but for those worn by the women.

There were warm words of commendation for Mayor McClellan and the work done for public charities by the present city administration, and praise for Mrs. William Kinnicutt Draper, President of the Board of Managers of the School who gave a history of it from its foundation on Ward's Island.

There are accommodations for 114 nurses now in the building, which is delightfully situated across the north end of the island, 280 feet long and 40 deep. It is of rough gray stone, severely simple in design, to be in keeping with the hospital, but modified by a big, white Colonial piazza.

On the first floor of the building is a large reception hall, the offices of the training school, a library, and lecture hall where the exercises were held yesterday; dining room, kitchen and scullery, diet kitchen instruction room, and suite of rooms for the house physician. It is a five-story building, and the upper floors are used for sleeping rooms.

BOSTON POLITICIAN GUILTY.

Ex-President McCullough of Council and Attorney Convicted of Larceny.

BOSTON, May 17.—A verdict of guilty was returned to-day in the Superior Court by the jury in the case of Leo F. McCullough, former President of the Boston Common Council, and his attorney, James T. Cassidy, on charges of conspiracy and larceny. Sentence was deferred and counsel for the defendants stated that they would carry the case to the Supreme Court of Massachusetts on exceptions. Bail was increased from $1,000 to $1,500 each, and was furnished.

The charges grew out of the alleged defrauding of the City of Boston of $200. The Common Council appropriated this sum for the purchase of lawbooks for the President's office, while McCullough was President, and it was charged that he, with the aid of Cassidy, took the money for his own use and prepared papers setting forth a purchase of lawbooks which never occurred.

GIRL HAS DRIVER ARRESTED.

Accuses Negro of Beating His Horses and Then Withdraws the Charge.

Miss Hazel Marshall, an artist, living at 550 West 163d Street, caused the arrest yesterday, on a charge of abusing horses, of William Welting, a negro driver.

John Danellan, who employs Welting, and several workmen followed him to the West 152d Street Station House and told the Lieutenant that the driver had been trying to control a new and unruly team.

Officer Horton of the S. P. C. A. said the horses showed no signs of having been abused. Miss Marshall withdrew the original charge, and then accused Welting of disorderly conduct because he had talked sharply to her. Welting threatens to sue Miss Marshall for false arrest.
